Mideast Plans Split UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council is split over rival plans for sending a U.N. representative to the Middle East to try to open the way to a lasting Arab-Israeli peace settlement. Informed sources said a drafting team of six nonpermanent council members had agreed in principle on a formula, but Canada and Denmark came in Friday night with a rival plan.

The six-nation draft outlined several basic principles for a settlement, including that Israel should withdraw from those parts of Egypt, Jordan and Syria it occupied in the June war and that the Arab states should abandon their 19-year-old state of belligerency toward Israel.

India, Argentina, Brazil, Ethiopia, Mali and Nigeria drafted that proposal. When they showed it to the council's other four elected members—Bulgaria, Canada, Denmark and Japan—Danish Foreign Minister Hans Tabor introduced the rival Canadian-Danish plan. Diplomatic sources said that plan only indicated that Israel should withdraw from the captured territory, stating that countries should not keep troops on other countries' territories against their will.

The council president for October, Japanese Ambassador Senjin Tsuruoka, said the 10 delegates would meet again Monday morning to discuss the two proposals.

Efforts to obtain a permanent Arab-Israeli settlement have been spurred by Egypt's sinking of the Israeli destroyer Elath last Saturday and the Israeli shelling of Port Suez Tuesday which set fire to Egypt's two major oil refineries.

COURT DATE—Lt. Col. Tran Dinh Vong, ousted last month as chief of the heavily populated coastal Binh Dinh Province, in South Vietnam, arrives at court Friday to stand trial on corruption charges. Vong, 49, was the first of the nation's 44 province chiefs to face such charges — which on conviction can bring the death penalty. (UPI RADIOTELEPHOTO BY LO VINH.)

The Costly Air War:

14 U. S. Jets, 27 MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes evidently hit the Hanoi area today for the fifth straight day. A North Vietnamese broadcast said five planes were shot down over the city and some of the pilots were captured.

In the ground war, the U.S. Command announced U.S. troops killed 131 Communist soldiers in a series of clashes Friday south of Dan Nang.

There was no immediate American report on the day's air operations over the North. Intense raids on the Hanoi-Haiphong sector Friday raised the week's plane toll so far in North Vietnam to 14 U.S. jets shot down and 27 enemy MIGs destroyed or damaged.

Reported American casualties in the ground fighting near Tam Ky and Hoi An, two provincial capitals south of Da Nang, totaled 19 dead and 75 wounded.

Communist shelling of Con Thien and other forward U.S. Marine outposts just below the demilitarized zone also increased, from a recent daily average of 100 or less rounds to an estimated 170 Friday. Seven Marines were killed and 41 wounded, U.S. headquarters said.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division battled the Reds in a series of scattered actions near Hoi An and reported 78 of the enemy killed. In the largest fight, eight miles south of the provincial capital, the U.S. Command said 35 Communists and 10 Americans were killed and 33 Americans wounded.

To the south on the coastal plains near Tam Ky, troops of the Americal Division fought a series of clashes with North Vietnamese units and reported 53 of the enemy and nine Americans killed and 42 Americans wounded.

In the largest clash five companies of U.S. troops—about 900 men—were pitted against a force of about the same size from the North Vietnamese 2nd Division.

U.S. headquarters said American pilots shot down four MIGs Thursday and one Friday, bringing to 27 the number of Soviet-made jet fighters reported destroyed or damaged in aerial combat or on the ground this week.

Enemy ground fire brought down three American planes Friday, the U.S. Command said and four more aviators were listed as missing. This raised to 720 the number of U.S. combat planes reported lost over North Vietnam in the war.

96-MPH Buffalo Winds

Three Boys Are Safe

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Winds that blew in off Lake Erie with gusts up to 96 miles an hour pounded the Buffalo area Friday night and early today, sinking scores of small boats, felling power lines and driving some persons from flood-endangered homes.

Three young boys, reported missing in the lakefront area, were found safe several hours after dawn.

The wind, which hit hardest along the water front, decreased to 18 miles an hour by 8 a.m.

At Brant, 25 miles southwest of Buffalo, 19 persons were evacuated by boats from summer cottages and house trailers inundated by water that spilled from Cattaraugus Creek, which empties into the lake.

The Coast Guard station in Buffalo harbor recorded the 96-mile-an-hour gust. The Weather Bureau said the wind had reached 59 miles an hour at its airport station.

Within hours after the winds rolled in from Lake Erie Friday night, at least 40 docked boats had been sunk and scores of others damaged. The total loss was estimated tentatively at well over $150,000.

At the height of the storm, the lake level rose eight to 10 feet above normal, with wind-churned waves slapping angrily against retaining walls. Sections of a few lake shore roads south of Buffalo and in neighboring Fort Erie, Ont. were reported under water.

Dozens of trees and tree limbs were knocked down by the powerful gusts, often carrying power lines with them. Emergency crews worked to restore service in many scattered locations throughout Erie, Niagara and northern Chautauqua counties.

Critics of Adirondack Park Topic of Mt. Club Address

WARRENSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — Laurance S. Rockefeller said today the proposed Adirondack Mountains National Park could be set up to insure the "forever wild" character of the area.

Discussing some of the objections which have been raised to the proposal he also suggested that the rights of present property owners could be insured and foresaw the possibility of continued hunting within the park.

Population Problems

In remarks for the annual dinner of the Adirondack Mountain Club Rockefeller stressed that the basic issue was to meet the problems that increasing population pressures will bring on the Adirondacks.

Rockefeller suggested that the basic policies which govern the other national parks might be altered somewhat to create the 1.7 million acre park within the Adirondack preserve he proposed last month.

While noting the visionary wisdom of New Yorkers who wrote the "forever wild" provision in the State Constitution 80 years ago, he said he is now "concerned that we may be resting on the laurels of our grandfathers."

"We must not allow ourselves to cling to past solutions if they are not the wisest policy for today," said Rockefeller, who is chairman of President Johnson's Citizens' Advisory Committee on Recreation and Natural Beauty.

"Equally," he added, "we must not be firmly wed to any specific new proposal. The National Park is one means of solution, but if there is a better one, I shall enthusiastically endorse it."

Six Principal Questions

Dealing with six "principal questions" raised by critics of the park proposal, he said:

—Concern that the forever wild character of the park might be threatened by development could be met by having the basic enabling legislation "specify that the park was to be managed for its wilderness values."

—As for fears of property owners that their lands might be condemned, he said, "where the private use is consistent with the park purpose, I see no reason for public acquisition within any particular period of time.

"The government should have an easement against adverse development and a right of first refusal should the owners want to sell."

—On sportsmen's concern that hunting be abolished, he saw the possibility of compromise, noting limited hunting is now allowed in a few national parks.

"Also the National Park Service administers other types of units, such as national recreation areas and national seashores, where hunting is permitted. Perhaps some combination can be worked out whereby the areas most used by hunters can remain open," he said.

—Rockefeller said some formula could be worked out to avoid a loss of revenue to local governments that now receive payments from the state in lieu of taxes.

But he noted that the park proposal suggested "a declining 20-year scale of payments" which anticipated that economic gains from the park operation would offset tax losses.

—On fears expressed by the lumber industry, Rockefeller said "we can make sure that the industry is not put out of business by any park. It may require adjustment of boundaries. It may also require innovation and imagination to allow cutting to continue on a managed basis in certain areas."

—And he expressed disagreement with critics who object to the federal government playing a role in the Adirondacks "as a matter of principle." He said cooperative efforts work well in such fields as highway construction, health and welfare and others.

Bechtold Proposal:

12-Man Citizens' Advisory Group

"It is ridiculous to assume that any one man can manage all the affairs of our city without some guidance and assistance," C. John Bechtold, Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor, said today in announcing his plans to formulate a Citizens Advisory Committee.

In a speech before the Republican City Committee, Bechtold announced his intention "when elected, to immediately contact respected local experts in banking, law, real estate, insurance, Chamber of Commerce and labor, to join in this group whose function will be to guide the mayor in the administration of city affairs.

Bechtold explained "city government has become a very big, complicated business in every respect. Mayor Garraghan himself has stated many times, and correctly, that the problems of dealing with the federal government alone are terribly time consuming and complicated. It is my opinion that a mayor should seek help and guidance wherever he can find it, and this would be the basis of this group. The President of the United States has such a group to assist him in the complexities of governmental administration. Mine, of course, would be volunteer, unpaid and on a part-time basis.

"My Citizen Advisory Committe would probably total 12 Kingston residents, each a respected citizen in his own right. In addition, I would include the various city department heads and board chairmen such as city clerk, treasurer, public works and water department.

"The Citizens Advisory Group would probably meet on a regular monthly basis, with special meetings as required. Its principal function would be to act in strictly an advisory capacity to the mayor. It would probably conduct its own investigations of various pressing matters of city business," Bechtold said.

Bechtold said "let it be clearly understood that the decisions will still be made by the mayor and no one else. But, I have long been of the opinion that many wrong and harmful decisions are made by well meaning persons in an executive capacity who did not avail themselves of competent advice and guidance. I doubt if any man, no matter what his background, could reasonably expect to be completely versed and expert in all phases of the extremely complicated business which is city government. Why then is it not within the realm of good sense to seek out assistance? I am certain there are many good citizens of our city who would gladly donate their time, experience and knowledge to assisting their mayor in the proper administration of city affairs."

2nd Runaway Seized in Greene

By RAY TYSON

A 16-year old fugitive from a Massachusetts institution, who eluded capture from searching police since Thursday morning following a chase in a stolen car on the State Thruway, north of Catskill, was taken into custody Friday night by Leeds State Troopers, west of Athens.

The runaway, Stephen Clark, was picked up near a service station along Route 9W in the Town of Athens, police said. He had in his possession a knife, blackjack and billy-club, troopers said.

Investigators told The Freeman that Clark was first sought Thursday morning after a high-speed auto chase along the Thruway. Officials said the youth escaped capture when the car finally crashed north of Catskill.

A companion, Allan J. Daley of Massachusetts, was arrested following the accident. He was charged with possession of burglary tools and reckless endangerment. Police said Daley is being held in the Greene County jail.

Clark, however, avoiding detection, was spotted Friday in another stolen auto. Troopers said the wayward youth allegedly stole a car from Mt. Marion and again entered the Thruway where he was again chased by police.

Two miles north of Catskill, police noted, the youth wrecked the auto and fled into the woods. Friday afternoon police declared they had Clark "pinpointed," but he eluded apprehension despite being surrounded, authorities disclosed.

Troopers said around 7 o'clock barking dogs and complaints of a prowler alerted investigators that the youth was nearby.

Taken by surprise near the gas station, Clark humbly surrendered, troopers said.

Officers described the escaped Massachusetts inmate as being neatly dressed, tall and very slight. Police said the youth was 6 feet 2 inches and weighed only 140 pounds.

Clark was booked for possession of dangerous weapons and a fugitive from justice. They added stolen auto charges would probably be forthcoming from other sectors.

ARRESTED—Frederick Benjamin Thompson (shown in '67 portrait), accused murderer of New Jersey socialite Mrs. Dorothy Beck Palmer, was arrested by FBI agents in a bus terminal in Chicago late Friday, authorities said today. The 35-year-old ex-convict has been sought since the bloody death of the 57-year-old Harding Township (N. J.) matron Sept. 29. Thompson is to appear before an acting U.S. Commissioner in Chicago today on charges of unlawful flight. (UPI TELEPHOTO from files)

A Look at '67 City, County Registration: What Does It Mean?

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Freeman Political Writer

It is difficult to say just what the 1967 voter registration figures mean because of a decided lack of any valid criteria for judging them — a reason for this being that for years the registration books were listing as voters people who had long since departed this vale of tears.

Kingston, with 12,745 registrants, is up 1,091 from last last year. The rest of the county totals 48,925 which, judging by last year's 56,825, appears as a decrease but in fact, is not, and this is the interesting part.

The 1966 county vote (excluding Kingston) was only 41,254 — a difference from the same year's registration figures of 15,571!

(There was only a span of 435 between 1966 registrants and voters in the City, where it was impossible to register a dead person.)

According to a spokesman at the Board of Elections, a letter would be sent around to County residents who had failed to vote for the previous four years, and if they did not respond their names would be taken off the books.

Names Put Back

"But often times," the spokesman said, "the names would be put back on the books by party committeemen."

Whether the committeemen were out of touch with their community and were not aware of who had moved away or died, or whether more astute motives were involved, is not known.

The voting figures show, however, that many silent partners appeared in the registration books year after year.

Permanent personal registration should solve this age-old problem.

On to the problem of prediction:

The Board of Elections spokesman said that the feeling was that the general County registration was up, and, if this is so, this could favor the out-party Democrats.

High registration figures tend to demonstrate much more than simple interest in a political campaign; rather, they show dissatisfaction.

One fairly stable factor in voter registration is that people do not turn out in droves when they are unmoved by the issues, when they feel they have not been given a real choice in the matter, and when they are vaguely satisfied with the present government.

They do turn out, however, when they are bothered, scared, excited.

Far too many people would rather vote somebody out of office than vote to retain an office-holder who has been giving a fair, if unexcitable, performance.

Equally, people will turn out in great numbers to keep a person from being elected.

A high registration figure, then will generally favor the out-party.

As for the City of Kingston: John Ray Mayone, GOP City chairman, believes that Kingston registration will favor C John Bechtold and Louis J. Smith, the Republican candidates for mayor and alderman-at-large.

Citing an increase of registration in normally Republican wards, coupled with a decrease in some traditionally Democratic wards, keeping in mind that Mayor Garraghan won Kingston by only 374 votes in 1965, Mayone is left with the impression that Bechtold and Smith have a voting the edge of "at least 800 votes."

No Certainty

Mayone probabably realizes, however, that the Bechtold-Smith ticket would have to have solid support from the GOP voters of 1965, and of this, no one can be certain.

Any incumbent Kingston Mayor seeking reelection to a second term of office must be considered to have an edge. And regardless of how many issues have been explored by Republican-Liberal Bechtold in that long line of press releases to come out of the GOP Wall Street headquarters, the grim fact is that a vast number of voters are not moved by political multi-varied themes. They recognize a phrase or a name, and an incumbent's name is very recognizable.

In New York City one year, a man called Abe Stark won a post on the City Council. Why? Because for years Abe Stark's name appeared in huge letters on a wall of the Brooklyn Dodger's Ebbets Field ball park.

Stark had held no political office prior to his election, nor had he come up with any controversial issues.

The simple fact is that the voters were familiar with that group of letters that made up his name.

With all the hammering at Garraghan's alleged "ineptness" in office, one is struck with the obvious use of the Mayor's name — over and again Mayor Garraghan's name is mentioned.

One other Republican problem is the creating of a strong image for Bechtold. Voters must not only hear and see his name often but they must be able to identify it with strength, action, leadership, qualification, and all those virtues which make for a winner.

It just may be, however, that November 7 will tell a very close story, regardless of the 17-5 edge certain city gamblers have given to Garraghan.

Mark Reformation At Union Services

Four hundred fifty years of Reformation history will be observed in Kingston at a festival service held jointly by the Kingston Area Council of Churches and the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer which is celebrating its 70th anniversary this year also.

To be held in Redeemer's sanctuary at Wurts and Rogers Streets Sunday 7:30 p. m. the service will feature Reformation music by the choir of the church under the direction of J. Anthony Hummel Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Lester Decker at the organ assisted by a brass ensemble.

The service will begin with a procession of choir and clergy. The clergymen in the traditional vestments of their denominations will form in the parish house with Russell Anderson acting as marshal.

Music Program

Choral music will include the anthem, Christ is Our Cornerstone based on an ancient Latin text written by Aufdemberge and a chorale cantata Built on a Rock for choir, congregation, organ and brass quintet based on Kirken by Lindeman and arranged by Cassler. The words of the cantata are by Nikolai Grundtvig one of the greatest of Danish hymn writers and an evangelical leader against the rationalism current in Scandinavia in the nineteenth century. The brass quintet, assembled by G. Thomas Keehn, who will be playing trombone along with Wessel Cross, includes Gary Spengler and Walter Highland on trumpets and Barry Leavy, tuba.

Organ music selected for the occasion includes the following preludes: Erhalt uns, Herr, bei deinem Wort by Walther; Ein 'fest Burg by Faulkes and prelude on Old Hundredth by Willan; and as an offertory, We All Believe in One God by Dupre.

The sermon will be given by the Rev. Paul W. Dieckman, PhD, vice president of Wagner College whose topic will be Vision for a New Day.

The host pastor, the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, will conduct the service which also commemorates the first confirmation service at Redeemer on Reformation Day, 1897 when 50 young people were confirmed or baptized, becoming adult members of the congregation which had been organized in January of the same year.

Assisting in the service will be the Rev. Edwin C. Coon, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church and the Rev. Paul R. Mertzlufft, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church of New Paltz.

An informal get-acquainted period will be provided by the 70th anniversary committee of the church in the assembly room after the service.

Reformation Film

The Lutheran Laymen's League of the Mid-Atlantic District announces the showing of a special telecast entitled What Was It All About? It will be released by 380 television stations throughout the United States and Canada during the week of Oct. 29.

Locally it will be viewed on Station WPIX, channel 11, on Saturday morning, Nov. 4 at 8:30 a. m.

The program is part of the observance of the 450th anniversary of Martin Luther's Reformation, which began in 1517. Its purpose is to explain the theological reasons which lay behind the work of the 16th century reformer.

Dedication Service For Mt. Marion Site

The new Christian education building of the Plattekill Reformed Church, Mt. Marion will be dedicated in special services 3 p.m. Sunday.

Dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Dr. Winfield Burggraaff, director of editorial services for the Board of Education of the Reformed Church in America. The Church and Its Teaching Ministry will be his topic.

The Rev. Donald E. Hicks, pastor of the Woodstock Reformed Church and stated clerk of the Mid-Hudson Classis will deliver the scripture lesson. The Rev. William Babinsky, president of the Classis will lead the congregation in the Litany of Dedication. The Rev. Milton Ortquist of Beacon, representing the Particular Synod of New York will lead the Prayer of Dedication.

Also participating will be the Rev. Alfred Liberatore of the Saugerties Council of Churches; the Rev. Robert Miller of the Grace Community Church, Lake Katrine, and Frederic Snyder, well known lecturer and world traveler.

Keys of the new structure will be presented to the consistory by Walter Wolfeil, contractor. Receiving the keys will be Robert Martin, an elder.

The building which is electrically heated, contains a study, 11 classrooms, a large fellowship hall, kitchen and a large multiple use meeting room.

A coffee hour and open house in the new building will be held after the service which will be conducted by the Rev. John A. Needham Jr., pastor.

Church Council Plans Annual Meeting, Events

The Kingston Area Council of Churches at the monthly meeting Thursday night at the Port Ewen Reformed Church mapped out a number of activities for the remainder of the year.

The Church World Service used clothing drive will culminate Saturday Nov. 4. Good, used clothing will be collected at the member churches prior to that date.

The annual meeting will be held at the First Baptist Church, Albany Avenue at Broadway, Friday, Nov. 17. Speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Vladimir Hartman, executive director of the Albany Capital Area council of Churches. Reservations may be made by contacting Harold Van Allen, council president or the First Baptist Church office.

Recent youth activities of the council included an Up with the People musical presentation at the Fair Street Reformed Church earlier this month. The Rev. Edwin C. Coon, chairman of the Christian Education committee, reports the response was very good.

A youth meeting will be held at St. Joseph's School Sunday, Nov. 5, at 2 p.m. in an effort to develop a singing group comparable to the Poughkeepsie group which performed at the presentation.

Catholic Priest to Be Reformation Day Guest

The Rev. Joseph W. Hickey, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz, will be guest speaker at Reformation Sunday services in Redeemer Lutheran Church, New Paltz.

The Rev Paul R. Mertzlufft, pastor of the Paltz Lutheran church, in making the announcement said "We are pleased to have Father Hickey with us on this particular day which marks the celebration of the 450th anniversary of the Reformation. One of the aims of our observance throughout the whole church has been to intensify dialogues to help heal the breach of the 16th century and seek better understanding with Roman Catholics and other Protestants."

Special services will be at 11 a.m. with regular service of communion at 8:30 a.m.

Father Hickey, who has served St. Joseph's Church since 1959, has been active in college work through the Neuman Club. He was instrumental in setting up the New Paltz Student Christian Center, an ecumenical approach to the student ministry at New Paltz State University College.

Policies on Dead Children In Florida Poisonings Aired

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — The father of seven children killed by insecticide poisoning said in a sworn statement Friday he took out $1,000 double indemnity life insurance policies on each child the night before the tragedy.

But the insurance agent said the policies did not take effect because the father couldn't afford the first week's premium, slightly under $4, according to Asst. State Atty. John Treadwell.

Treadwell said James Richardson, 32, made his sworn statement during an investigation into the deaths of Richardson's seven children.

Insurance agent Gerald P. Purvis said Richardson tried Tuesday night to borrow the premium from him but was refused.

Treadwell said a determination on whether the poisoning of the children—ages 2 to 8—was accidental must wait until pathology reports are finished sometime next week.

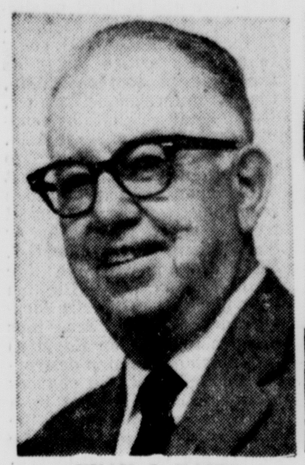

At issue, Treadwell said, is whether the children took parathion by eating it or by absorbing it through the skin. The insecticide kills either way.

"This is going to be a long investigation before we get at the truth," Treadwell said. "At the moment we're hurting for hard evidence."

The children were stricken Wednesday after eating from tin plates a lunch of grits, beans, rice and pork prepared by their parents Tuesday night.

Also under investigation was the discovery Thursday by sheriff's deputies of an open two-pound sack of parathion in a shed near the converted hotel called "the Quarters" where the Richardsons lived in a small apartment.

Attended National Confab

EVAN J. DAVIS

WILLIAM WHALEN

Two city men, Evan J. Davis, chairman of the city Human Relations Commission and William P. Whalen, juvenile aid officer, attended a conference, Oct. 22-27, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, on police and community relations, in Point Pleasant Beach, N. J.

Howard J. Devaney, a former police officer, and director of the National Institute on Police and Community Relations, presided at the meeting in the Beacon Manor Hotel and Motel.

Law enforcement officials and community relations personnel from all over the nation particpated in the six-day conference.

Speakers included Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, who spoke on "The Police and Community Conflict."

The opening dinner, Oct. 22, was presided over by New Jersey Supreme Court Judge Walter H. Conklin. Dr. Sterling W. Brown, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, also addressed the participants.

Rhinebeck's Aim: Better School Link

Two groups in Rhinebeck are working toward a better means of communication between the school and the community—the Board of Education and a citizen's group headed by Richard May.

Lack of communication was one of the reasons put forth as being responsible for this year's taxpayer's dilemma over the proposed school budgets which they voted down three times. A fourth referendum is upcoming, Nov. 14.

Meanwhile, the board "wishes to pursue every available means toward improving communications with the community on school issues, a spokesman said and has called a public meeting for Monday night. Citizens are acked to submit questions to the board either by mail, telephone or in person.

The citizen's group has placed question boxes at various places, the library and bank. All questions must pertain to school issues.

"Each of us will be better able to cast our ballot Nov. 14 if we have a complete understanding of this problem," May advocates. "We all need the answers. The question now is getting all the questions."

The petition to come before the voters calls for $67,000 to be added to the present austerity budget of $1,300,677.61 for instructional services, transportation, operation and maintenance of plant and $1,000 for inter-fund transfer for cafeteria.

Poughkeepsie UAW Pickets In Jersey

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — The headquarters of the United Auto Workers local at the Ford plant here was picketed Friday by six officers of the UAW local at Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

The representatives of Local 297 in Poughkeepsie sought support for a 10-month-old strike against the Federal Schatz Bearing Co.

Information about the strike was being distributed to all auto plant locals, said Harry Ackert, spokesman for Local 297, which represents about 800 Schatz employes.

The company, he said, makes ball bearings for the Big Three auto companies.

Ackert said his men earned about $2.66 an hour, below the national average for auto plants, and did not receive UAW pension benefits or cost-of-living increments.

Aaron Resnick, president of Mahwah Local 906, which has 4,200 members, said his local's recourse would be to put pressure on UAW's international office to tell the auto companies not to buy Schatz products.

Uses Hula Hoop

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The hula hoop is doing its part for the national defense.

Amado Chavez had to establish a high magnetic field by use of a transmitting antenna as part of his duties at Sandia Corp., a weapons contractor of the Atomic Energy Commission. He said he needed something rigid, nonconductive and, probably, expensive to cover a loop of wires.

One night at home he watched his daughter, Francine, 13, twirling her pink hula hoop, and he took the hoop to work with him the next day.

Javits Hawk, Stratton Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jcaob K. Javits, R-N.Y., has switched from dove to hawk on the Vietnam War, says Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.

Stratton added that he approved.

"We've been hearing a lot lately about former hawks turning dove," Stratton said. "It is especially reassuring now to hear a dove turning hawk. For Sen. Javits, this is a prodigal homecoming.

"He supported the administration's Vietnam policy in 1966 but deserted to the doves in 1967. We welcome him home again."

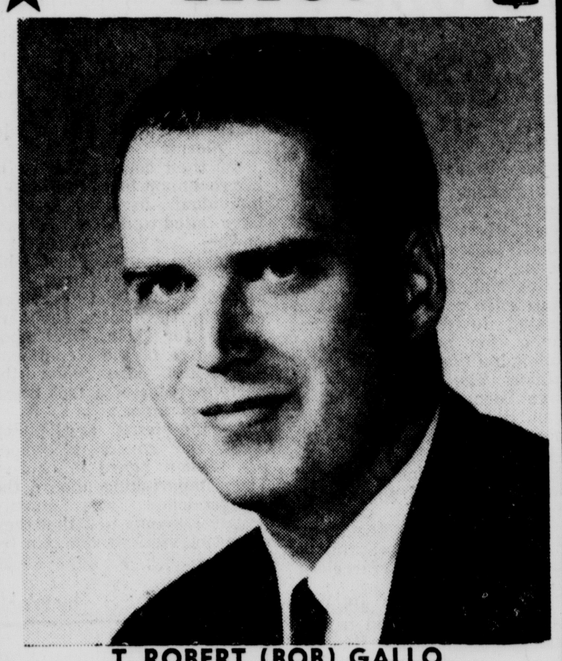

Stratton said his comments were prompted by Javits' Senate speech Thursday in which Javits praised formation of a committee by former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Risenhower to mobilize support for President Johnson's conduct of the Vietnam War.

Find Stolen Car In Hurley Town

A stolen auto, reported missing this morning from Kingston, was recovered by sheriff's deputies several hours later abandoned along DeWitt Mills Road, Town of Hurley, officials disclosed.

Joseph DeAngelis of 433 Abeel Street listed his green and white station wagon missing early Saturday, city police said. DeAngelis told headquarters the car was taken from in front of his home during the night.

Deputies James Malesky and Henry Newman, acting on information filed with law enforcement agencies, located the auto in a ditch around 5:30 a. m., the sheriff's office said.

An investigation is being pressed to locate the unknown thief, deputies said.

Ticket Paltz Driver After Speed Chase

David Oliver, Plains Road, New Paltz, was ticketed by sheriff's deputies, state police and New Paltz police on on six counts following a high speed chase early this morning, it was learned.

Oliver, released on $250 cash bail, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Parks Glenn. He is slated to appear in justice court Monday afternoon.

Police said Oliver was charged with reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, failure to obey orders, speeding, running a red light and unlicensed operator. He was apprehended after a three-mile chase, deputies declared.

New Paltz police said Oliver was first observed along Main Street traveling at a high rate of speed. They said he ran a red light, struck a pole and headed out Route 208. Police gave chase.

According to officials, Oliver was finally caught after he turned into Wood Road. Police said he is 26 years old.

Today In History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Oct. 28, the 301st day of 1967. There are 64 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history.

On this date in 1962, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev backed down in the Cuban confrontation and said he had ordered the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba.

On this date:

In 1636, Harvard College was founded in Massachusetts.

In 1776, the Battle of White Plains, N.Y., was fought during the Revolutionary War.

In 1886, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor.

In 1922, Benito Mussolini staged a Fascist march on Rome.

In 1929, losses in quoted values on the New York Stock Exchange exceeded $10 billion.

In 1958, the Roman Catholic patriarch of Venice was elected pope and took the name of John XXIII .

Ten years ago: The United States and Britain agreed in principle to share secrets in the future development of nuclear warheads.

Five years ago—The French voted on a referendum to amend the constitution to provide for direct election of France's president by the people.

One year ago — Communist China announced it had successfully tested a guided missile with a nuclear warhead.

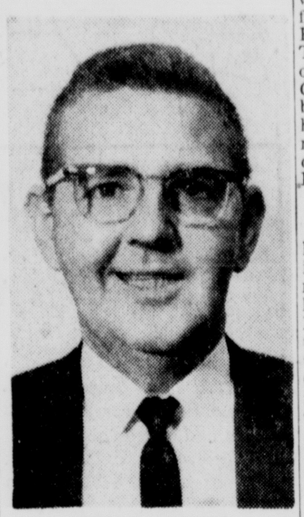

City Hall Plan

The Bechtold-Smith Plan for city hall, published in yesterday's Freeman, referred only to the cost of parking and office relocation at the hall on Broadway.

Bechtold (C. John, Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor) and Smith (Louis J., Republican - Conservative candidate for alderman-at-large) came up with a figure of $15,500 for the purchase of land and the renovation of the third floor of City Hall.

In their release the candidates did specify what over costs would be in renovating City Hall or what they would be.

Likens County Needs to Those Of 1776 Year

JOHN J. LIGGAN

"It was taxation, without representation that pointed out the need for change and led up to this document," stated John J. Liggan, candidate for Councilman in Rosendale, as he displayed the Declaration of Independence before a recent meeting in Rosendale.

"Now, the the people are becoming more aware, it is taxation without proper representation that indicates the crying need for change here in Ulster County," and he added "all over the nation, there seems to be a deterioration of American principles. Patriotism is becoming a dirty word. It is time we take a stand, and start at the town level and elect officials with principles and integrity," Liggan concluded.

Liggan was educated at Pace College, where he majored in accounting and business administration. He had further studies in accounting procedures and economics at the University of North Dakota and special studies through the American College of Life Underwriters. He is presently in business as an insurance consultant with Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Liggan resides in the Binnewater-Cottekill area of Rosendale Township with his wife and family. He is the father of eight children, the oldest three are college educated, and married, the next oldest, Matthew, is in his last year at the State University at Cobleskill. There are four children at home, one in high school and three attend St. Peter's School in Rosendale.

Liggan is a former chairman of the community fund drive for the Town of Rosendale. He has been a member of the Ulster County Democratic Committee for four years, and is a member of St. Peter's Holy Name Society.

Man Jailed, Threatened Family Charged

A Harwich Street man is confined to the county jail in lieu of $500 bail after allegedly threatening his wife and children with a gun, sheriff's deputies report.

Charged with a protection violation is Donald Steward of 218 Harwich Street. He was arraigned before Eddyville Justice of the Peace Arthur Reilly.

Deputies said Steward threatened his family with pistols. They noted the matter was a Family Court affair.

The sheriff's office handles all Family Court arrests, a spokesman explained. He said the complaint was filed by Mrs. Steward in the court. Deputies stated a warrant for Steward's arrest was issued through that court.

According to officials, Steward cannot be charged with unlawful use of a firearm because he holds a pistol permit. However, a spokesman said the permit will undoubtedly be revoked.

Pumpkin Stolen

A super 118-pound pumpkin was reported stolen from the front porch of Paul Mills, 6 Washington Avenue, police declared. Police said that a second pumpkin, weighing 80 pounds, was left behind by the thief but that it will remain outside despite Mills' loss.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Crose, 80, of Alligerville, who died Tuesday at her home, were held today at 11 a. m. from the George J. Moylan Funeral Home in Stone Ridge. The Rev. Bruce Carlson, pastor of Rondout Valley Methodist Church, officiated. During the bereavement at the funeral home many friends called and many floral tributes were received. Burial was in the Pine Bush Cemetery in Kerhonkson.

Henry Meyer

Henry Meyer, 67, of Cottekill, died Friday night following a long illness. Born in Germany, he was the son of the late John and Katrina Rieken Meyer. Mr. Meyer was a retired liveryman for the Century Cement Manufacturing Co., and resided in Cottekill for 22 years. Surviving are his wife, the former Gesine Secker and three sons, John of Hauppauge, L. I.; Henry of Copiaque, L. I. and Herman of Kingston. In addition, two brothers and two sisters, all of Germany survive. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday, 9 a. m., at the George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Main Street, Rosendale. At 9:30 a. m. a Mass will be offered at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale. Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home today 7 to 9 p. m., and Sunday and Monday 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Foot Chase Ends in Death In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A 23-year-old man was wounded fatally today by a policeman's bullet when, police in suburban Cheektowaga said, an attempt was being made to arrest him for a traffic violation.

Charles Pfohl of Buffalo died in Meyer Memorial Hospital several hours after he was shot.

Police Chief Benedict Kostrzewski of Cheektowaga said Patrolman Richard Wipperman's service revolver discharged when he "made contact" with Pfohl after a foot chase.

The chief gave no details and declined to say whether the shooting was accidental.

He told this story:

Wipperman, a professional heavyweight boxer, and Patrolman William Kuczkowski of the nearby Sloan Police Department were on routine patrol when they spotted an automobile that failed to halt at a stop sign.

They gave chase, caught up with the car, were nearly forced off the road and then resumed the pursuit. The car ran into an embankment and the two occupants fled.

Kuczkowski caught one man and Wipperman chased after the other.

Wipperman, with his revolver in hand, overtook him.

It was then, the chief said, the weapon discharged.

Pfohl lived at 419 Fargo Ave.

Linda's Shower

NEW YORK (AP) — Lynda Bird Johnson was given some rare books, assorted recipes and a collection of kitchen utensils Friday night at a bridal shower that lasted nearly eight hours.

The affair for Lynda, who will marry Marine Corps Capt. Charles Robb in a White House ceremony Dec. 9, started out with the traditional hen party.

The males, among them her fiance, began arriving two hours later and the party continued until 1.30 a.m.

Over the course of the evening, said host John F. Fleming, a book collector there were 70 or 80 guests who dropped by his 14-room, 10th floor apartment on East 57th Street. It was all "gay, happy and magnificent," he said.

Seek Teeners In Reported Stolen Auto

Two unknown teenagers, sought as suspects in the theft of a car, reportedly entered a Malden gas station early today, ordered the tank filled and drove off without paying, a police bulletin disclosed.

The boys, last seen headed north on Route 9W, are wanted for questioning in the theft of a Town of Ulster auto. Ronald Riggins, Codwise Street, Town of Ulster, listed his car stolen last night.

According to police information, the suspects were allegedly operating the Riggins' vehicle when they failed to pay for their gas.

Memoriam

In loving memory of our son and brother, James A. Acker, who passed away one year ago today, October 28, 1967.
One lonely year has passed since that sad day,
That God called you home to rest.
In our memory you are near,
A heart so wonderfully kind,
So soft a voice, so sweet a smile;
An inspiration so worthwhile.
A sympathy so sure, so deep,
A love so wonderful to keep,
In our hearts, a memory is kept
Of a loving one, we'll never forget.

Set Clocks Back

Daylight saving time ends at 2 a. m. Sunday. When you retire this evening, turn your clock back one hour. The hour of sleep you gain is in compensation for the 60 minutes you lost in April when you turned your timepieces ahead.

In order to get back on standard time and get in tune with the rest of the folks, set your watches and clock back one hour when retiring tonight.

GOP Plan to End Draft

The 5.6 per cent military pay boost recently proposed by the House Armed Services Committee will raise the pay of a newly enlisted men in the armed services, including basic scale plus benefits, from $2,122 a year to $2,384, far short of the civilian minimum wage of $1.40 an hour for a 40-hour week at $2,912. It would take a 33 1/3 per cent raise to match the civilian minimum.

A group of 19 House Republicans plan to publish a book, "How to End the Draft," the main theme of which is that a military pay scale beginning at the civilian minimum wage is the first step to help reduce draft calls "right down to zero." They insist that as long as beginning servicemen get paid less than the civilian minimum wage required by law, there is no hope of ever getting rid of the draft.

The civilian minimum wage was recently upgraded, starting with $1 an hour for many who had not been covered before. Beginning military pay now exceeds this new civilian minimum of $2,080 a year for a 40-hour week at $1 an hour. But the group was thinking of the much wider minimum in general industry, and the fact that in a nearly full employment economy, the educated and skillful have a good chance of getting such better paid jobs.

We are not so sure that the enlistments would increase so rapidly as to eliminate the need for the draft, even if the beginning service pay compared with a minimum civilian wage. But it is worth a try. If it produces a professional Army as well as the professional Navy and Air Force we now have, largely through enlistments, it will eliminate much of the opposition to the war. It would be a morale builder worth the price.

2,000 Deaths a Week

Accidental deaths of all kinds decreased one per cent to 52,500 in the first half of this year, although motor vehicle fatalities remained unchanged at 23,600 for the same six months. That means accidental deaths of all kinds averaged more than 2,000 a week. Traffic deaths rise in the more hazardous second half of the year, when they bring up the average to 1,000 a week.

These figures were released by the National Safety Council to the 12,000 specialists in the prevention of accidents meeting this week in Chicago for the world's largest safety congress.

Headed by former Gov. Howard Pyle of Arizona, the council is best known for its exhortations to safe driving and holiday death forecasts. However, with the big increase in population and mounting leisure time have come a host of new hazards to life and limb, and these are more than doubling the accidental fatalities.

While the council continues to campaign for defensive driving—"improper driving of some kind is found in about 90 per cent of all traffic accidents and alcohol is a factor in perhaps 50 per cent of fatal accidents"—the council is shifting its emphasis.

Air embolism in scuba diving deaths, the perils of flammable fabrics including paper dresses, the 25 million power mowers in use, boating, skiing, sky diving, farm and industrial hazards, all now threaten the unwary. Caution is the watchword in just about every endeavor of man today.

Consumer Spending

A new quarterly survey, Consumer Buying Prospects, launched its first issue with some very optimistic forecasts for the next six months, as follows:

Consumers will increase their spending for new automobiles by 10 per cent and for major household durables by four per cent. And they will increase single-family housing starts by 14 per cent.

Consumer Buying Prospects is published by the Commercial Credit Company, one of the nation's three sales finance concerns. Data is obtained every three months from a random sample of some 15,000 households representing all 50 states and expertly screened.

Paul W. McCracken, one-time member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is the economic adviser to the company. With the forecast putting automobile buying for the next six months at $31.5 billion, or a rate of 9 million, household durables buying at $32.8 billion and housing starts at 900,000, consumer buying would confirm that the boom will continue well into 1968.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Underdogs Also Can Be Criminals

DETROIT — Sargent Shriver and the poverty war officials had called this a model city before the riots. Detroit received about $181 million in urban renewal and poverty funds in recent years. Last spring Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh boasted of this. But in only six days of burning, looting and ghastly mayhem in which 43 people were killed the rioters caused more property damage ($500 million) than all this Federal money combined.

Were money at the root of it, how do you explain that thousands rioting in this terrible fiesta of fire and violence were getting among the highest hourly wages in the world?

Like the Berlin Wall, the gutted area is something you have to see for yourself to get the full impact. Photographs are one thing; moving in the rubble in 100 square blocks is another.

The horrible scars do not quickly disappear. Stretching through the better part of a year, nearby Cleveland's Hough section's riot-torn buildings remained boarded up. Charred houses stood deserted, unused. Neighborhood merchants felt safe only by keeping guns in their pockets. Residents remained afraid to leave their homes at night.

There, too, as in Newark, Milwaukee, Cambridge, etc., or in Los Angeles' Watts where 34 people were killed and about $40 million of property destroyed, the destruction exceeded in a few days all the Federal aid and poverty grants through the previous years.

Meanwhile, is the war on poverty really a war or is it a racket? All good intentions notwithstanding, the political tang is unmistakable—even in the politicians' statistics.

Presidential candidate John F. Kennedy said at Charleston, S. C., on October 10, 1960: "Five million Americans go to bed hungry every night on a substandard diet. Subsequently, the New Frontier began a multibillion-dollar poverty war.

Sen. John O. Pastore (D., R.I.) told the Senate the other day: "We have 29 million Americans living in poverty."

Whoops! Poverty has increased 600 per cent.

In simple truth, many politicians have a vested interest in talking about poverty and pushing the idea that poverty dominates our country. As one result, they constantly have trouble staying any place near the facts, and their figures mean precisely nothing. They spend — we pay. The war on poverty has now bureaucratized itself to include 150 Washington bureaus and 170 separate programs in its confusions. Among Shriver's poverty warriors, there are 25 executives on the Office of Economic Opportunity payroll whose salary exceeds that of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commanding our troops in Vietnam.

Shriver's first anti-poverty bill passed the House three years ago under the leadership of Rep. Phil Landrum (D., Ga.). Today even Congressman Landrum accuses Shriver of "monstrous mismanagement" and "stupid judgment." "You might say my baby has been suborned," Landrum said in a House debate. Others suggest that Shriver go off to India, like Mia Farrow, for mystic meditation with Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

We should also clearly understand that self-serving politicians are themselves responsible, and should be held accountable, for contributing to such counterproductive horrors as the disaster here. Because the ethnic vote is decisive in Northern power centers, typified by Detroit, they had unconscionably pandered to the ethnic vote regardless of the consequences.

President Johnson, no less, stated to a group of lawbreaking demonstrators in August, 1965: "I am proud to salute you as a fellow revolutionary," saying this hard on the heels of a similar ethnic pitch by rival Robert F. Kennedy. And, quite typically, until the roof fell in on his own city, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley was blaming the riots in the South on "bigoted politicians down there," likewise echoing irrepressible Bobby, who was on a self-serving junket to South Africa, advising South Africa how to handle its race problems to the tune of ethnic headlines he garnered here at home.

Such politicians have helped to change our great country from a melting pot into a pressure cooker. Their political venality helped mightily to sow the tragic whirlwind being reaped today while they now contrive to duck all blame.

They're on the side of the underdog — and who isn't? But what they have so long refused to admit, until our alarmed country forced them to admit it, is that some underdogs also can be criminals.

200,000 GIs in Europe

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK (NEA)—More than 200,000 American troops are stationed in Europe at a time when United States resources are increasingly taxed by the war in Vietnam.

Despite repeated requests by the Johnson administration, the NATO allies have given little or no practical help to contain the Communist in Southeast Asia. They expect the United States to defend Europe but consider the Vietnamese conflict as an "American affair."

When will Johnson tell NATO clearly and firmly that America is no longer in a position to police Europe and at the same time fight aggressian in Southeast Asia?

Even the West Germans have adopted a posture of neutrality in the Vietnamese conflict. They stand most to gain from the American presence in Europe. They are eager to keep every single GI on their soil while they search for ways and means to reach an understanding with Russia. But to impress Moscow with their neutrality and independence and to appease French President DeGaulle, they are increasingly critical of the war in Vietnam.

According to Helmut Schmidt, an influential West German politician, the United States has "no convincing political formula" for a solution of the Vietnam problem. He recently visited Washington and returned to Bonn with a full bag of critical statements.

Schmidt is no ordinary politician. He is the leader of the Social Democratic deputies in Bonn's Bundestag. He is a close associate of Willy Brandt, West German vice chancellor and foreign minister.

Like Brandt, Schmidt is eager for a rapprochment with Russia. He is obviously convinced that he could soften Moscow's policy on Bonn and German unity by attacking American policy on Vietnam.

Taking their cue from De Gaulle, an increasing number of West German leaders no longer draw the parallel between Vietnam and Berlin they did in 1965. Then they welcomed the escalation of the war as a demonstration of the reliability of American guarantees. Now, Bonn's politicians see U. S. commitment in Southeast Asia as a "tragic involvement."

Even more disturbing are reports that the West German government has been conferring secretly with representatives of Red China about improving trade relations.

Not long ago a West German trade commission was in Peking to discuss arrangements for building a steel rolling mill at a cost of $196 million. The project was to have been financed by German, Belgian (another NATO member) and French concerns. West Germany has become Red China's biggest single European trading partner.

Why then, should the Johnson administration continue to maintain a costly force in Europe?

The North Atlantic alliance was originally created to defend Europe against Russia. Today the Russians are too busy with their Red Chinese enemy and their economic difficulties to dream of military adventures in Europe. Moscow's military strategists never relished the idea of a possible conflict on two fronts —in the Far East and West.

Europe will not be in danger in the foreseeable future. The crucial issue for the United States in Vietnam and Southeast Asia.

Near East Crisis Revives Danger of U.S.-Soviet Clash

WASHINGTON—Events in the Near East are rapidly getting so out of hand that the United States and Soviet Russia could find themselves in a disastrous confrontation leading to World War III.

The most dangerous development is the inflamation of Arab and Israeli public opinion to the point where it has become almost impossible for moderates on either side to exert influence.

Premier Eshkol on the Israeli side, a moderate, has found is impossible to hold back his defense minister, Gen Moshe Dayan, a brilliant field commander but a rabblerouser and something of a grandstander. On the Arab side, President Nasser, much more moderate than his Western critics realize, finds it impossible to hold back his own military leaders. He is now as unpopular with the Egyptian Army as was King Farouk whom Nasser kicked off the throne after Egypt's defeat by Israel in 1948.

Since then Egypt has suffered two more defeats at the hands of Israle, plus a defeat by Yemen. Today Egyptian officers are back from Yeman after having their ears cut off and vital organs maimed by Yemenite guerrillas. They are smarting with rage against Nasser and ready to assassinate him the minute he wavers in standing up to Israel.

The suicide of Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer was induced because he was caught in a plot to assassinate his onetime friend, now considered the enemy of the army, Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Last summer King Hassan of Morocco, a moderate Arab and a friend of the United States, offered to mediate the Israeli-Arab dispute—if there was any chance of success. He warned, however, that he did not want to get bogged down in a futile negotiations which would get nowhere. The State Department in all frankness had to advise that the situation was hopeless.

It has become worse. In Israel, the onetime altruism of the people has given way to a hard cynicism and a belief that Israel's only hope is naked force. The Israelis have seen their onetime friend Gen. de Gaulle line up with the Arabs for the sake of Algerian oil. They were startled by the fact that the United States hesitated during the June showdown over the Gulf of Aqaba where John Foster Dulles had given them a written pledge that this would remain an international waterway.

The Israeli cynicism is best represented by Moshe Dayan, the one-eyed general who led the Israeli forces over an old geologists' trail through the Sinai Desert to a quick victory over Egypt in 1956 and whose surprise air attacks on Egypt and Jordan airfields paralyzed those two countries last June.

En Eye for an Eye

Gen. Dayan was taken into the Eshkol cabinet during the crisis last spring in order to win the support of the aggressive followers of ex-Premier Ben-Gurion. They believe in the Old Testament creed of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth as the only doctrine the Arabs understand.

And today large segments of the Israeli people agree with him.

Premier Eshkol, a moderate, has had to go along whether he agreed or not. It has been Eshkol's policy in the past to try to win the friendship of moderate Arabs such as President Bourguiba of Tunisia, already a courageous force for peace; King Hassan of Morocco, King Idris of Libya; and King Hussein of Jordan. Hussein is known as one who believed Jordan and Israel must work together if there is to be progress in the Near East. But Hussein for all practical purposes is now a prisoner of fanatic Arab-haters of Israel and would be assassinated as his grandfather King Abdullah was if he agreed to peace talks.

A little over a year ago in Tel Aviv I asked ex-Premier Ben-Gurion when and how peace could come to the Near East. His reply was brief and to the point. "When the United States and Russia decide there shall be peace."

Ben-Gurion was right then and he is right today.

The tragedy is that Russia and the United States, instead of exercising a restraining influence, may be sucked into war. The anti-American clique in the Kremlin has been determined to rearm the Arabs in retaliation for their defeat last June and indirect retaliation for our war in Vietnam. If the United States is going to send its armed forces as far away as Southeast Asia, the Kremlin clique argues, Russian can retaliate by sending arms to Neartheast Asia.

They know that we are so bogged down in Vietnam that we are powerless to do much regarding such potential trouble spots as Berlin or Suez. Meanwhile, as the U.S. Sixth Fleet ploughs in the Mediterranean with a Russian fleet three times its size lurking in the Black Sea, plus Russian missiles on Egyptian warships and Russian destroyers in Port Said, the chances of an accident leading to a confrontation between the world's two great nuclear powers are very good indeed.

In the opinion of this observer, we are approaching as precarious an impasse as the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

North Vietnamese Incompetence

Intelligence reports warn that American success in evading Soviet anti-aircraft fire and ground-to-air missiles should not be blamed upon the equipment but upon North Vietnamese incompetence. The North Vietnamese have such a shortage of trained technicials that the Russians have been extremely reluctant to entrust their best equipment to them.

Intelligence reports also caution that American superiority over Soviet-built jets doesn't mean the Russian planes are inferior. The North Vietnamese pilots simply aren't strong enough physically to withstand the strains of supersonic flight under combat conditions.

Myth About Unity Among GOP Governors Is Buried at Sea

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands (NEA)—The myth that the 25 Republican governors can serve as a united force in their party is being buried at sea in this 59th National Governors Conference.

A governor's aide who emerged from the last of many GOP caucuses held aboard the cruise ship SS Independence muttered:

They are more united than ever. I predict they will still be this way when they meet again at Palm Beach in December and then next year at Cincinnati."

The myth probably never had more than a thin thread of plausibility. Most of the governors are continuously diverted by their own nagging problems, which have increased mightly since the Republican group formally organized four years ago in Miami Beach.

More than a year later in Denver, stunned as they were by their party's huge defeat in 1964, they persuaded themselves they could become at once a driving and leavening force in a massive reconstruction effort.

Some of this rebuilding has occurred, as the party's impressive 1966 election victories attest. The governors themselves have been among the beneficiaries, since they now number 25 against a mere 16 when they first got together in Florida.

But their contribution to the improvement has been largely individual. As a group they have failed to develop and use power.

The consequences of this failure, most strikingly displayed in this floating conference in the Caribbean, are serious for their effect upon the course of the Republican party—and also upon the party's choice of a 1968 presidential nominee.

As the issue and policy level, the governors' voices are seldom heard in chorus. Their undertaking aboard the Independence was mostly negative, seeing to it that they were not victimized again by another Johnson - sponsored Vietnam resolution such as the governors of both parties have supported again and again and again since 1965.

The only GOP policy utterances that make any dent at all are those of the so-called Republican Co - ordinating Committee, on which not even a third of the party's governors are represented. They are swamped by congressional leaders and former officeholders like Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Most of the Republican governors being moderates, the myth had it that they would get together in a grand show of unity and endorse for president Michigan's Gov. George Romney or some other.

The real chances of this happening were never more than minimal. And Romney's difficulties as a candidate, which clearly have put many of the governors off, are only a part of the story.

The underlying fact is that the Republican governors lack really forceful leadership. They did not have it in Denver in December, 1964, and they did not gain it by adding eight to their number in 1966.

Tables of organization have not done the job for them. The myth of unified governor power is rooted in the spectacular effort GOP governors made for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in the 1952 nomination fight. That effort was the consequence of an unprecedented virtuoso performance by the then Gov. Dewey, whose leadership, personal organization and intra-party use of power could not possibly be matched in 1967-68.

Many GOP governors now expect Romney to fail. If he does, it is plain from observing them in this setting that they have not conceived step one in a plan to promote the candidacy of New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller or any other moderate.

And, floundering here in disarray, they face the final final irony that one of their number, California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, might get the nomination, not as their choice but as the darling of the party elements they originally got together to oppose.

Editor, The Freeman

In the past, many people have expressed their displeasure with the amount of money that was paid to the Constitutional Delegates for a part-time job. I think it is time to clear the air and thank these individuals for a job well done. I would especially like to thank Mr. S. James Mathews for the time and effort he has devoted in the explanation of the entire Constitution.

Mr. Mathews above all others, in my opinion, is definitely outstanding, by the method in which he has presented all segments of the Constitution to the people of this area, not taking a stand for or against the new document. He has presented to the people all the facts clearly and distinctly and has requested that the people examine these facts for themselves and, in turn, render their own decision on the new Constitution. He has not attempted to influence the people to accept this document, nor has he sought to degrade the new Constitution like some of the other delegates have aspired to do.

Mr. Mathews in this particular task has revealed himself as representative of the people rather than a partisan politician.

Very truly yours,
FRANK T. ROEDELL
Ulster County Lay Coordinator for the Repeal of the Blaine Amendment

Saugerties Teacher Assoc. Not Bargainers

Milton Summers of Saugerties School faculty told the Freeman Thursday that the Saugerties Teachers Association has not been recognized as a bargaining agent.

In a press release published Oct. 20, issued by Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of schools, it was stated: The Saugerties Teachers Association has requested that it be recognized as the negotiating agent for teachers within the system.

"By-laws which provide for such recognition were adopted by the Saugerties Board of Education."

Summers stated further that the Teachers Association had twice requested recognition as bargaining agent.

Tonight, rain mixed with snow will occur from the Central Plateau eastward to the Central Plains. Snow and snow flurries are forecast for the Great Lakes region, and from the State of Pennsylvania to Maine. Fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail elsewhere in the nation. Colder weather is expected from the Ohio Valley northeastward through New England, and from the Northern Rockies to the Pacific Northwest. Little change anticipated elsewhere. Minimum temperature forecasts include: Atlanta 40, Boston 40, Chicago 39, Cleveland 31, Denver 28, Duluth 28, Ft. Worth 57 Jacksonville 48 Little Rock 38 Los Angeles 58, Miami 67, New York 37, Phoenix 52, San Francisco 48, Seattle 44, St. Louis 38, and Washington 35.

Greimel Scores GOP 'Boycott'

Frank Greimel, Saugerties Conservative town chairman, stated that "the empty chairs reserved for the Republican County Legislature candidates, were evidence of blatant disregard for the voters, at the debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters on Oct. 11 at the Flamingo Restaurant."

"The large turnout that might," he continued, "showed that the voters of Saugerties are, indeed, very much interested in hearing what the candidates have to say at such a gathering."

"We believe," Greimel said, "that the apparent strategy of the Republican town chairman to have his party's candidates boycott this type of meeting is receiving much unfavorable voter comment."

Greimel further remarked, "We are glad to see that a more vigorous campaign is being waged this year by all parties than has ever occurred in the history of our town, from the number of billboards, signs, posters, newspaper articles and door-to-door calls by the various candidates."

"However," he continued, "signs and billboards cannot speak, and door-to-door canvassing is not the same as presenting one's views before a public audience of divergent opinions.

"Every candidate for public office should be willing to stand up before the public at a forum conducted by a non-partisan organization, and state his views and answer questions from the audience," Greimel stated.

"A candidate should not decline to say in public what he is supposedly saying to the voters individually," he declared.

"The League of Women Voters is to be commended," Greimel said, "for making it possible for the county legislature candidates to present their views."

"However," he continued, "the candidates for our town offices have not been given the same opportunity by any non-partisan organization, thus far, and we very much deplore this situation.

"There is still time for this, and we think it could be arranged," Greimel said, adding, "The Saugerties Conservative Party town office candidates are all willing to be heard and questioned at any public forum."

Candidate

RICHARD J. LUTHER

Richard J. Luther, candidate for the Ulster County legislature on the Conservative Party line, has taken to task those who are calling the position of legislator a "Cinderella job" or "plum," according to a spokesman for the Conservative Party.

"I prefer to think of the position as that of an early-tage Cinderella," stated Luther, "where the childhood favorite is a hard-working person, striving mightily to do the many chores assigned to her."

"That is what a good county legislator should do," Luther continued, "strive mightily to do the many chores associated with the task, and that is what I promise to do if elected to this public office."

Luther is a member of the Mid- Hudson Patterns for Progress, a private enterprise organization to promote regional planning for growth in an environment of quality.

"We must pursue a balanced program of development," Luther stated. "We need to reconcile the creative strength of private enterprise with foresighted regional planning," he explained.

A native of Cortland, Luther attended high school and college there. He has taken advanced study at SUCC, Boston University, Russell Sage and West Chester State College, West Chester, Pa., in addition to in-service courses at the local school system.

An elementary school teacher by profession, Luther has been employed by the Saugerties Central Schools since Oct., 1960. He has taught fifth grade at the Main Street School for the past six years. Last year he was a candidate for the Jaycees "Young Teacher of the Year" award.

An avid sports fan, he was for five years the sports columnist for the Catskill Mountain Star. He has served as movie photographer for the SHS athletic teams at various times. He has been associated with Radio and has done publicity work for several organizations.

Luther resides with his wife, the former Carole Finger, at 9 Prospect Street, Saugerties.

Frank Greimel, Saugerties Conservative Town Chairman, commented this week "Jim Luther is highly regarded as a candidate by those who know him well, and he is also known to be the type of person who 'looks for work' after landing a job."

The meeting will be for the purpose of receiving and opening bids for the next stage of construction for the building program. This stage will involve a complete unified heating system for all church buildings, combining of the church and chapel with the provision of a new entry way, church office facilities and pastor's study, as well as new restroom facilities.

Reformation

Teachers and officers of Atonement Sunday School met Tuesday to plan for the annual Christmas Program. During the Advent season the pupils will receive dime saver banks for Lutheran World Action, to aid in helping the world's neediest and encourage the children in concern for others. Tentative date for the program will be Sunday, Dec. 17 at 7 p. m.

Sunday at the 8 and 11 a. m. service the 450th Anniversary of The Reformation will be observed. The sermon will stress Luther's theme, "Salvation through Christ by faith, and the faithful application of Scriptural truths in worship and life." Louis Vogel of Woodland Park will give a five minute address on the work of the church.

Turkey Supper

First Congregational Church turkey supper will be held Saturday.

Sunday the young people of the church will canvass for funds for the alleviation of hunger among the world's disadvantaged people. The drive will begin at 1 p. m.

The church world service clothing drive will be concluded Nov. 6. Clothing and blankets especially, are still needed.

Jaycee Judges

Saugerties Jaycees will be judges at Sunday's Battle of the Bands at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

Eleven bands will participate in the American Legion sponsored event. They will be judged on appearance, showmanship and sound.

Bennett School Book Fair Termed Success

According to a spokesman at the Reginald R. Bennett School in Boiceville the annual "open house and book fair" held recently, was "an overwhelming success."

Reportedly, a record number of people attended the first school event of the 1967-68 season.

Meeting in the All-Purpose Room, Mrs. J. Moses, P-TA president, announced that the State P-TA Convention, held at Saratoga, voted to oppose the proposed New York State Constitution and informed the audience that the Bennett P-TA would endeavor to secure pamphlets concerning the new Constitution which would be sent to parents via the school children.

The proposed Bennett P-TA budget for the new school year, prepared by the committee on budget and finance, was voted on and approved.

Room mothers were introduced. Room mothers relieve the teachers of many other duties in their schedules and they provide assistance for field trips and room parties. The room mothers also assist with plays and assemblies, open house, opening days of kindergarten in the fall, and registration for kindergarten in the spring.

Bennett Principal Ronald Vanni was introduced and, after presenting the teachers to the parents, went on to emphasize that "teaching (was) not an easy nine to four job but one that required many hours of outside class preparation, paper correcting, and meeting attendance.

The Taconic district fall workshop, held at the Holiday Inn in New Paltz recently, was attended by three Bennett P-TA members: Mrs. J. Moses, president; Mrs. M. Malek, historian; and Mrs. L. Dodge, publicity chairman. Informative workshops, smoking and health and legislation, and constitutional information were presented.

The Women's Guild for Christian Service are now selling tickets to the annual ham supper which will be held Saturday evening, Nov. 11. Serving will begin at 5 p. m. The bazaar will open at 10 a. m.

Po'keepsie: No Parade On Halloween

Poughkeepsie will have no public Halloween parade this year because of supervisory problems.

Making that fact known, William G. Beal, recreation superintendent said, "We just can't cope with the many situations that arise during the festivities. The fire and police departments had worked with the Recreation Commission for several years arranging for the annual parade that topped off with the awarding of prizes to lucky costume wearers and cider and doughnuts.

Beal said he had made the decision after conferring with other city departments involved and it was agreed to cancel plans for the parade next week.

Beal cited instances in the last two years where uniforms were torn, band instruments damaged and city employes injured.

"Two years ago a man was hit in the head with a bottle and suffered serious injuries," Beal said. "Last year judges on the reviewing stand narrowly missed getting pelted with eggs."

VOTE FOR REPRESENTATION ON THE TOWN BOARD

* Town Board Meetings should be open for public discussion. Citizens should be allowed to ask questions, make suggestions and comments without having to submit a request a week before the meeting.
* Our community should make use of all qualified citizens without regard to political party affiliation. The present adiministration runs a closed club. If elected, the Democratic Town Board members will put the welfare of the Town ahead of party. Appointive offices will be filled on the basis of qualification alone.
* As the Town grows the need for an effective Town Planning Board and Zoning Ordinance has become an absolute must. The long grey line of Republican Administrations has watched the choking traffic, the mixture of shopping areas with heavy industry, the spread of junkyards and smelled the dirty air for ten long years and have done nothing. The Democratic candidates for the Town Board pledge themselves to getting a reasonable zoning ordinance adopted now!

Reading Really Is A Lot Like Hunting

By The Reading Laboratory
(Excerpted from the World Publishing Company Book, "Study Faster and Retain More." Illustrations by Roy Doty).

After you've summarized the textbook, you're ready to start on the first chapter. Begin with a rapid survey of the main ideas in the chapter: look at the maps and graphs; read the picture captions and read the largest size bold type. Even if your chapter is 50 pages, it won't take you more than 5 or 10 minutes to survey for the main idea.

Stop for a minute after the first survey and try to place the chapter into the context of the book as a whole. Ask yourself how important the chapter is, what effects the material will have on the development of subsequent chapters.

Then survey again. Cover all of the bold print this time. You'll begin to get a stronger grasp of the main ideas; it'll only take another couple of minutes. And then survey again, just reading the first sentences of each paragraph. You'll start to pick up the secondary ideas.

After your third survey, skim through the entire text very rapidly. Don't pay much attention to details; just get a stronger picture of the subordinate thought flows. Be sure you place them in the context of the main ideas.

One more skimming is all that's necessary. This time make a light pencil mark next to important details that may require memorization before an exam.

And that's all there is to it.

Notice, you should never read through every word of the chapter from beginning to end. Chances are, that kind of reading will take a long time and get you confused; you'll end up with a maze of facts and no idea what the entire chapter is about.

But by surveying the chapter several times, digging a little deeper each time, you'll always get a clear picture of everything in the chapter.

The best way to be sure you're reading actively is to develop yourself into a questioning reader. Before you start, quiz yourself: What do you think you know about the topic? What do you expect this chapter to add to your knowledge?

During your first survey, try to answer the questions, Who? What? Where? When? Why? How? On the second survey, ask the same questions, but answer the ones you didn't get the first time around.

By your third chapter survey you should have particular questions on the chapter to be answered. During the rapid reading of the entire text, turn the first sentence of each paragraph into a question — just invert it — and answer it from the body of the paragraph. And then you're ready for the details — ask yourself which details can you figure out for yourself. Which ones need to be memorized?

It's not really important which questions you ask. (Some students find role-playing very effective. If you were the Duke of Wellington, how would you attack Napoleon?) But it is important that you ask questions, that you're active, involved and thinking.

Four for Future

When Abraham Lincoln delivered his inaugural address, four future presidents of the United States stood on the platform near him: Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Benjamin Harrison.

Wedding Bells Are Ringing

Miss Sherry Hope Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Kerr, 49 Appletree Drive, Saugerties, was married Saturday, Oct. 21, to Joseph Cameron Abrami, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Candrilli, 52 Thompson Street, Catskill.

The Rev. Joseph Rainear of Saugerties Methodist Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Robert Gilbert sang traditional wedding selections, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Jane Tonneson. White gladioli decorated the altar and satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a peau de soie fitted gown fashioned with long tapered sleeves. An A-line pleat formed a controlled skirt and a full chapel train. The gown and train were accented with Chantilly lace. A two-tier crown of Chantilly lace and crystals was attached to a four-tier French imported silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.

Mrs. Frances Swope, Billsburgh, Pa., was matron of honor. She wore a white Saki gown in the sheath styling fashioned with a coachman's floor length coat. Her headpiece was a moss green bow with veil.

Attendants were Miss Linda Howard, Saugerties; Miss Patricia Brooks, Saugerties, cousin of the bride; Miss Audrea Inman, Concordville, Pa., cousin of the bride. Miss Jeanne Kerr, Lake Katrine, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Their gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant. They wore gold bows with veils and carried fall bouquets.

MRS. JOSEPH C. ABRAMI

Miss Joanne Miller, cousin of the bride, wore a white gown similar to the other attendants and white ribbon woven into her hair with a back bow and streamers. She carried a basket bouquet of white pompons and chrysanthemums.

John Abrami, brother of the bridegroom, Catskill, was best man. Ushers were Gary Kelvy, Michael Buckley, both of Catskill; Richard Motsinger, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Long Island. Junior usher was Mark Kerr, Saugerties, brother of the bride. Peter Reganato, Long Island, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

After the wedding a reception for 125 guests was held at Cementon Sportsmen's Club.

For her wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride selected a three-piece brown and beige linen suit with matching accessories.

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is now employed at W. T. Grant Company as bookkeeper.

Her husband, an alumnus of Catskill High School, served four years active duty and two years reserve with US Air Force. He is now credit manager at American Finance Company, Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Abrami will reside at 9-W, Garden Circle, Saugerties.

New Art Class Meets at Woodstock Studio

To satisfy the many requests, Young People's Studio, the art program for children, announces the formation of a new Saturday morning class for 10-12 year olds. The group will meet from 9:40 a.m.-noon.

The new Saturday morning class will follow the same program of art instruction and projects as the already announced Friday afternoon group. The 6-9 year old class, originally scheduled for this session, has been discontinued. This class will be offered again for the spring session starting in February.

Young People's Studio is located in the historic Byrdcliffe section of Woodstock. The instructor is nationally-known artist, instructor and author Bruce Dorfman. The children meet in Mr. Dorfman's own spacious and specially equipped studio, and work on a wide range of art projects such as painting, drawing, sculpture, prints and crafts. Classes begin October 27 and 28. To register your child, or for additional information, call Mr. Dorfman at Woodstock.

Holland Society Dinner-Meeting Tonight

Members of the Ulster County Branch, Holland Society, will hold an annual autumn dinner meeting this evening at The Wildmere, Lake Minnewaska, starting with a reception at 6 p.m. The dinner to which members, their wives and guests are invited, has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be William M. Cashman, MD, a graduate of Villa Nova College, Class of 1924, and of Jefferson Medical College in 1928. He was a classmate of Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt. Dr. Cashman is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and was formerly Chief of Surgeons at Warren General Hospital, Warren, Pa. He is very interested in history and was president of the Warren County Historical Society. His topic will be The Holland Company and Its Effects on Colonists in New York and Pennsylvania.

It is the custom to invite the ladies to the autumn dinner and the president of the Branch, Earle H. Houghtaling, has planned a special gift for each of the women.

Prospective members are invited. All those men of Dutch ancestry on the direct male line are eligible. For reservations contact Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt or Kenneth E. Hasbrouck.

Officers of the Branch are: Earle H. Houghtaling, president; Kenneth E. Hasbrouck and Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt, vice presidents; Richard Lent, secretary-treasurer.

OCCC Has Singer for Presidents

A public concert tonight, featuring the McCoys, the Exciters and calypso singer Steve DePass, will highlight a 1967 Fall Weekend celebration by Orange County Community College students at Middletown.

The 8 p.m. to 12 midnight concert in the college's Orange Hall gymnasium is open to the public. Admission will be charged with tickets on sale in the Orange Hall lobby.

Singer DePass, a favorite with the OCCC student body, will be making his third appearance at the college. A folk-singer with a talent for improvising lyrics on the spot, he has appeared on several network television shows and performed for Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

The McCoys, a young male trio, recorded the popular hit "Hang On Sloopy." Recent records of the Exciters, three women and a man, included "Tell 'Em" and "Little Bit of Soul."

A Friday night Mod Masquerade for OCCC students only and a morning soccer game today between Orange County and Catonsvillke Community College of Catonsville, Maryland, paved the way for the concert. The Fall Weekend is sponsored by the Collegere's Student Senate. General chairman of the event is David DuPell of Ballston Lake, N. Y.

Woodstock News

Distaff View Of Politics

An unusual note has been injected into the Woodstock elections this year with the appearance on the ticket of three Democratic women. Dr. Audrey Bell Hamilton is running for the office of councilman; Mrs. Winifred Fallon for justice (formery justice of the peace); and Mrs. Freya Denitto, for office of clerk.

Dr. Hamilton is a long-time Woodstock resident, delegate to the International Chiropractic convention and vice president and committee chairman of Business and Professional Women of Ulster County.

"I am greatly concerned" she says "about the huge expenditures made by the present administration without a public hearing or without providing the taxpayer with any recourse. Spending money for necessary services must be done wisely. The state has a purchase plan whereby towns and townships can pool their purchases, thus reducing costs considerably through volume purchasing.

"Also Woodstock can have adequate recreational facilities at low costs to the local taxpayer if the town board would take advantage of Federal and State programs for these purposes.

"Woodstock's stream pollution problem is evident to anyone who walks past Tannery Brook on a hot summer day and smells or sees the sewage. Certainly an active town board can enforce already existing ordinances and hasten the implementation of the sewage study recommendations."

As town justice, Mrs. Fallon says she would favor setting up an honorary town justice board consisting of teenagers age 16 or over. These honorary justices would attend sessions involving teenagers and would advise and consult with the presiding Town Justice.

"I would seek cooperation in curbing all juvenile delinquency and, if the situation warranted, would favor a curfew for youngsters under the age of 16, making parents responsible for them if it were not observed.

"I would work for positive action regarding Woodstock streams, including the enforcement of already existing ordinances that prohibit the pollution of streams with raw sewage. I am also concerned about the misuse of Big Deep by people who are not Woodstock residents.

Mrs. Fallon recently attended a workshop for Democratic town justice candidates which was conducted by the Ulster County Democratic Law Committee.

DEMOCRAT CANDIDATES — Three Democrat women are seking office in the Town of Woodstock, (l) Mrs. Floyd DeNitto, running for clerk; Dr. Audrey Bell Hamilton who seeks the post of councilman and Mrs. Winifred Fallon, candidate for Town Justice.

She has lived in Woodstock since the late 1930's, graduated from Kingston High School, and has worked for Western Union and as a telephone operator and traveling manager. She lives in Zena with her husband, and three children.

Freya DeNitto was born in Chicago and spent three and one-half years at the College Art Institute of Chicago and University of Chicago. She has lived in New York State since 1960, and has owned property in Woodstock for three years. She has been a Democratic committee woman in the town of Palisades, and is presently residing on Rock City Road in Woodstock with her husband, Ronald J., and two children.

Candidates Talk About Assessments

Bill Kronenberg and Michael Kutcher, Democratic candidates for tax assessor in Woodstock, today issued the following joint statement:

"The continued rise in taxes proves once again how important the office of tax assessor is. The taxes you pay are based on three things: How much tax money must be raised, the assessment policy of the assessor, and the value the tax assessor places on your property.

"As candidates for the office of tax assessor in Woodstock we recognize that we cannot affect the amount of taxes to be raised. We do feel, however, that we can and will lower the amount of taxes you as an individual must pay.

"Specifically, we pledge ourselves to work for lower taxes for the average taxpayer in the following ways:

By reducing assessments of the average taxpayer to be more in line with those enjoyed by others. Equality of assessment is a basic right which the people of Woodstock are entitled to and will result in lower taxes for the average taxpayer, especially people who have purchased homes in the last 20 years.

By supporting a county-wide tax map and reassessment. This would result in a more advantageous equalization rate for Woodstock and bring taxes down to be more in line with our neighbors.

By maintaining an open ear, an open mind, and an open heart attitude to all taxpayers, not only natives, but also to newcomers who bear so much of today's tax burden.

Kutcher has lived in Ulster County and the Woodstock area for 12 years and has been employed by IBM since 1954. His present position is as an advisory engineer in the manufacturing engineering division, where he is responsible for technical and cost analysis of new manufacturing programs.

He served in the U. S. Army for two years and was with the Combat Engineers in Korea. He is a member of the Institute of Electrical Electronic Engineers and the American Society of Tool Manufacturing Engineers. Mr. and Mrs. Kutcher and their three children live on Chestnut Hill Road.

Kronenberg has been a social studies teacher at Onteora Central School for 11 years and also a real estate salesman for three years. He holds a BS degree from Syracuse University and a MS degree from New York State University at Albany, and served in the U. S. Army Signal Corps for two years. He is a member of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club, American Forestry Association, and New York State Council of Social Studies Teachers.

Kronenberg has been a resident of Woodstock for 11 years and presently lives at 14 Oriole Drive with his wife and three children.

Jaycee Party For Youngsters This Sunday

The Woodstock Jaycees remind all youngsters of the Woodstock, West Hurley, Shokan area of the annual Halloween Party for them Sunday, Oct. 29. Open to all boys and girls age 12 and under, this year's party will be held at the West Hurley Firehouse from 3:30 to 6 p. m. Fun, games, and prizes with traditional pumpkin carving, costume parade, apple dunking, candy, cider and doughnuts will highlight the afternoon's festivities. The costume parade and pumpkin carving will have first, second, and third prizes and certificates awarded for the funniest, scariest, and most original costumes and pumpkin designs. Judging will be for age groups: six and under, and seven through 12.

Pumpkins will be available before the party on Sunday from 11 a. m. on at the firehouse. Youngsters are urged to pick up their pumpkins and decorate them before coming to the party.

The Jaycees cordially invite all young goblins and merry-makers. There is no admission charge. The only requirement is to come in cosume and have a good time.

Esopus

ESOPUS — A costume Halloween party will be held at the Esopus Firehouse Saturday 9 to 1. Music will be by Ronnie Latz and his Bats. Refreshments and awards will be featured.

The annual chiidren's Halloween party will be held Friday 7 to 9 p. m. at the Esopus Firehouse.

The firemen's annual dinner dance has been set for Nov. 4. Date of the auxiliary annual dinner is Dec. 9.

Buy in Quantity

Buying canned goods in quantity is a great money saver. The canned food will last for long periods and will not spoil unless there is leakage. If you suspect a leak, by all means throw out the can.

Hurley Slates Hearing on Budget Monday

A public hearing on the Town of Hurley preliminary budget has been scheduled for Monday.

The meeting will start at 7:30 p. m., Hurley Firehouse, and a regular town board meeting will follow, it was announced.

Kingston High Harriers Gain DUSO Championship

Boice Cops Race With 13:16 Time

BY ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Gary Boice, the latest in a long line of outstanding runners at Kingston High School, retained his unbeaten status and led his teammates to their sixth DUSO League cross country championship in seven years Friday at the rugged 2.5 Bear Mountain course.

With Boice leading from start to finish, the Maroon harriers scored 42 points to easily outdistance second place Newburgh, which compiled 67. Then, in order, came Middletown, 72; Port Jervis, 73 and Monticello, 85.

Though his time of 13 minutes, 16 seconds was not a record, Boice won with something to spare. He received some stiff competition from Steve Keyes of Port Jervis over the first half of the race.

However, the KHS ace pulled well in front as they moved up the hill near the ski slope. Coming into the homestretch, Keyes had faded to fifth. He rallied to capture third honors, behind Boice and second place finisher Rich Donovan of Monticello.

Boice was five seconds in front of Donovan but the margin could have been greater if the winner had been pushed. He just coasted home.

The other KHS runners did well, also. Bill Brinnier was sixth, Jim Gilpatric finished 10th and Wayne Sickler and Gary Flowers were 12th and 13th. Gene Ballou finished 16th.

A happy John Gilligan, who has coached the locals for the past five years, said that depth again was the big difference in winning the meet and being an also-ran.

With the DUSO title under lock and key, Kingston will seek a seventh consecutive Section title Friday at the Bear Mountain course.

Alston Denies Quitting Rumors

DARRTOWN, Ohio (AP) — "I don't know anything about it," Walter Alston said at his home here.

The veteran manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers was commenting on the story in the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Star that he would step down as manager within a week and be replaced by Preston Gomez, third base coach of the Dodgers.

Gomez, in Puerto Rico, also said he knew nothing about it. "It's news to me," he declared. "It's the first time I heard about it."

Arthur "Red" Patterson, vice president of the Dodgers, said he knew nothing about any changes and that Alston will be going to Mexico City for the major-minor league meetings there Nov. 25.

Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, and Buzzie Bavasi, general manager, were not available for comment. O'Malley is on a hunting trip in Africa, and Bavasi is on vacation.

Nicklaus' Record 62 Gives Him Edge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shot a spectacular record round of 32-29—62 for a 54-hole score of 199, and a 12-foot putt that refused to drop in by an inch on the final hole cost him an even more fantastic score.

A lesser-known golfer, young Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, missed by an inch on a 40-foot putt on the 18th green that would have given him a tie with Nicklaus.

All this happened Friday, and today Nicklaus went into the final round of the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tour Tournament leading the likable 26-year old Spray by one stroke for the $20,000 top money.

The 18-hole finale was scheduled for national television exposure via Sports Network, Inc. starting at 2 p.m. PDT.

Nicklaus was 14 strokes under par for the Paradise Valley Country Club's, 7,069-yard, par 36-35—71 challenge.

Spray was an even 200.

Four shots back of the leader was a solid threat, Bob Goalby, and young Terry Dill was in 4th at 205.

The show Friday belonged to Nicklaus. But Spray, a pro only since March 1965, met an acid test. His 64 Thursday put him into the lead and he added an excellent 67 Friday. He was playing just behind Nicklaus and commented, "I heard Nicklaus was just having a good round, not a great one."

Goalby, who played with Big Jack and shot a fine 68, said, "He made you feel you were not doing so well, even with a 68."

Nicklaus' round was the best in his career. The 29 equalled the lowest nine holes on the 1967 PGA tour. The 62 equalled the course record set in 1964 by R.H. Sikes.

Nicklaus bagged two eagles on the back nine. He holed out an 85-yard wedge shot — "I think it was the best wedge I ever hit — on the par-four 10th. On the par-five 17th he got his second eagle three in two days. A No. 4 iron dropped 12 feet from the pin and he holed out. Arnold Palmer, who virtually blew himself out of the thing with an opening 76, had his second straight 68 and stood at 212.

Texas Western Rolls, 75-12

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The more things change in El Paso, Tex., the more they remain the same for the madcap Miners of Bobby Dobbs.

Texas Western, the home of close-to-the-vest basketball, wide-open football and way-out publicity blurbs, became the University of Texas at El Paso last winter.

But brilliant Billy Stevens made certain the footballs kept flying this fall for the pass-happy Miners. He set an all-time collegiate record for career passing yardage and, after firing six touchdown passes a week ago, was zeroing in on another NCAA mark when a virus rounded him for Friday night's game against New Mexico.

So, back-up quarterback Brooks Dawson stepped in—and threw another half-dozen TD strikes as the Miners obliterated the Lobos 75-12.

The Texas-El Paso aerial circus at Albuquerque, N.M., overshadowed the Miami, Fla., Hurricanes' 7-0 triumph over Auburn in a defensive struggle under the lights at the Orange Bowl.

Defensive end Phil Smith picked off an Auburn pitchout in the third quarter and raced 35 yards for the game's only touchdown as the Hurricanes won their fourth straight after two losses at the start of the season.

Auburn, also 4-2, drove to the Miami six-yard line in the second quarter before the Hurricanes held. It was the Tigers' only deep penetration in the hard-hitting duel.

Celts, Philly Clash Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics, who have vowed to regain the National Basketball Association championship, get their first crack of the season tonight against the Philadelphia 76ers, the team that ended their nine year reign as NBA kings in the championship playoff last April.

Both the Celtics and 76ers won Friday night and go into tonight's battle at Boston unbeaten. The Celtics routed the Detroit Pistons on the road 128-109 for their fourth in a row. The 76ers, playing at home, made it five straight with an easy 132-115 victory over Seattle.

Los Angeles scored a 125-117 home-court victory over Chicago. Cincinnati won on the road over San Diego 116-113 and San Francisco downed Baltimore 124-111 at Oakland, Calif., in other NBA games.

In the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh, playing at home, whipped Denver 91-77; Indiana beat Oakland 119-105 at San Jose, Calif., and New Orleans edged Dallas 101-97 at Memphis, Tenn.

Pleasant Rips Middies, 52-14

Unbeaten Mont Pleasant exploded with its best offensive showing of the season Friday night, routing previously undefeated Middletown, 52-14, in in a non-league at the Schenectady gridiron.

The victory was the seventh in a row for the Raiders, who were involved in a 14-14 deadlock before going ahead for good only seconds before the end of the first half.

Pacing the one-sided victory were Ron Page and Ken Jackson with two touchdowns apiece.

Pleasant will duel Linton on Election Day with a Class A championship on the line.

It was Middletown's first loss after four straight victories.

HAPPY CARD—World champion team manager, Red Schoendienst (R), signed a new one-year contract with the St. Louis Cardinals on Friday. Red, who piloted the Cards to the 1967 World Series victory over the Boston Red Sox, was rehired at a big increase in salary for his fourth year as Cardinal manager. St. Louis general manager Stan Musial (L) and club owner August A. Busch Jr. (C) were present at the signing. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Chargers, Oakland In Top AFL Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charged-up San Diego and ambitious Oakland collide in Sunday's top American Football League attraction while a couple of tattered titans—Kansas City and Buffalo—face survival tests.

At Oakland, the rugged Raiders take on unbeaten San Diego in a Western Division summit struggle. The Chargers, 5-0-1, lead the West by one-half game over 5-1 Oakland.

Elsewhere, Kansas City's defending AFL champions, barely alive in the West with a 3-3 mark, entertain Denver; Buffalo's 1966 Eastern Division kings, beaten four times in six starts, visit Houston and New York, the current leader in the East, puts a five-game unbeaten string on the line against visiting Boston. Miami has a bye.

Oakland, back home after a 3-1 Eastern trip, hopes to wrest the Western lead from the Chargers behind the passing of Daryle Lamonica and the power running of Clem Daniels.

Routed Boston

Lamonica fired four touchdown passes as the Raiders swamped Boston 48-14 last week. Daniels picked up 42 yards on the ground against the Patriots, bringing his career rushing yardage to 4,918—just four yards short of San Dieo's Paul Lowe, the all-time leader.

Lowe, reactivated Friday by the Chargers after missing five games because of a pulled leg muscle, may see spot duty against the Raiders. His replacement, rookie Dick Post, is the league's fifth leading groundgainer.

Hewritt Dixon, Lamonica's favorite target and the top AFL receiver with 31 catches, returns to the Oakland lineup after sitting out last Sunday's game with a bruised shoulder.

The Chargers will match the Lamonica-Dixon combination with quarterback John Hadl and ace receiver Lance Alworth, who clicked on five passes for 142 yards and a touchdown in last week's 38-21 victory over Denver.

Kansas City, which has lost three of its last four starts, must get past the Broncos, 1-6, to remain in contention in the West. The Chiefs have beaten Denver 13 times in 14 meetings, including 37-10 and 56-10 romps a year ago.

The Chiefs' Len Dawson failed to throw a TD pass for the first time this season and was intercepted three times in last week's 24-19 loss to Houston.

The Oilers, whose upset victory over Kansas City left them one game off the Eastern pace with a 3-2-1 record, can virtually eliminate Buffalo from the race. The Bills, beaten by the Oilers 20-3 in an early-season meeting at Buffalo, were idle last week.

Rugged Defense

Houston defenders have intercepted nine passes in the Oilers' last two games. The Oilers' attack, ineffective thus far, received a lift Friday when veteran receivers Lionel Taylor and Glenn Bass were added to the active roster.

The Jets, 4-1-1 after drubbing Miami 33-14 last Sunday, will unleash a versatile offense led by hot passer Joe Namath against the Patriots, 2-4-1, whose vaunted defense collapsed in the one-sided loss to Oakland.

Namath is working on a string of 12 straight completions—three short of the record set by KC's Dawson earlier this season. Hard-running Emerson Boozer, the league's top scorer with 12 touchdowns, completments Namath's passing game.

Colts, 'Skins Ready For Big NFL Contest

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts and Washington Redskins, both fit to be tied, try again to shake off the shackles when they meet Sunday in one of the National Football League's featured attractions.

The Colts, deadlocked the last two weekends by Los Angeles and Minnesota, are relying on Johnny Unitas to untie the knot. Washington, tied by the Rams and Atlanta the last two Sundays, will counter with Sonny Jurgensen in what should be an aerial scoring circus in Washington.

Baltimore, the only undefeated NFL team at 4-0-2, needs a victory to maintain its slim lead over San Francisco, 5-1, and Los Angeles, 3-1-2, in the Coastal Division. The Rams are at Chicago, the 49ers host Detroit, and both are solid favorites.

Washington, 2-2-2, on the other hand, is trying to close in on Dallas, 5-1, in the Capitol Division. The Cowboys are at Philadelphia, 3-3, in an intra-divisional game.

The only other intra-division contest pits Cleveland against the New York Giants in Yankee Stadium.

Elsewhere on Sunday, Minnesota plays at Atlanta and Pittsburgh at New Orleans.

Green Bay travels to St. Louis in a big Monday night contest that matches veteran quarterback Bart Starr of the Packers against Cards youngster Jim Hart.

Unitas leads the league in passing this year and broke Y. A. Tittle's all-time record for completions last week, but he and the Colts could have their hands full against the embattled Redskins.

Washington in the last three games has lost one and tied two in a total of the last 76 seconds. Jurgensen will be throwing to Charley Taylor, the NFL's top receiver, Bobby Mitchell and Jerry Smith as Washington tries to end a streak of 15 straight losses to the Colts, seven in regular season.

Mel Farr will be back running for Detroit and Karl Sweetan is likely to start at quarterback, but the 49ers still have John Brodie throwing and John David Crow and Ken Willard running.

Gale Sayers will return for the punchless Bears, and that could present trouble for the tight Los Angeles defense. But the Bears, with a pretty good defense of their own, must stop Roman Gabriel, Bernie Casey and Dick Bass.

Meredith Still Out

Dallas, which has squeaked by in its last three games, will start Craig Morton at quarterback again in place of injured and ill Don Meredith. The Eagle defense has been less than spectacular, but the stingy Cowboy defense must stop the high-powered Philadelphia offense led by Norm Snead, Ben Hawkins and Timmy Brown.

Crippled Frank Ryan passing to Gary Collins, with Leroy Kelly and Ernie Green running, will lead the Browns against the weak New York defense. But the Giants can score with the Fran Tarkenton-to-Homer Jones passing combo.

Joe Kapp has shown improvement for Minnesota in recent weeks, as has rookie Kent Nix for Pittsburgh, making them favorites at Atlanta and New Orleans.

Historic Visit

Cities Await Leaders

EL PASO, Tex. (AP' — El Paso, Tex., and Juarez, Mexico, were gaily dressed sister cities today for the historic visit of their national presidents.

Amidst the miles of colorful bunting, flags, banners and posters, stern security measures prevailed.

Threats Ease

Threats eased late Friday that Presidents Johnson and Gustavo Diaz Ordaz would be exposed to some form of demonstration resulting from hurt feelings in the Cabinet-level Mexican-American conferences. "We did not come here to spoil anyone's party," said Dr. Ernesto Galarza of San Jose, Calif., who was elected temporary chairman of a group that held what they called "a rump conference" to express views they said they were prevented from airing in the conference.

After numerous negotiations, the dissident groups discarded plans for demonstrations and set up their own meeting for today to vent their protests.

Large forces of El Paso police, military police, Secret Service agents, and state lawmen, many in plain clothes, mixed with the crowds that greeted Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and several Cabinet members Friday.

Humphrey's limousine whizzed past pickets whose signs claimed the federal govwas a sham—featuring bureaucrat speakers unacquainted with, and sometimes uninterested in, real Mexican-American problems.

Even more officers were called to duty today on the U.S. side of the Rio Grande for the Presidents' arrival. Secret Service agents distributed pamphlets asking residents along the parade route in El Paso and Juarez to report any persons seen carrying weapons or acting suspiciously.

Will Unveil Marker

At the Santa Fe Bridge over the Rio Grande, the chief executives will unveil a marker showing the new boundary between the two countries as a result of the Chamizal Treaty, which returns to Mexico 437 acres which the meandering Rio Grande took away in 1852.

Then there will be a 4.5-mile motorcade through Juarez to a marble monument erected by Mexico to mark the negotiation of the Chamizal Treaty. Then the two Presidents, sitting at identical desks, will sign the final papers of the treaty and each will make a brief speech.

After the treaty-signing, the Presidents will motor a brief distance to the Bridge of Americas, a new border crossing that could not be opened until the boundary change was completed. The Presidents' wives will cut a ribbon opening the bridge. The Presidents, their wives and their official parties, will say their goodbyes on the bridge.

Escapes Injury

A New Paltz man escaped injury early today when his car overturned along Route 32, sheriff's deputies desclosed. Richard Tenedini told investigators that he was temporarily blinded by the lights of an oncoming auto. Deputies stated that he lost control and rolled over an embankment. Deputy Marshall Canosa, who investigated, said the accident occurred approximately two miles north of New Paltz.

Many Renewals For Drivers In Area Due

One half million New York State vehicle registrations that expire in October have not been renewed, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Vincent L. Tofany announced.

Deputy County Clerk Patrick Mataraza, in charge of the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau, says many local residents have not renewed their registrations.

"Only a few business days are left before these registrations expire at midnight on Tuesday, Oct. 31," Commissioner Tofany reminds. "At this point it is too late for mail applications. Registrants must go to the nearest motor vehicle issuing office to complete renewals," he concludes.

More than a million punch cards for October renewals were mailed out in the last weeks of September. About half of these punch cards have been taken or mailed to issuing offices for renewal. The remainder must be processed within the next few days.

Motorists whose punch cards were returned to the Motor Vehicle Department as undeliverable, and motorists whose punch cards are no longer valid because of change of vehicle, must use paper applications.

Operation of an unregistered motor vehicle is a misdemeanor.

Dear Abby

Not Worth the Bother

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, a man who was employed in our retail business left us to open up his own shop in competition with us. No particular ill will was involved here, but naturally we were not overjoyed, as we felt we had taught him the business. Our business continues to do well, and this man has done very well, also.

A friend of ours is constantly pointing out our competitor's ads in the newspapers, and he seems to delight in discussing how "well" this man is doing. We are bewildered and somewhat hurt. Are we too touchy? Or is such talk in poor taste?

We surely wouldn't run down a competitor, but we find it hard to applaud his success considering the background. How should this be handled? BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: A real "friend" avoids subjects that could be irritating. To deliberately bring up a subject that stings is mischievous. The Chinese put it this way, "Never speak of a rope in the home of one whose relative has been hanged." If I were you, I'd demote that "friend" to a nodding acquaintance.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently were invited to a wedding. The invitation was called in by telephone. Would you call this a legitimate invitation? It seems to be a hurry-up sort of affair. WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: In my book, ANY invitation that is sincere is legitimate. Maybe it is a "hurry-up" sort of wedding.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, earn my own living, and live at home. I'm practically engaged to a very fine young man named Bruce. He is 26, has a steady job and he also lives at home, not far from me.

Abby, I don't know whether Bruce's mother is going thru "the change" or what, but she is impossible. She will call up here at midnight and say, "SEND BRUCE HOME!" And bang goes the receiver.

Bruce is not a child, and he knows when to go home. There are other people in this house: my parents and younger brothers and sisters, and they don't appreciate being disturbed at that hour.

We took the telephone off the hook one night, and she got the busy signal so she WALKED OVER HERE and made Bruce take her home. How can this problem be solved?

BRUCE'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Marry Bruce.

DEAR ABBY: Am I being silly and childish, or is my husband at fault?

There is this young woman in our crowd who is peppy and cute and is always playing up to the men. At a party, she's the first to say, "Let's sit by somebody else's husband." Or when we get into a car, she'll plunk herself down next to somebody else's husband, and his wife has to pair up with hers.

Now, Abby, I want to sit by my own husband, and I don't like all this switching around.

Once when my husband and I were dancing together, this woman danced by with her husband and tried to change partners. I said, "No, this is OUR song. We requested it." My husband got angry with me and said I was rude. We have three children and a good marriage, Abby, and I don't want to take any chances with it.

If I am wrong, please tell me. If I am right, I need some support. LIKES MY OWN

DEAR LIKES: The switcheroo game your cute and peppy friend is playing can lead to "splitsville." Hang on to your own husband. I'm with you all the way.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

South Does Not Like Red Suits

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Our old friend Charley Solomon of Priladelphia, president of the World Bridge Federation, has managed in his long career at the table to win just about every trophy there is. Charley is noted for his excellent bidding.

In a recent tournament, Charley was playing with a new partner when he picked up the South hand shown today. It would have puzzled him in any event, but he finally reached the spade slam by bidding in the box.

He opened with one spade only. They were playing weak two bids but that did not matter. An expert does not bother to open with a forcing bid when he knows that someone will surely be in the bidding with or against him.

Charley's three club rebid was a force. Like all modern experts, he plays that after a two-over-one response a new suit bid is a one round force.

His five spade bid that followed is the one we really like. He clearly said, "I am very interested in a slam and I don't care about what you have in the red suits. I can play five spades anyway. Can you go to six?"

This put some pressure on North. He got the message that South did not care about the red suits, but how good were Charley's black suits? North finally decided that the combination of jack of clubs plus the ace of hearts for a discard would be enough.

They just were. Charley discarded a club on the ace of hearts at trick one, led a club to his ace, ruffed a club with dummy's six of trumps, ruffed a heart, ruffed another club with dummy's jack of trumps, ruffed a diamond, played his ace of spades and claimed his slam.

Like most slams you see in print — you wonder why it would not be a cinch to bid. It wasn't at the table, as mey be judged from the fact that only three of 26 pairs did bid it. Some stopped at four or five, a couple got to seven, and one unfortunate pair worked its way to six no-trump.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY
October 29, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Accolade received because of your arrangement of special collection, flowers, luxury items. Fine for presenting gift to one who performed services. Strive for harmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Excellent for dealing with opposite sex. Day could be a romantic one. Engage in creative activity. Break away from restrictive forces. Express yourself. Give and you also receive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid jumping to conclusions. Be fair and specific. One who wants to impart information may appear pompous. But this is not intentional. Lean over for other viewpoints.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Surprise of pleasant variety due. Could involve visit from loved one. Be outgoing. Let others know you do care about their welfare. Social activity indicated for tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Gift could come your way. You appear likely to add to possessions. You may have to make choice. Discard nonessentials. Make room for a fuller life. Today could be the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't back down from basic beliefs. Realize some obstacles may represent healthy challenge. Be ready for changes. Analyze motives. Cycle is high. You will emerge victorious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Attend special group function. Gain shown by sharing of interests. There is about to emerge a situation which greatly benefits you. Key is charm, patience and maturity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be realistic in appraisal of persons, situations. Romantic notions subject to revision. Don't hang on to the past. Be willing to build for the future. Accept aid of friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Compliment from one in authority makes this a meaningful day. Display ability to handle responsibility. Be sincere, serious. Give thanks for opportunity to succeed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you have been tardy in sending note of thanks, make up for it today. Communicate sense of appreciation. Take nothing for granted. Put thoughts on paper. Plan campaign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are informed of purchase. Question of how much was expended dominates. View situation in progressive manner. Post-mortems serve no constructive purpose.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Expand sphere of interests. Investigate. Find out where you stand—how far you can go. Discussion involving legal ramifications is overdue.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have deep feelings, can sense what others are planning, thinking. Would make wonderful detective, reporter. You are able to get to the bottom of mystery and are a natural investigator.

Forecast for Monday, October 30, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Work methods may need revision. Upsets due. Ride with the tide. Some associates bolt, rebel, resign. Strive for neutrality. Do not get caught up in whirlpool of confusion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): You may find out where you stand in affairs of the heart. Maintain sense of balance. Don't be bowled over by extravagant claims. Opposite sex appears eccentric today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may find that question of home, security is paramount. Some conditions are upsetting. People appear to react in abrupt manner. Hang on. Don't lose sense of humor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hold back on short journeys. There is element of uncertainty. Details may have been overlooked. Messages tend to be garbled. Be thorough. Willingness to wait is an asset.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Financial transactions dominate. Emphasis on what's going out, coming in. Be receptive to suggestions, ideas. Don't overspend. Condition due to pass in short time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight of controversy could shine. Backing received from family. Permit logic to rule impulse. Utilize principles of Golden Rule. Many observe your actions, reaction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You gain if panic is avoided. Be perceptive. See people, situations as they actually exist. Don't bury head in sand. Key is to be realistic. Overcome fear of the unknown.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some of your desires come forward with a rush. Be selective. Choose quality. Disregard persons who make wild promises. Stick with voice of experience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Career matters are in spotlight. Your ability to respond to challenge is tested. Nothing occurs halfway — all the way or nothing. Know this and prepare accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study special publications. You could obtain hint which makes goal easier to achieve. Be curious. Get answers by asking questions. May not be necessary to travel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your view of financial status could be distorted. Get all the facts. Base decisions on knowledge rather than speculation. Give benefit of doubt to mate, partner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Tension exists. Don't borrow trouble. Means steer clear of needless dispute. One who engages you in conversation may "egg you on." Maintain dignity.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTH- of reacting well during crisis. You can apply light touch which causes laughter amidst gloom. You are about to embark upon a new adventure.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for LIBRA, SCORPIO. Special word to GEMINI: check values. Analyze long-range motives.

Time Slot Prisoner Worry

By DEAN GYSEL
Chicago Daily News Service

Alas, Patrick McGoohan, the greatest secret agent of them all, may not be back on American television at mid-season after all.

His old secret agent series is dead, but McGoohan since then has created and starred in The Prison, which debuted on English and Canadian television this fall. Unfortunately, he made only 17 episodes and went off to do films and stage work.

A reviewer for the show biz journal, Variety, said the new series "deserves full marks for its boldness and daring in trying to break out of the formulas of packaged thick-ear stuff.

"McGoohan's hero, deliberately mysterious, has resigned from a top government job, and has been abducted into a community with all the surface coziness of a rural village, its inhabitants dressed in Edwarian costume, lulled by band concerts, fed and housed in comfort—but constantly watched by electronic eyes controlled by suave bosses, known by numbers.

"When he tries to escape, he is pursued by grotesque floppy balloons, the lethal ploy of which is to force themselves on the fugitive and suffocate him to death."

During it all, said Variety, "McGoohan retains his steely authority, and may extend into an area of pathos for his plight."

I have not seen The Prisoner, but I'll take Variety's word that it is a novel idea and, besides, I'd like McGoohan even as one of the seven dwarfs.

CBS states firmly that it has purchased The Prisoner, but getting it on the air is something else. The network has canceled Dundee and the Culhane, but has replaced it with a Jonathan Winters variety show, beginning Dec. 27.

At this moment, the network does not plan to cancel another series at mid-season, though Good Morning, World is very shaky.

Dump Pile Possibilities

It is incredible that CBS does not think it has other series worthy of cancellation to make room for The Prisoner.

I recommend that it dump any or all of the following: Andy Griffith, Good Morning, World, Lost in Space, Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres, Cimarron Strip, Wild, Wild West, Gomer Pyle, My Three Sons, Hogan's Heroes, Petticoat Junction, Mannix, Family Affair, and Ed Sullivan (just to see the expression on his face).

A prisoner, charged with robbery was brought into court without a lawyer. The judge, noticing a young lawyer of his acquaintance in the courtroom, asked him to take the prisoner to an anteroom, listen to his account of the incident, and advise him to his best interest. Sometime later the lawyer returned, but without the prisoner.

On being asked his whereabouts, the lawyer replied:

Young Lawyer Brown — Your Honor, after hearing the prisoner's story, I felt that the best thing he could do was make a run for it — and he did!

Freedom is being able to do what you please without considering anyone except your wife, the police, the boss, the life insurance company, the state, federal and city authorties and your neighbors.

Two partners in business were doing all right but not setting the world on fire. One morning one showed up wearing a dazzling diamond as a stickpin. It looked as big as a lemon to the other partner, who envisioned a raided bank account.

Fred — What in the world! Where and how did you get that sparkler?

Frank — My uncle died last week, you remember. Well, he left $4,000 to be used in purchasing a stone commemorating him This is the stone.

A tramp was sleeping behind the bunker of a golf course when the club secretary, prowling around, kicked him none too gently and ordered him to clear out.

Sam (the tramp) — And who are you?

Mr. Black — I'm secretary of the club.

Sam (the tramp) — Well, that's no way to get new members.

Blood Splashers

Priest, Artist Fast in Jail

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest and a Baltimore artist were fasting in jail today after they were arrested on federal charges of splashing blood on draft board records.

Two other men who participated in the demonstration against the war in Vietnam were free after signing a pledge to appear for any further proceedings in the case.

Lost Newburgh Job

"You get the kind of freedom you fight for," said the Rev. Philip Berrigan, the 44-year-old priest whose past protests have brought him a rebuke from a bishop in New Orleans and cost him a teaching job at Newburg , N.Y.

Father Berrigan and an artist and a schoolteacher splashed blood that they said was their own into open file drawers at a Selective Service office Friday to protest "the pitiful waste of American and Vietnamese blood" in Vietnam. Another clergyman stood watch at the door.

"We shed our blood willingly and gratefully in what we hope is a sacrificial and constructive act," the four members of the Baltimore Interfaith Peace Mission said in a statement.

In an official statement, the Baltimore Catholic archdiocese termed Father Berrigan's action "the kind of flamboyant gesture that is self-defeating.

"Its real contribution to peace is questionable. We believe that such actions may be interpreted as disorderly, aggressive and extreme, and that they are likely to alienate a great number of sincere men in the cuase of a just peace."

FBI agents arrested all four protesters and charged them with destruction of government records and obstructing Selective Service laws. They are to have a preliminary hearing Monday before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart.

Released on Bonds

Released on personal bonds of $1,000 were the Rev. James Mengel, 38, a minister in the United Church of Christ, and David Eberhardt, 26, a teacher who is secretary of the peace mission, a conscientious objector and an activist with the Congress of Racial Equality.

Father Berrigan and Thomas Lewis, 27, the artist, were jailed for the weekend when they refused to sign the document promising to appear at the hearing.

Father Berrigan, a Josephite priest, was transferred to Baltimore after urging in lectures in Newburgh, that the United States halt the bombing of North Vietnam and recognize the National Liberation Front in negotiations.

Director Visits in Area

Peace Corps . . . German Style

By LYNN MULVANEY

Peter Dehmel is a peace corps director . . . for his native Germany . . . in Bolivia!

Just now he is visiting his brother Till Dehmel's Saugerties home, nestled comfortably on a wooded Lamb Avenue hillside.

The peaceful setting is remote from that of his recent home for eight years — the Communist guerilla-riddled area of Bolivia where Che Guevarra died just two weeks ago. It is also far removed from his native Germany to which he is about to return to become director of that country's "peace corps," which boasts 1,200 volunteers.

In Washington, D.C., this week, young Dehmel compared "notes" with U.S. Peace Corps officials.

Patterned after this country's corps and organized in 1963 after the late President Kennedy's visit to Germany, the foreign project reaches 25 countries, mainly in Africa and Latin America. It concerns itself with public health, community development, technical assistance and professional education.

PETER DEHMEL

Its volunteers get around on donkeys, horseback and in planes, small boats and jeeps. They work with their hands as much as their heads and teach house-building for instance, with hammer in hand.

Dehmel, a teacher by profession, was director of the "German School" in Sucre, Bolivia, which is now a model for other schools in the country.

He and his Indian-speaking wife, who accompanies him, also speak German, Spanish and English, as do their three children, two of whom were born in Bolivia.

Is it difficult living in an underprivileged country with three small youngsters, sans appliances, fresh milk and modern conveniences?

Yes and no, say the Dehmels, who are more appreciative of having the "feeling of being close" to what is around them and to what is happening because "then there are more possibilities to help."

Our volunteers, Dehmel maintains, after spending several years in Bolivia, seem to feel that "the problems of their own Germany seem to have lost something of their former importance — compared to such things as hunger, poverty and lack of knowledge."

Economy Drive Order of Day

WASHINGTON (AP) Congressional inaction on some money bills has caused several federal agencies to begin economy drives which informed sources say could hurt various programs.

The spending holddown has been ordered verbally in most agencies involved but a written memo went out to employes of the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipoverty agency.

Robert C. Cassidy, OEO's assistant director for management, wrote: "Pending passage of an appropriations resolution by Congress beyond Oct. 23, which marked the end of the last continuing resolution under which OEO had been operating, these restrictions apply:

"1. No grant, contract purchase order or interagency agreement shall be executed.

"2. Issuance of new travel authorization shall be curtailed to the maximum extent possible.

"3. No new employes will be placed on the role except where firm commitments have been made prior to Oct. 23."

Although there wasn't any formal memo, similar verbal instructions have been passed down through the ranks at the Agency for International Development (AID), the Peace Corps and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Employes at four agencies have been working in effect without pay since Tuesday because spending authority by those agencies expired last Monday when Congress failed to pass another continuing resolution.

The resolution would permit the government agencies to keep functioning on a temporary basis until Congress votes them some money.

The House tied to the stopgap resolution a rider insisting that President Johnson slash his budget by $6 billion to $8 billion. But the Senate knocked it off, calling it buck-passing on a job that is the duty of Congress.

The conferees deadlocked on the question at a meeting Thursday and an hour-long session Friday reportedly made little progress. Another meeting is scheduled for Tuesday.

"Our employees are working on faith," said the AID spokesman. "The paycheck they receive next Tuesday covers the period ending last Sunday. On Nov. 14—unless something happens in Congress—they'll receive a check for one day, Monday, the day the continuing resolution expired."

Antipoverty Most Serious

The antipoverty program appears to be the most seriously hurt by lack of authority to spend money.

"We have local community action agencies that will have to close down because we can't give them any money," said one source. "We would like to tell them to go and borrow the money from the bank but we can't do that because we theoretically can't obligate any money. We don't know what Congress is going to do."

At AID, work is continuing but no money is being spent. For instance, employes are evaluating loan agreements which are moving along the normal administration route. But when a contract reaches a point where it is ready for signature, it is being put aside until the agency receives money.

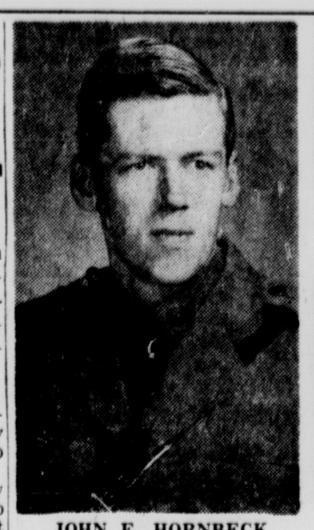

Bid openings for construction projects are being held up at the Atomic Energy Commission. And the agency isn't inviting any new bids on projects other than those under the weapons program or involving the installation of radioactive waste storage tanks.

The foreign aid money bill, under which AID and the Peace Corps operate, and the controversial one to finance continuation of the antipoverty program are the main ones hanging.

A $4.6 billion public works bill, including funds for the AEC, needs only final Senate clearance before going to the President for signing. The only other bills pending are those covering the D.C. government and military construction.

The logjam of money bills cracked a bit more Friday when the Senate sent to the White House by voice vote—with only five members present—a $13.3 billion money bill to finance the Labor and the Health, Education and Welfare departments.

A $1 billion cut in funds below the administration's $3.2 billion foreign aid request was recommended by a House Appropriations subcommittee and will go to the full committee Nov. 6.

County Residents Trooper Grads

A class of 174 new troopers, including two Ulster County residents and several others from the Mid-Hudson Valley area, was graduated from the Basic Training School of the New York State Police Academy at exercises today at Chancellors Hall in Albany. The school was conducted for the past 16 weeks at the State University in Oneonta and at Freehold.

Wawarsing, Accord Men

John E. Hornbeck, 22, of Wawarsing, and Henry N. Sira, 24, of RFD 1, Accord, were among the graduates.

Hornbeck is married to the former Kathy Nolan of Wawarsing. He is the son of Mrs. Julia Hornbeck of that community and the late Clyde Hornbeck. He graduated from Ellenville High School and attended Ulster County Community College. He will be assigned to Troop C in Sidney.

Sira, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Sira of the Accord address, was graduated from Amityville Memorial High School in 1961. Prior to joining the State Police he was employed by the Kingston Police Department. He will be assigned to Troop K, Hawthorne.

Other Mid-Hudson Valley graduates included: Douglas H. Lane, RD 2, Box 83-4 Catskill; Thomas L. Larkin, Nellie Hill Acres, Dover Plains; John E. Mason, 121 Ulster Avenue, Walden; Stephen P. Pasquale, Knox Village, Apt. 13, Newburgh; Thomas F. Salmon, 30 Appletree Drive, Rhinebeck; Albert J. Simard Jr., Lake Ellis Road, Wingdale; Ronald D. Wildey, 419 Kents Road, Hopewell Junction; Richard E. Woods, 10 Gardner Avenue Extension, Middletown.

The graduation address was delivered by Richard J. Bartlett, chairman of the new State Crime Control Council and chairman of the Temporary State Commission on Revision of the Penal Law and the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Other speakers included Assistant Chief Inspector George P. McManus of the New York City Police Department, president of the New York State Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc., and Sheriff Martin Gilbride of Livingston County, secretary of the New York State Sheriffs Association.

Trooper Vincent T. Burke Jr. of Kew Gardens, Queens, spoke as the student representative.

Diplomas and awards were presented by Superintendent William E. Kirwan. The Superintendent's Award for Academic Excellence, a .38 calibre Magnum revolver, was presented to Trooper Norman L. Duell of Lake George. A similar prize for excellence in combat shooting was awarded to Trooper Blair E. Hoover of Corning.

Start Monday

The new troopers will begin their field assignments on Monday.

Mrs. Oberkirch On Esopus Run: Have the Time

Declaring, "I have the time to give and I'm eager to serve my community," Helen Oberkirch, Democratic candidate for councilman in the Town of Esopus, was hosted at three coffee-hours this week.

Mrs. Oberkirch was given the chance to meet the voters through "Coffee Hours for Helen Oberkirch" at the homes of Mrs. William Granitto of St. Remy and Mrs. Harold Coffey of Ulster Park.

Next week the "coffee hours" will be hosted by Mrs. Robert Courtney, Mrs. Winifred, Martin Nilan and William Oskay, all of Port Ewen.

Mrs. Oberkirch, mother of two children and a resident of the Town of Esopus for the past 15 years, has a long record of civic service to her credit. She has served as president of the Port Ewen P-TA for two years and led that organization's successful fight for school transportation through the "9W rock cut," and as president of the P-TA Council of Kingston City Schools Consolidated (consisting of 14 P-TA groups) for six years.

She was the first woman appointed to the Ross Park Commission by a town (Esopus) board and served (over five years) until she moved out of the Port Ewen district.

Mrs. Oberkirch has been an active member of the board of directors of United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, Inc., for 11 years and now holds the office of vice-president of this agency. She has organized CP Telethons and county wide fund-raising campaigns and put time and study into committee work. She is corresponding secretary of UCP Associations of N.Y. State, has held this position for seven years, and was recently appointed secretary of the newly formed Ulster County Health Council.

Mrs. Oberkirch believes that her experience working with various boards of directors and her active service in the Town of Esopus are excellent qualifications for councilman.

RV Students Win Awards in Land Judging

Ninety-three agriculture students from five schools participated in a land judging contest Tuesday at Wallkill State Prison farm.

The contest was conducted with the cooperation of the Soil Conservation Districts of Orange, Ulster, and Sullivan Counties and the Cooperative Extention Service.

Capturing top honors were students from Rondout Valley, who grabbed the first, second and fifth awards. Taking the honors were Thomas Coddington, Robert Bennett and Jeffrey Reed.

Schools represented in the contest were Rondout Valley, Wallkill, Orange County BOCES, Tri-Valley and Minisink Valley.

Brrr! Burr's Ghost

Haunted houses in all their tarnished grandeur and eerie color will get the Halloween season treatment on television tomorrow, Sunday, Oct. 29, at 8 p. m.

WNEW's Channel 5 will bring on the dear departeds with its program, Ghost in the House, totally appropriate to All Saints Eve and featuring Hans Holzer, author, parapsychologist and ghost hunter, and Sybil Leek, British medium. In a seance trance, medium Leek promises to contact the disturbed ghost of Aaron Burr. She'll conjure up history's disgraced duelist at the site of his former home in Greenwhich Village, a building now housing the hippie hangout, Cafe Bizarre.

Other haunted houses in Manhattan to be seen include a mansion on Riverside Drive, a rooming house on the Lower East Side, and a house at Clinton Court in Midtown.

Narrator Holzer is a member of the New York Historical Society and the Archaelogical Institute of America, and the author of four books on ghosts. A well-traveled lecturer, he wrote and produced "Ghost in the House."

Tune in for the chills and thrills in the holiday spirit of Halloween.

Firemen Offer Halloween Tips

In order to insure a safe and mutually enjoyable Halloween Eve the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Kingston Fire Dept. urges the residents of the City of Kingston to observe the following precautions:

All leaves should be removed from area's around buildings and all leaves which are at the curb should be thoroughly wet down with a garden hose.

Use artificial light in pumpkins used as jack-o-lanterns. (Use a flashlight, not candles.)

Make sure that your child's costume is not made from a highly flammable material. If you are in doubt take a small piece of the material to your nearest paid fire station where it will be checked.

Keep porch lights on to discourage any misguided youngsters from commimtting acts of vandalism.

Last but not least, we ask our young people to enjoy themselves but not by senseless acts of mischief. Make your community proud of you.

Horsey Movies

Two movies, "Seabiscuit" and "Flying Mallets," will be presented by the Bennett College Riding Club next Tuesday evening (Oct. 31). The performance will take place beginning at 7:15 in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium on the Millbrook campus. No tickets will be required of the public, which is cordially invited to attend.

Halloween — How It Used To Be

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Remember how it used to be — way back then — before Mayor Garraghan got so miffed about the whole thing he threatened to outlaw it How in the beginning nobody set a curfew and it was all ours? How commercialism hadn't intruded on its very special traditions yet . . . and kids allowed their imaginations to run rampant?

Those were the days when all it took to become a mysterious gypsy were some of mom's beads (left over from the Roaring Twenties), a long skirt with a ruffle or two, golden earrings from the five-and-dime, and the old red scarf off the mantle . . . When you could talk the head of the family into letting you rip up a fraying sheet and, in seconds, transform yourself into a ghost . . . When a night out as a pirate required nothing more elaborate than tattered trousers, a cardboard dagger, and a black eyepatch made of muslin . . . When Chinese princesses were everywhere and, why not, with a pair of silk pajamas, rosettes for the ears, and a paper parasol to be found in almost every household.

Halloween and All Hallow's Eve . . . how they've changed. Who wants to be a homemade, hand-me-down witch with the kitchen broom for a steed, a goblin or skeleton, when — for $2.98 — you can be Tarzan, Atom Ant, The Hulk, Bat Girl, Spiderman, Vampira the Green Hornet or any one of the four singing Monkees mini-skirted or mod-trousered? Who wants to be a dirty-faced hobo in dad's old hat, shoes and vest, some skillfully applied charcoal and cigarette butts when $20 at an "in" costume shop will buy the dress Carol Channing wore in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," or $10 may turn up something campy from the Ice Follies tour of 1927.

Why Bother Mom?

Why bother popping your own corn when ersatz flavored and pastel dyed replicas of those old-fashioned balls can be bought for a pittance in cellophane bags at the supermarket? Who needs Grandma's donuts and mom's fudge when Trick or Treat candies come in the large economy size package? Bob for apples in an old tin tub? Don't be ridiculous! We're off to spray Tammy and Billie Joe WHAP in their baby blues with a can of vacuum packed shaving cream. Carve a jac-o-lantern for the front window? Forget it . . . pick up a ready-made decorating kit instead . . . they come free with a box of bubble gum.

Trick or Treat, indeed . . . There was a time when it meant exactly that and more so. No treat from the skinflint on the corner of Elm Street? Didn't take much moxie to lift his gate off its hinges . . . Still intact but the old miser would have to spend the next morning rehanging it. A gang of costumed kids turned away from somebody's front porch with wormy apples instead of a nickel each? Well, it wouldn't be the first outhouse tipped over in its side tonight. Somebody's lights out and man of the house hiding behind the curtains because Halloween and kids are both a pain in the neck? A bar of Ivory soap or a bag of ashes used in the proper place will show who's boss tonight.

If it all sounds like a very small town scene, it was. But it was somehow superior to today when Halloween has about as much charm and romance as an electronic dating computer. Where have all the sweet, little old ladies gone, who greeted a costumed child with "Now, let me think who COULD be under that clown mask?" And the best costume prize at the school party this year will probably go to the kid whose mother is a professional dress designer; had one of her seamstresses whip up a knight in shining armor out of Day-Glo silver paint over fishnet stockings.

That Personal Touch

Small wonder the whole thing's been taken over by the vandals. It's long since lost the old-fashioned personal touch that made it an interpersonal holiday for kids and parents.

Still Mr. Mayor, we wouldn't advise outlawing it. Some freckle-faced kid with a little old-time flair might come up with a sure-fire plan for tipping City Hall over on its side.

. . . Which just might not be such a bad idea at that. It's always had a marked resemblance to a witch's castle . . . and it'd be one way of giving Halloween AND the seat of government back to the people.

Behind the Stagelights

Guy Turns Into Doll-Hilarity Results

The turning of a guy into a doll as retribution for his love-'em-and-leave-'em tactics, is the hilarious theme of "Goodbye Charlie," the George Axelrod comedy to be presented by Coach House Players in November.

Axelrod will be remembered for another comedy, "The Seven Year Itch," which launched Jane Mansfield's career on stage and starred Marilyn Monroe in the movie version.

In the New York production of "Goodbye Charlie" Lauren Bacall delighted audiences in the role of Charlie, the $3,000-a-week Hollywood screen-writer who made successful passes at every dame he met — but once too often! Sadly for Charlie, his last amorous adventure was finished off rather abruptly by a jealous husband.

And therein lies the tale; for Charlie is reincarnated as a beautiful woman and, so, begins to see life from the other side of the battle of the sexes.

Naturally the ex-roue hero runs into a lot of trouble trying to adjust to his new gender which, among other things, means he'd better keep his stocking seams straight and his powder dry. However, his old pal, George, is on tap to help him in the rapid fire transformation, and gives the newly-made and totally alluring young girl one of the fastest finishing school courses on record. In the course of the two hours "traffic on the stage" Charlie changes from a disreputable wolf into the loveliest of ladies; learns how to handle high heels and balance a teacup on his pretty knees.

COACH HOUSE HEADQUARTERS

No Solemnity

The play opens with a memorial service for poor departed Charlie in which good friend George is hard put to find any suitable epitaph for his deceaed pal. This is the last sloemn moment in the racily-paced action. From then on one rollicking situation follows another in rapid succession, making this show one that's guaranteed to drive away the blue and frustrations.

The play is being directed by Bill Skilling, who has chalked up one hit after another with the local Players.

Africa Festival Goes Dramatic

Two plays which will bow shortly off-Broadway will be given a special free pre-opening presentation at State University College, New Paltz, next Monday, Oct. 30, at 8 p. m. Written by Wole Soyinka, Africa's most celebrated playwright, the dramatic fare will be offered in the Main Auditorium on campus as part of the college's continuing 10-day "Africa Festival."

The plays are Soyinka's "The Trials of Brother Jero" and "The Strong Breed," both of which will open at the Greenwich Mews Theatre in New York on Nov. 9, shortly after their pre-metropolitan preview here. The latter vehicle was televised on a New York station in 1964, and is being produced by the husband-and-wife team of Kenneth Farris and Cynthia Belgrave. Miss Belgrave will also direct the plays and take the leading female role in "The Strong Breed," which has been lauded by The New York Times as "a fascinating fusion of ancient superstition and ennobling morality." The talented Miss Belgrave has a list of Broadway productions to her credit. She recently appeared in the Great White Way staging of James Baldwin's "Amen Corner," and in earlier plays such as The Blacks, Lovey and The Grass Harp.

The other short work, "The Trials of Brother Jero" concerns the "pleasantly seedy adventures of a religious prophet named Brother Jeroboam . . . The language is tonic and on occasion very funny," according to a Holiday magazine article on "Africa's Black Writers."

Won Top Honors

Soyinka, a Nigerian, also wrote the full-length play, "The Lion and the Jewel," planned for Broadway production. In 1966, the playwright won top honors at the first World Festival of Negro Art in Dakar with "The Road." Educated at the University of Leeds, he has had several of his works presented at Brandeis University, the University of Colorado, and on television.

American and British members of P.E.N. last year appealed to the Nigerian government to release Soyinka when he was jailed and reported beaten for a statement advocating a cease-fire in the Nigerian civil war. At the age of 32, he has written four full-length plays and three long one-act plays.

One of the male leads, Afolabi Ajavi, has been active in Nigerian theater, worked with Soyinka, and appeared in his "A Dance of the Forest," first performed in 1960 at Nigeria's Independence celebration.

Jeroboam is played by the rising young Negro actor Hal Scott, who won the Variety Critics Poll as the "Most Promising New Actor on Broadway" for his performance in "The Cool World." A graduate of Harvard with a B.A. in English, he has also acted with the Repertory Theatre of Lincoln Center.

There will be no reserved seats for the New Paltz performances.

Prior to going dramatic, the Paltz festival will come up with some intriguing audience viewing when it presents "African Safari," a live show of male and female native costumes from 12 African countries. The show will also feature American clothing showing the influence of African design, and will go onstage this Sunday, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p. m. in the College Theater. "Safari" will be the fifth major event of the lengthy festival.

Twenty African and American students from New Paltz and New York City will model traditional and contemporary clothing under the guidance of Marva Chrity of the Council of the African-American Institute, New York.

Presentations from West Africa — Senegal, Guinea, Ghana, Nigeria, and Chad — will introduce the African tour. East and Southcentral Africa will be represented by models showing the fashions of Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyka, Somalia, Swaziland, and Leshato.

During the intermission, Ghana student Seth Ladzekpo will present a dance interlude.

A drummed "welcome to the African festival" in the language of African tom-toms played by Ladzepko has opened many of the events at the college. The Ghana student is a "caster" drummer in his homeland and has taught other New Paltz students how to "talk" on his instrument.

Folk Music Highlighted

Following the costume and dramatic presentations, the festival will move toward the final curtain with an illustrated lecture on African folk music by Dr. Hugh Tracey, Director of the International Library of African Music and founder of the African Music Society. He is slated to appear next Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Main Auditorium on campus.

The lecture, the concluding event in the festival, will be supplemented by films and recordings made by Dr. Tracey over the past three decades in Africa. A visiting professor at New Paltz, he has a rich and varied background in the mu-

Journey Toward Freedom

A Monument to Colonel Chandler . . . But None for Sojourner

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It was by no means Ulster's finest hour. Up and down the rutted roads of the county, feeble and elderly men and women wandered rootlessly, dying of hunger and exposure. Those who did have roofs over their heads slept in damp, unlighted cellars on wet, muddy straw. Children of five and three, boys and girls alike, were taken from their parents and sold; leaving by foot in summer and carried away over the winter snow in sleigh boxes.

The Great Depression of the 1930's? Very definitely not. Actually, it was that period shortly after the end of the American Revolution and the several decades following the turn of the next century. It was that time when people were still talking about Washington and Lafayette, the coming of Jesus and the end of the world, and when Dutch farmers of Ulster, who lavished more money on their great stone barns than on their houses, held the distinction of owning more slaves than the combined citizenry of New York City. This in spite of the fact that John Jay had fought for a clause abolishing slavery in the first State Constitution, fashioned here in Kingston in 1777, only to see his move blocked.

Into this world in 1797 came Isabelle (Belle) Hardenbergh, taking the last name of her master and moving with him as an infant to a limestone house in Hurley. Almost unbelievably, while so much else of local historical interest has disappeared, this house still stands, but tourists who admire its architecturally esthetic values today have no knowledge whatsoever of the human misery that once reigned in its cellar.

One of the Cattle

At the age of 11, when Charles Hardenbergh died, Belle — although not by name — was identified in a notice poster in Kingston. The wiry, blue-black skinned little girl was advertised as one of "the slaves, horses, and cattle of Charles Hardenbergh, deceased" — to be sold at auction to the highest bidder. Sold she was, never to see her mother, who subsequently died on the damp cellar floor in Hurley, again. Her father, too, died of old age, hunger and neglect because of his treatment at the hands of the Hurley-Hardengerghs.

Belle's second master was one John Neely, owner of a brand new store and landing at Twaalfkskill, some one-and-one-half miles from Kingston Village. He bought the slave child to give his wife a bit more standing in the eyes of local ladies as a slaveowner and to show his neighbors and customers he aproved of local customs although he was only recently arrived from Massachusetts where slavery had been abolished. Neely, evidently as mean as a rattlesnake, often tied the child's hands and beat her bare back with wooden rods tied together with cord . . . until the welts across her shoulders remained as life-long scars.

Eventually, he sold Belle to a fisherman and tavernkeeper, Martin Schryver, for $105. This became the year of her childhood content for Schryver lived near the Rondout Creek ferry and Belle loved the trips to the teeming Strand on errands and sitting on the pier there watching the Hudson River sloops turn up the creek.

$300 Price Tag

But Schryver could not afford to refuse the $300 soon offered for her (she was only 13 but already six feet tall) by John Dumont of New Paltz. She walked the long miles between towns behind Dumont's horse; stayed with him longer than with any master. At his home she became something of loner, working far too industriously to please the other slaves, and earning the name of "white man's pet," a label that in this day and age would probably emerge as "honky lover."

Still, Belle could not always remain a little girl and she grew to maturity and near middle age in the Paltz household of Dumont. She saw much, learned much and suffered much. If there was any weakened resistance to abolition in the area, it was mostly due to the harsh winter weather which made it economically profitable to free slaves when there was no work to do on the farms, or when they grew too old or sick to be useful. This saved the expense of feeding the elderly slaves a landowner wished to put out of his house.

To Belle's trained eye, Ulster and its neighboring counties formed the backbone of the resistance to abolition in the state. In their quarters, the slaves — or those who could — read the county paper (at that time the Kingston Argus) — and talked about the fact that abolitionists were not popular with the Dutch. Only the Quakers of Ulster County worked in behalf of the slaves, a task made difficult at times because of the communications problem. The only language the slaves knew or spoke was Low Dutch, the idiom spoken by most farmers in Ulster in those days.

Escape from the Inferno

There was a vivid urgency in Belle Hardengergh-Neely-Schryver-Dumont to break out of this very special and personal Hades and, eventually, she did. In her strife-torn young adulthood, she had found little acceptance by either race and had seen the youth she loved nearly beaten to death before her eyes; later learned that he had indeed died. After knowing many masters, being forced into marriage to a far older man, bearing children to increase "the stock" of Dumont, and having been promised her freedom and denied it, she ran away only one short year before she would have been free by law. Now she was Belle Van Wagenen, living for wages with Quakers near Paltz . . . and, at 29, she made the decision to become someone else entirely.

Although it took more than a decade longer — a period spent mostly in New York City seeing much human suffering and suffering herself when her only son never returned from sea — she became an evangelistic speaker at camp meetings and anti-slavery meetings . . . with a marked talent for electrifying her audiences. She was a prepossessing figure at a lectern with a speaking voice that enveloped a crowd with its timbre and wit and with a wild, deep-toned, magnificent singing voice that mesmerized ruffians and gentlemen alike.

She entered the pages of history, as well, as a champion of women's rights (those of both dispossessed Negroes and well educated whites), a crusader for prison reform and for better conditions for working people. And she took a new name more in keeping with the work of the Lord and the fight against slavery.

She became Sojourner Truth, a woman who was a legend in her own time, both before and after the Civil War, when she turned to helping freedmen find employment, urging settlement of land in the west, and became one of the first to take up the cause of civil rights.

The Days in Court

At varying distances along the way, she was accused of helping to plot murder but was found innocent and won a lawsuit against a newspaper which had ignored her rights before the law. This was only five years after she had ascended the steps of the present day Ulster County Courthouse in her bare feet to fight for her son's freedom before the Grand Jury. The building then had weathered only one decade, was awesomely new and formidable when this 1828 slave woman pleaded for the return of her young son from Alabama, where he had been taken in defiance of New York law which prohibited selling or even transporting slaves to another state at the risk of forcing their freedom. Miraculously, she had won that case, too, in an unprecedented fight almost 10 years prior to a somewhat similar battle in the same building by Michael and Mary Liuni — a fight that involved a blonde, white girl instead of a black-haired, dark skinned boy.

SOJOURNER IN QUAKER GARB

Along the way, too, she had spent three years in the high intellectual circles of an abolitionist Utopian association, and had had a book written about her life — a book that sold as well in 1850 (the year of the controversial passage of the Fugitive Slave Bill) as James Balswin's essay sell today. As the book sold, so did Sojourner's original songs and copies of her photograph . . . for she was extraordinary looking and possessed of an air of authority.

Her accomplishments were many. She was the only Negro delegate from Massachusetts to the first Women's Rights Convention in that state and to another in Ohio. A constant stream of speaking engagements took her through the East and Mideast; she integrated the streetcars of Washington by wining a lawsuit for assault and battery against one of the railway's motormen; and she was granted a private audience with Presi-Abraham Lincoln. She was arrested time and time again dur-the War Between the States while speaking in unsympathetic Indiana and, believed to be on her death bed at 65, lived on into her late '80s or longer when the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation helped to breathe new sustenance into her tall, pain-wracked body.

Journey Toward Freedom

All this and so much more is detailed and explored in a magnificently researched and written book by Jacqueline Bernard, a New Yorker who has worked as a reporter, translator and advertising copywriter. Just published by W. W. Norton & Company Inc., the book is entitled "Journey Toward Freedom" with the sub-title, The Story of Sojourner Truth. Within its 265 pages is a wealth of beautiful illustrations, many of them picturing Ulster County in the long, long ago.

Jacqueline Bernard has done a thoroughly comprehensive job on this biography, which will be enjoyed by young people and adults alike. And the book comes at a time when it is particularly relevant to many Negro struggles today which are not unlike Sojourner's and with which many are trying to identify.

In giving much credit to the Senate House Museum here in Kingston and to New Paltz and city residents for assisting in the book's research, author Bernard says nothing about her own diligence in the more than 10 years spent gathering infotmation and writing this interest-holding volume.

It is made perhaps even more interesting for local readers who like Sojourner, had never heard the name of Lincoln until he was elected president, never knew of her existence here when our area was young. Author Bernard proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that Sojourner Truth was one of Ulster's most illustrious natives and, possibly, its single, most distinguished celebrity.

A Long-Time Plan

In an author's note, the writer says she has wanted to write about Sojourner's contribution to American history since her college days in Chicago. She has done so and accomplished the task with masterful selectivity, although the book's publication comes many years later when her own son is attending Oxford. The book, incidentally, is dedicated to him. He's Joel Bernard, who spent much of his youth in Woodstock, attended Onteora High School, and worked during 1964's Freedom Summer for the cause of civil rights in Mississippi.

The book is a fitting monument to Sojourner Truth and at least a partial answer to many Negroes who complain bitterly that they are not taught the accomplishments and history of their race in the schools of this country.

As we finished the book, we began to wonder, however, if it was monument enough to this remarkable personality, at least as far as Ulster County is concerned. Why is there no physic-

MARTIN LIVES IT UP IN "ROW"

THE FLIM-FLAM MAN. Out of Kentucky's bluegrass country comes the legend of "The Flim-Flam Man," the warm-hearted comedy that opened at Kingston's Mayfair Wednesday for a full week's run. Into the idyllic splendor that is this gently rolling land of pastures and horse farms escapes Old Mordecai (George C. Scott), fleeing from the law which takes a dim view of his masterful manner of "cheating the cheaters."

Mordecai is running happily for he is the most artful dodger of them all; takes pride in his elusiveness and his cunning at conning in cards or any other of our small-time buncos. Here in this easy-going Divieland, he meets Young Curley (Michael Sarrazin) a fugitive of another type. AWOL from the Army, Curley becomes the able but reluctant accomplice of the flim-flam man of the title.

Out of the alliance of this somewhat mismatched pair, youthful director Irving Kershner has captured ineffable charm and humor on the screen. As filmed in Panavision and Deluxe color by 20th Century Fox, the movie makes our vote as the most talented discovery of the year. The shimmering, pastoral, sun-washed backgrounds will make you forget temporarily that just outside the movie house, pollution, traffic, detergents and vandals are at work. The Flim-Flam Man is a mood movie, sentimental and nostalgic, but glazed over with the light touch as Mordecai and Curley take the happy high-road to steal cars, peddle moonshine, take advantage of the rustics and dodge the sheriff.

As Mordecai shares his wile and guile with Curley, he dares to dream that the younger man will become his heir and, perhaps, even a better grifter. But is Curley cynical enough toward the flaws of humanity . . . or devoted enough to the profession? Has he the concentration for the job to become as professional in its disciplines as Mordecai? Apparently not. The poor, moonstruck youth finds himself worrying about a victim's beautiful daughter, Sue (Lolita) Lyon, and the heisting of her auto leads to the biggest flim-flam of team all, love, love, cellent use of the beautiful bluegrass landscape as it spins out the tallest of tall tales with all the flavor of an original American myth.

Well Sustained

Leisurely, but never dragging, the legend on screen moves along — well written, broadly humorous, its characters reflecting the gamut of humanity from simple trust to bitter suspicion, the joy of the con artist and the meek gullibility of his victim, the puritan moralities and the individual falls from grace.

Scott is marvelous as the man who breaks the Establishment's code and manages to get away with it time and time again. Sarrazin, making his debut in this film, is an impressive newcomer who gets love and imprisonment.

The ending offers a scheming surprise that proves, once again, that necessity is the mother of invention and Yankee ingenuity is a thoroughly American folk sport. This is a film of pungency and poignancy, superbly acted with a rare simplicity. Anyone who doesn't like it deserves to be dealt out in three-card monte.

—BONNIE AND CLYDE. As just about everyone who can read knows by now, no movie since perhaps "Stromboli" has attracted as much controversy or more attention in print than Bonnie and Clyde . . . And the motivations behind the denunciations or arty praise of "Stromboli" were for far different reasons. In Bonnie and Clyde, however, we have a film over which movie critics and their readers have split in intellectual bitterness with reviewers taking the worst of the beating.

It all started when Hollywood decided to probe the rise and fall of Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow, the bank robbing sweethearts who went around murdering people in the dust bowl territory during the Great Depression. Enter Bosley Crowther, reputable and erudite reviewer for the New York Times, who was forced to write two reviews and three separate attacks after his initial one, denouncing the film's violence, was set upon by hundreds of readers as off-base. Most apparently felt this was cinema of high artistic value and that Crowther was too prejudiced to see it. Time magazine's failure to recognize the savage satire as just that also drew letters from the lowly and the mighty alike, including Jerry Lewis, who felt it was a movie milestone of vast merit. And, after all, he's had so many bad one's himself, he really ought to know.

Reviewers who stepped in late in the controversy were wary enough to take the easy way out; reviewed it right down the middle as did the man from Life and others.

We liked it for a variety of very personal reasons. First off, going to the movies anytime is our favorite form of entertainment and a film has to be gosh awful bad for us to stage a walkout. Bonnie and Clyde is not only not bad, it's very nearly great. It's stylish, satirical and the particular brand of violence it peddles has never bothered us. It's a violence that does not repel for its out-and-out sadism.

It Happened Here

For another thing, no period in American history fascinates us more than the Roaring Twenties and the deepening depression of the '30s and, if B and C is historically inaccurate about B and C on occasion, it does present some of the bleakness of that era. That era when businesses threw off employes to make ends meet, factories cut wages or laid off hands, food money ran low or dwindled to nothing, shoes and galoshes turned to tatters, relief rolls burgeoned and staggered inadequately under the flood, well dressed people fought physically for jobs, and apple sellers took over the sidewalks. And, let's face it, this was, after all, the heyday of gangsters.

All of the argument roiling around the film, whether in too high praise or too harsh damnation, leaves us cold. We enjoyed it for what it was. A true picture of the arid, empty dust bowl country, a lot of exciting car chases (in some perfectly gassy old vintage autos) and, if B and C put away their victims with an eye to their publicity and a casual, mindless, almost childlish unconcern —at least they did not do so with the sadosexual overkill of a James Bond or Al Capone.

All the rootlessness that would have descended on the young during the Depression, with its breadlines, grim collection of shacks and makeshift huts everywhere, its Bonus Army of unemployed veterans, and its capability of instilling in decent people total fear and lack of pride, helps to make Bonnie and Clyde a film of no little merit. Our only gripe would be that some of its misplaced comedy detracts froms its overall impact.

Minors Win Ballgame

Also, making it a near miss, is the fact that the supporting actors outperform the leads. Faye Dunaway as Bonnie and Warren Beatty as Clyde are just too darn good-looking, glamorous and seemingly bright under it all to be believable as small-time tin-types with moron I.Q.'s. But Michael J. Pollard as a chauffeur-mechanic is almost too good to be believed, in spite of the fact that he is not portraying an authentic historical character, but a compilation of several men in the lives of the loving twosome of gangland. Gene Hackman as Clyde's brother and Estelle Parsons as his bride also help to carry the film, as does the freshness of the dialogue.

There is plenty of fiction in Bonnie and Clyde and the romanticizing of the pair in this film has certainly done little to paint them as they really were in real life. Actually, they left a lot more corpses (many of them senselessly shot) in their wake; they were more adroit at lucky escapes than shown; and Bonnie, among other things, wrote what is probably the worst folk song on

Marni Nixon, Voice of the Stars

A Ghost Who Gave Up Old Haunts

Next week's Halloween festivities in Ulster County can be counted on to bring out ghosts aplenty, but one well known ghost — who visited the county recently — has gone out of business. She's Marni Nixon, ghost singing voice of Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady," Natalie Wood in "West Side Story" and Deborah Kerr in "The King and I."

Miss Nixon, in Woodstock one day recently for a visit with her husband, who's been there on-and-off over the summer and fall months collaborating on a Broadway musical, says she'll be doing her own materializing from now on, thank you. Pert and pretty, with red hair and a bright smile, she's tired of the anonymity that came her way as the classical or modern voice behind the stars. A master at movie dubbing behind the scenes she wants to be seen out front and as she is from this day forward.

Offers are coming fast and furiously for the petite singer to display her talents in a variety of musical fields. And because she has so long been heard but not seen, she's snapping up as many offers as her schedule will allow.

From Opera to Pop

Her vocal range and capabilities allow her to sing opera and pop equally well. Prior to the Hollywood soundtracks and in between them, she has sung with citified opera companies, in musical comedy revivals and concerts of all kinds. Now she's taking to the night club circuit and its unearthly racket like no other ghost in history. She's also promised to sing Juliet in Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" with the Seattle Opera this season.

For the attractive and charming Miss Nixon, there are no difficulties involved in making the switch with fluid finesse from classical to pop. She knows both styles well and, more important, when to use them. Apparently, booking agents are beginning to get the message.

Those who have heard her in person or remember her voice as it poured forth in song from the mouths of the screen's Liza Doolittle and Maria of the Puerto Rican West side, might well hope that recording companies would read the lettering on the wall, too. At the moment, the talented singer has no recording contract, although she has recorded an avant-garde classical concert in England, some Stravinsly songs for Columbia, some Latin numbers for capitol, "Mary Poppins" for the Disneyland label (although Julie Andrews was one star who needed no ghost for the movie), and — of all things — an album of Western numbers.

A native Californian, her real name is Margaret Nixon McEathron. Musically inclined from the very beginning, she played violin in a Los Angeles junior symphony at the age of 15; sometimes put aside her strings to sing an aria. Later, she was a mail girl-messenger for MGM, conducting guided tours on the big movie lots of the sprawlin studio. Something of a tease, she sometimes found large tips dropped into her hand by movie-struck tourists, who enjoyed her running commentary. A lot of the commentary, she says, was aimed at disillusioning the rubes and rustics.

Bypassed Lunches

This was the period during which she gave up lunch for voice lessons, since these came along free with the weekly salary. L. B. Mayer's secretary took a liking to her; helped her get the job as little Margaret O'Brien's voice in a movie called "The Secret Garden." Ironically, she had to sing a Hindu lullaby and needed coaching from an Indian. From then on in, she was the acknowledged queen of the dubbers and her ability to ghost-imitate by sounding like the person she was singing for brought her a lucrative, if not celebrated, career.

Altogether, she eventually ghosted in more than 20 movies, including one in which she was supposed to be the voice of opera singer Maria Callas being broadcast over a radio. Some of

Leger Exhibit at Vassar Now

A selection of paintings, drawings, prints, and sculpture by French painter Fernand Leger, one of the leading artists of the 20th century, is on view at Vassar College Art Gallery until No. 8. Works were selected from private collections, galleries, and museums, and organized for circulation in the U. S. and Canada by the Museum of Modern Art, New York. The exhibition shows 34 smaller works ranging from a cubist gouache drawing of 1912 to a ceramic sculpture of 1954, the year before Leger's death.

Leger was born in Argentan, Normandy, in 1881, and after giving up the study of architecture, began to study painting in 1903 in Paris. He was well known among the avant-garde in Paris, and was an influential teacher after 1922. He began making sculpture in 1949 in Eiot, France. He worked in clay and attempted to keep the same directness and forthrightness as in his paintings, often borrowing his images directly from paintings.

Among paintings displayed at Vassar are The Clock, of 1918, and Two Women and Interior, both of 1922, in which Leger conveys the quality of modern life with extraordinary richness and beauty. Some of the works in the exhibition were painted in the U. S. where Leger lived from 1940 until 1945 and worked with great enthusiasm. Several works illustrate Leger's fascination with the telling properties of the movie close-up and show his eventual liberation of color from line. He is known for his movie, Ballet Mechanique, consisting of objects in motion (1924), murals, and book illustrations, as well as his paintings.

Blanch as Winter Instructor

A painting and drawing workshop will be conducted during the coming winter months by Woodstock artist Arnold Blanch, long-time dean of the art colony, prize-winning painter and widely acclaimed teacher.

The workshop will be held at the Creative Arts Camp, 7 Wiley Lane, Woodstock, Wednesday and Thursdays from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

The aim is to include experimental work, work from the model, drawing, and still life and landscape painting. Fees will be charged on the basis of each three week session. Classes begin Nov. 1 and enrollment will be limited. Those interested in registering may call 679-2902 for further information.

ARNOLD BLANCH

Arnold Blanch, long recognized as one of the finest art teachers in the country, is known for his special ability to recognize and understand each student's work personally, a trait many feel is perhaps the most important function of the teacher in a creative field.

His rich background as an instructor includes some 25 years with the Art Students League, teaching stints at many art centers and universities such as Michigan State, University of Hawaii and California Institute of Art, and lecturing sessions at such universities as Louisiana, Florida, Wisconsin and Syracuse.

In addition, his paintings are owned by most of the major museums in the U. S. and by many private collectors.

Art Goes Electric

The day may come when Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy will offer an engineering degree in fine arts. That is, if a recent trend in art continues.

The best creative efforts of the artist and the engineer have come together in the form of "Kinetic" art, a new idiom in which modern technology becomes the artist's tool, replacing the traditional brush and pallet. The result—mechanical works of art that actually move, sing, and talk to convey the artist's message.

"The day is gone when we judge the works of man by traditional aesthetics," says Herbert Gesner, head of the Department of New Media, of New York University's Graduate School of Arts. "An oil painting in an elegant frame cannot compete with the Apollo moon shot on any level, spiritual or otherwise."

Some of Gesner's works may be seen at "Experience," an exhibit of Kinetic-light art now being held at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute's Student Union, through Nov. 3.

Unveiling Envotron

A highlight of the exhibit will come today with the unveiling of Gesner's newest creation, the Envotron.

"It's basically a big black box outfitted with an organ keyboard and a bank of multicolored lights which can be 'played' in conjunction with the other electronic instruments," said Peter Schwartz, art chairman for the Union dedication. "The artist can either pre-program it, or play it himself, creating a sort of audio-visual symphony."

The electronic device was two years in the making and cost $10,000 for materials alone.

Other artists whose works are being shown are: Frank Lincoln Viner, Sheldon Machlin, John Willenbecher, Robert Rauschenberg, Enrique Castro-Cid, Gerald Oster, Serge Boutourline and Kim Boressoff.

The exhibit is part of Rensselaer's "Identity '67" forum and student union dedication. Dedication ceremonies for the new union took place last weekend with Senator Mark O. Hatfield giving the dedication address.

A Monument to Col. Chandler

ally visable monument to Sojourner Truth in our area? Henry Hudson, who did little more than sail past us, has such a monument — as does DeWitt Clinton, whose contributions to history are not even that far-reaching in the opinion of some. Colonel George Chandler, who was not even born locally and spent only some small portion of his life here, not only has a stone monument — but a superhighway named in his honor.

The Time and the Place

Why no monument to Sojourner? No woman has deserved one more, it seems to us. Nor could any time be more appropriate for its placement than today.

Sojourner Truth was a living example of the "We Shall Overcome" attitude a great many years before the phrase became popular . . . and she pretty much fought the battle alone from her own fleet chariot.

In an era when many of the headlines revolve around Sojourner's people, that section of Downtown Kingston where she once lived is still called home by many small girls not unlike her. They may watch speedboats and yachts from the shore where Sojourner once shaded her eyes to see the stately masts and statelier sails. And they may skate on Rondout Creek in leather boots with sharp blades where Sojourner once flashed by with smooth beef bones tied to her feet. But some of them still coast down the snowy hills on the curved wooden staves of a broken barrel as she did . . . or on a square of linoleum or plastic.

Any monument to Sojourner would be a monument to both them and the other residents of Ulster County.

Bennett Shows British Prints

"Contemporary British Printmakers" is the current show presented by the Art Department of Bennett College, Millbrook, N. Y. The exhibit is on view in the Halcyon Hall Art Gallery and will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily through November 22.

The exhibit is the first collective showing in the United States of prints by members of the Printmakers' Council of Britain. While the collection does not represent the entire membership, it is a selection of the kind of prints currently being produced in Britain and represents an art form that has become a powerful vehicle for the communication of creative ideas.

Guested With Hayes

Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy chatted at length with a Circleville resident on their radio program over WOR-AM one recent Thursday morning. Their Columbus Day guest was Wallace D. A Ghost Who her singing parts have been major, some minor, and some simply singing the title song over the title and through the picture. After doing the latter for "The Four Poster," she began to glean attention in the press and on radio and television.

But, ghostly elements had been at work and, on the night of the movie's premiere, Miss Nixon, elegantly attired, waited in vain to here her song. It had ended on the cutting room floor and all that had been gained from the interviews and publicity was that a few people just might possibly remember her name in the future.

Due for Fame

Now that's she's branching out, a lot more people will be hearing about her, and not as an unknown voice behind the teacher of the children of the King of Siam or a grubby Cockney flowergirl headed for the high society life at the Ascot races.

Life appeared more than buly for Miss Nixon, as she whirled into Woodstock between showtime stints at Manhattan's Maisonette. She sandwiched in the day for a visit with her husband, Ernest Gold, who has written his share of movie scores and is now trying his hand at a stage musical in the relative quiet of an art colony retreat. The couple have three children, two teenagers and a five-year-old . . . and they're all redhaired like their mama. The oldest a boy, is following mom careerwise to some extent. He's half of a duo and has a recording contract. But he doesn't hesitate to tell his mother that she should sing her kind of things and let him do the Beatle type songs. Shrewd mother and good singer that she is, she heeds his advice and as a result, a whole, brand new career looms in her future.

$95,835 for Festival of the Arts

A Federal grant in the whopping amount of $95,835 is expected to pave the way for an all-encompassing Festival of the Arts in this area. As envisioned, the arts festival would be a regional activity combining all that Ulster, Orange, Sullivan, Dutchess, Upper Westchester and Putnam counties have to offer in the way of culture.

Word of the grant was passed along to the Mid-Hudson Regional Center, New Paltz, by the State Education Department Center on Innovation The proposed festival of the arts idea had been submitted on behalf of Dr. Fritz Hess, supervising phincipal of the Library School District at Liberty. As of now, the grant would seem to hold the promise of becoming a reality in the not-too-distant future, but its final approval still rests on passage of the appropriations by Congress. That aguust body of legislators is expected to be sympathetic to the proposal.

Dr. Raymond G. Kenyon, director of the Paltz located Regional Center, said the purpose of the festival is to design a regional systems model "Festival on Arts" as "a prologue to a statewide program involving rural non-farm students, teachers and parents in the performing arts." Emphasis, he said, would be on an in-residence program on the part of performing artists involved.

Credit for plans for the festival go to Dr. Kenyon; Dr. Hess; Dr. Vivienne Anderson, director of the State Division of Arts and Humanities; and Mrs. Irma E. Gray, assistant director of the Mid-Hudson Regional Center.

Festival of the Arts is one more in an ever lengthening list of projects approved in this area under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title III. Five other such programs are currently underway here, all contributing to the educational excellence of the community.

Classic Guitarist Due Sunday for Campus Concert

Venezuelan classic guitarist Rodrigo Riera will be the guest artist at Middletown Sunday night, Oct. 29, for a chamber music concert by the Hudson Valley Chamber Players at Orange County Community College.

The 8:30 p. m. public concert, a program of the college's 1967-68 Lyceum Series, is the second event of a Hudson Valley Philharmonic Festival being held at OCCC this year and will take place in Orange Hall auditorium.

Riera, who is preparing for a recital in New York City's Town Hall, will play works of Turina, Haydn, DeVisee, Scarlatti, Villa-Lobos, Albeniz and Boccherini during the OCCC performance Sunday.

Members of the Philharmonic's Chamber Players are Alice Smiley and Christine Fredenburgh on violin, Mildred Johnson on viola, Karl VanAusdal playing cello and Kenneth Fricker, double bass.

Prior to intermission, the program will include, among other offerings, a song of the bullfight ring. Later, the Quintet in E minor for Guitar and Strings will be performed.

Riera studied at Escuela Superior de Musica in Caracas under the supervision of Maestro Raul Borges. Because of his exceptional talent, he was later awarded a scholarship by the Venezuelan government for study at Real Conservatorio in Madrid. There he earned a first prize and subsequently attended guitar courses given by Andres Segovia at Academia Chigiana in Siena, Italy.

He enjoys widespread popularity with the public and press. Musical audiences recognize his impeccable technique and reward this accomplished guitarist with the success he deserves.

Tickets for the concert are available at the box office.

record, The Ballad of Bonnie and Clyde.

And there is indeed plenty of violence, too. But, depending on whether you believe that violence has to be taught or is a simple fact of life, you'll respond to it in different ways. Like we said, we liked it. If you have an itch to settle in on the controversy, Bonnie and Clyde is playing through Monday night at the Woodstock Theatre.

MURDERER'S ROW and THE SILENCERS. Here's a couple of re-issues, playing tonight and tomorrow at Kingston's Community Theatre, that simply attempt to spoof where Bonnie and Clyde strives to excel. The name of the game in both flicks is girl-watching and the ogler is Dean Martin as special agent Matt Helm. Larded throughout the plot (on ocelot couches and in super sportscars) are a bevy of long-haired, undressed lovelies known as the "Slaygirls" without whom super-spy Matt Helm could not undertake his adventures.

And does Dino ever have adventures! He does a lot of fighting but never once uses his fists. He tries double helpings of all those gorgeous dolls and he wallows in unbelievable Eastman color luxury. He uncovers guns in such unlikely places as the special built-in pockets of brunette Daliah Lavi's bra, and knives in blonde Nancy Kovack's innocent looking fists—although, in all truth, the rest of Miss Kovack looks anything but innocent.

It is our personal opinion that this twin-bill is too blatantly racy for the kiddies. But if you're an adult who doesn't care who knows it, you'll probably get a day's supply of laughs from the tongue-in-cheekiness of Dino, the discotheque wriggling of Ann-Margret and whatever comedy, romance, adventure and excitment they manage to dream up.

sic heritage of central and southern Africa. Born in England in 1903, he has lived in southern Africa since 1921. In 1932, he received a Carnegie research grant to investigate African music and has continued his interest in that field since. He was Director of Broadcasting in Natal, South Africa, from 1934 to 1946.

Two of his sons, Andrew and Paul, created and star in the Broadway musical hit, "Wait a Minim," now playing in Chicago and the African music which opens the show was originally recorded by Dr. Tracey. Others which he first studied and recorded are also used in the performance.

Among the other dramatic, artistic and musical events of the week have been lectures to students of the Campus School by Mphiwa B. Mbatha, assistant professor of anthropology at New Paltz, on the subject "Coming of Age Among the Southern Bantu in Africa." Selected films are also being shown for the school children during the festival. The entire festival is free to the public.

If any company or individual tries to sell you heating equipment saying that they can give you automatic heat that is cheaper . . . or nearly as cheap as OIL . . . MAKE THEM PUT IT IN WRITING!

Such a letter, if signed by an officer of the company will give you the opportunity to take legal action and get the equipment removed when you prove by experience that their statements were false.

OIL HEAT'S BEST

Here's why:

1. Oil is Economical . . . your fuel oil dealer can show you positive proof of fuel savings.
2. Oil is Safe . . . no danger of devastating explosion or asphyxiation.
3. There's no monopoly of service or product . . . you can choose from any of many area suppliers who have a competitive interest in serving you best.
4. Oil can be Stored . . . no worry about variation in pressure, line leaks or breaks or cold-weather demand shortages.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved. H. T. Dickinson & Co., Inc., New York.

Fence It In Maybe?

"We started with the problem of how to hide its old furnace when we bought our 'new house,' new to us, that is. My wife said maybe we coud fence it in somehow, or screen it off so we could use some of the basement. But it was the guy next door who came up with the right answer: 'throw it out . . . and put in a complete electric heating system the way I did. You won't be sorry.' So I talked to his contractor and now we're really living in style. And comfort."

The man who said that is not untypical of householders who reap greater rewards than they expected by a changeover to electric heating. This pair had moved — in the summer time — when the ugliness of the basement, the mere looks of it, seemed the greatest challenge. He adds, "the house already had pretty good insulation so it was comfortable and you just can't imagine how it might feel on a winter day. But as it turned out, the neighbors were able to add another selling point; after all they'd heard the squawks of the former owners. Seems the two north bedrooms upstairs never did get enough heat when the temperature outside dropped.

"With electric heat of course, they're no problem to us. The temperature is whatever we set it for."

And even better, whatever temperature you set is what you get be it day or night. For unlike other systems electric heat starts to warm the instant it's switched on. And wat's more, the heat is even. There is no need to overheat nearby rooms to get a little warmth into problem areas. Each room can be set for the precise temperature wanted at a specific time.

And of course electric heating solves some big decorating and space problems too. With no boulky furnace to hide, the area transforms into a fresh chunk of living area.

QUESTION BOX

Question: Why are storm windows on the list of things we'd need with electric heating?

Answer: Storm windows — or double sash — are included as a necessary component of effective insulation. The electric heating industry, admirably we think, has spelled out everything that will help you get full fuel power and even heat from an electric home heating system.

The fuel you know is as well nigh perfect in itself as it can get. It's 100 per cent efficient. But large cold areas (like a single layer of picture window) could increase fuel use unnecessarily. To say nothing of the unnecessary cold drafts you'd have to dodge.

Question: I had thought the Gold Medallion was the name of a local community here, but I saw something about it just recently in a magazine ad. What's it all about?

Answer: The Gold Medallion is an actual award given to houses which fulfill a printed set of standards for complete electric living. Electric heating is a must for qualifying, so are a certain number of major appliances plus a selection of optionals.

The house must also measure up to prescribed standards of insulation (spelled out according to climatic zone as well as type of structure) and of course be wired in accordance with Gold Medallion standards. These, by the way, take care not only of your present needs, but have provisions for enough extra circuits to cover inventions that haven't even come off the drawing boards yet, much less come to market. So you won't have to invest in additional wiring as new electrical products come along.

The award itself is in two parts: A real little medallion that you can put up on the side of the house, incorporate into the door knocker, or maybe the bell shield. Then you also get a certificate which we suggest you keep with the deed to the house. It could mean more money if you want to sell.

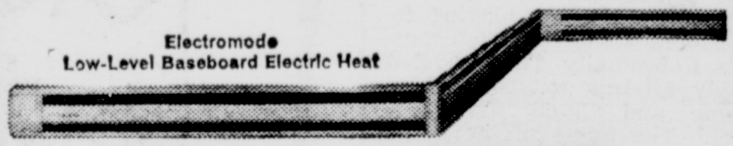

Your utility company can supply free literature with more details.

Indeed it would! For heat that's clean, healthful, comfortable. For heat that's flameless, fumeless . . . soot and dirt-free. Low installation costs, too. No ducts, pipes, radiators, chimney or fuel storage space required. There is an Electromode electric heater or heating system to fit any remodeling plan. Let us help you choose the one best for you. Mideast Plans Split UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council is split over rival plans for sending a U.N. representative to the Middle East to try to open the way to a lasting Arab-Israeli peace settlement. Informed sources said a drafting team of six nonpermanent council members had agreed in principle on a formula, but Canada and Denmark came in Friday night with a rival plan.

The six-nation draft outlined several basic principles for a settlement, including that Israel should withdraw from those parts of Egypt, Jordan and Syria it occupied in the June war and that the Arab states should abandon their 19-year-old state of belligerency toward Israel.

India, Argentina, Brazil, Ethiopia, Mali and Nigeria drafted that proposal. When they showed it to the council's other four elected members—Bulgaria, Canada, Denmark and Japan—Danish Foreign Minister Hans Tabor introduced the rival Canadian-Danish plan. Diplomatic sources said that plan only indicated that Israel should withdraw from the captured territory, stating that countries should not keep troops on other countries' territories against their will.

The council president for October, Japanese Ambassador Senjin Tsuruoka, said the 10 delegates would meet again Monday morning to discuss the two proposals.

Efforts to obtain a permanent Arab-Israeli settlement have been spurred by Egypt's sinking of the Israeli destroyer Elath last Saturday and the Israeli shelling of Port Suez Tuesday which set fire to Egypt's two major oil refineries.

The Costly Air War:

14 U. S. Jets, 27 MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes evidently hit the Hanoi area today for the fifth straight day. A North Vietnamese broadcast said five planes were shot down over the city and some of the pilots were captured.

In the ground war, the U.S. Command announced U.S. troops killed 131 Communist soldiers in a series of clashes Friday south of Dan Nang.

There was no immediate American report on the day's air operations over the North. Intense raids on the Hanoi-Haiphong sector Friday raised the week's plane toll so far in North Vietnam to 14 U.S. jets shot down and 27 enemy MIGs destroyed or damaged.

Reported American casualties in the ground fighting near Tam Ky and Hoi An, two provincial capitals south of Da Nang, totaled 19 dead and 75 wounded.

Communist shelling of Con Thien and other forward U.S. Marine outposts just below the demilitarized zone also increased, from a recent daily average of 100 or less rounds to an estimated 170 Friday. Seven Marines were killed and 41 wounded, U.S. headquarters said.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division battled the Reds in a series of scattered actions near Hoi An and reported 78 of the enemy killed. In the largest fight, eight miles south of the provincial capital, the U.S. Command said 35 Communists and 10 Americans were killed and 33 Americans wounded.

To the south on the coastal plains near Tam Ky, troops of the Americal Division fought a series of clashes with North Vietnamese units and reported 53 of the enemy and nine Americans killed and 42 Americans wounded.

In the largest clash five companies of U.S. troops—about 900 men—were pitted against a force of about the same size from the North Vietnamese 2nd Division.

U.S. headquarters said American pilots shot down four MIGs Thursday and one Friday, bringing to 27 the number of Soviet-made jet fighters reported destroyed or damaged in aerial combat or on the ground this week.

Enemy ground fire brought down three American planes Friday, the U.S. Command said and four more aviators were listed as missing. This raised to 720 the number of U.S. combat planes reported lost over North Vietnam in the war.

96-MPH Buffalo Winds

Three Boys Are Safe

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Winds that blew in off Lake Erie with gusts up to 96 miles an hour pounded the Buffalo area Friday night and early today, sinking scores of small boats, felling power lines and driving some persons from flood-endangered homes.

Three young boys, reported missing in the lakefront area, were found safe several hours after dawn.

The wind, which hit hardest along the water front, decreased to 18 miles an hour by 8 a.m.

At Brant, 25 miles southwest of Buffalo, 19 persons were evacuated by boats from summer cottages and house trailers inundated by water that spilled from Cattaraugus Creek, which empties into the lake.

The Coast Guard station in Buffalo harbor recorded the 96-mile-an-hour gust. The Weather Bureau said the wind had reached 59 miles an hour at its airport station.

Within hours after the winds rolled in from Lake Erie Friday night, at least 40 docked boats had been sunk and scores of others damaged. The total loss was estimated tentatively at well over $150,000.

At the height of the storm, the lake level rose eight to 10 feet above normal, with wind-churned waves slapping angrily against retaining walls. Sections of a few lake shore roads south of Buffalo and in neighboring Fort Erie, Ont. were reported under water.

Dozens of trees and tree limbs were knocked down by the powerful gusts, often carrying power lines with them. Emergency crews worked to restore service in many scattered locations throughout Erie, Niagara and northern Chautauqua counties.

Critics of Adirondack Park Topic of Mt. Club Address

WARRENSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — Laurance S. Rockefeller said today the proposed Adirondack Mountains National Park could be set up to insure the "forever wild" character of the area.

Discussing some of the objections which have been raised to the proposal he also suggested that the rights of present property owners could be insured and foresaw the possibility of continued hunting within the park.

Population Problems

In remarks for the annual dinner of the Adirondack Mountain Club Rockefeller stressed that the basic issue was to meet the problems that increasing population pressures will bring on the Adirondacks.

Rockefeller suggested that the basic policies which govern the other national parks might be altered somewhat to create the 1.7 million acre park within the Adirondack preserve he proposed last month.

While noting the visionary wisdom of New Yorkers who wrote the "forever wild" provision in the State Constitution 80 years ago, he said he is now "concerned that we may be resting on the laurels of our grandfathers."

"We must not allow ourselves to cling to past solutions if they are not the wisest policy for today," said Rockefeller, who is chairman of President Johnson's Citizens' Advisory Committee on Recreation and Natural Beauty.

"Equally," he added, "we must not be firmly wed to any specific new proposal. The National Park is one means of solution, but if there is a better one, I shall enthusiastically endorse it."

Six Principal Questions

Dealing with six "principal questions" raised by critics of the park proposal, he said:

—Concern that the forever wild character of the park might be threatened by development could be met by having the basic enabling legislation "specify that the park was to be managed for its wilderness values."

—As for fears of property owners that their lands might be condemned, he said, "where the private use is consistent with the park purpose, I see no reason for public acquisition within any particular period of time.

"The government should have an easement against adverse development and a right of first refusal should the owners want to sell."

—On sportsmen's concern that hunting be abolished, he saw the possibility of compromise, noting limited hunting is now allowed in a few national parks.

"Also the National Park Service administers other types of units, such as national recreation areas and national seashores, where hunting is permitted. Perhaps some combination can be worked out whereby the areas most used by hunters can remain open," he said.

—Rockefeller said some formula could be worked out to avoid a loss of revenue to local governments that now receive payments from the state in lieu of taxes.

But he noted that the park proposal suggested "a declining 20-year scale of payments" which anticipated that economic gains from the park operation would offset tax losses.

—On fears expressed by the lumber industry, Rockefeller said "we can make sure that the industry is not put out of business by any park. It may require adjustment of boundaries. It may also require innovation and imagination to allow cutting to continue on a managed basis in certain areas."

—And he expressed disagreement with critics who object to the federal government playing a role in the Adirondacks "as a matter of principle." He said cooperative efforts work well in such fields as highway construction, health and welfare and others.

ARRESTED—Frederick Benjamin Thompson (shown in '67 portrait), accused murderer of New Jersey socialite Mrs. Dorothy Beck Palmer, was arrested by FBI agents in a bus terminal in Chicago late Friday, authorities said today. The 35-year-old ex-convict has been sought since the bloody death of the 57-year-old Harding Township (N. J.) matron Sept. 29. Thompson is to appear before an acting U.S. Commissioner in Chicago today on charges of unlawful flight. (UPI TELEPHOTO from files)

Bechtold Proposal:

12-Man Citizens' Advisory Group

"It is ridiculous to assume that any one man can manage all the affairs of our city without some guidance and assistance," C. John Bechtold, Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor, said today in announcing his plans to formulate a Citizens Advisory Committee.

In a speech before the Republican City Committee, Bechtold announced his intention "when elected, to immediately contact respected local experts in banking, law, real estate, insurance, Chamber of Commerce and labor, to join in this group whose function will be to guide the mayor in the administration of city affairs.

Bechtold explained "city government has become a very big, complicated business in every respect. Mayor Garraghan himself has stated many times, and correctly, that the problems of dealing with the federal government alone are terribly time consuming and complicated. It is my opinion that a mayor should seek help and guidance wherever he can find it, and this would be the basis of this group. The President of the United States has such a group to assist him in the complexities of governmental administration. Mine, of course, would be volunteer, unpaid and on a part-time basis.

"My Citizen Advisory Committe would probably total 12 Kingston residents, each a respected citizen in his own right. In addition, I would include the various city department heads and board chairmen such as city clerk, treasurer, public works and water department.

"The Citizens Advisory Group would probably meet on a regular monthly basis, with special meetings as required. Its principal function would be to act in strictly an advisory capacity to the mayor. It would probably conduct its own investigations of various pressing matters of city business," Bechtold said.

Bechtold said "let it be clearly understood that the decisions will still be made by the mayor and no one else. But, I have long been of the opinion that many wrong and harmful decisions are made by well meaning persons in an executive capacity who did not avail themselves of competent advice and guidance. I doubt if any man, no matter what his background, could reasonably expect to be completely versed and expert in all phases of the extremely complicated business which is city government. Why then is it not within the realm of good sense to seek out assistance? I am certain there are many good citizens of our city who would gladly donate their time, experience and knowledge to assisting their mayor in the proper administration of city affairs."

By RAY TYSON

A 16-year old fugitive from a Massachusetts institution, who eluded capture from searching police since Thursday morning following a chase in a stolen car on the State Thruway, north of Catskill, was taken into custody Friday night by Leeds State Troopers, west of Athens.

The runaway, Stephen Clark, was picked up near a service station along Route 9W in the Town of Athens, police said. He had in his possession a knife, blackjack and billy-club, troopers said.

Investigators told The Freeman that Clark was first sought Thursday morning after a high-speed auto chase along the Thruway. Officials said the youth escaped capture when the car finally crashed north of Catskill.

A companion, Allan J. Daley of Massachusetts, was arrested following the accident. He was charged with possession of burglary tools and reckless endangerment. Police said Daley is being held in the Greene County jail.

Clark, however, avoiding detection, was spotted Friday in another stolen auto. Troopers said the wayward youth allegedly stole a car from Mt. Marion and again entered the Thruway where he was again chased by police.

Two miles north of Catskill, police noted, the youth wrecked the auto and fled into the woods. Friday afternoon police declared they had Clark "pinpointed," but he eluded apprehension despite being surrounded, authorities disclosed.

Troopers said around 7 o'clock barking dogs and complaints of a prowler alerted investigators that the youth was nearby.

Taken by surprise near the gas station, Clark humbly surrendered, troopers said.

Officers described the escaped Massachusetts inmate as being neatly dressed, tall and very slight. Police said the youth was 6 feet 2 inches and weighed only 140 pounds.

Clark was booked for possession of dangerous weapons and a fugitive from justice. They added stolen auto charges would probably be forthcoming from other sectors.

The Political Winds

A Look at '67 City, County Registration: What Does It Mean?

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Freeman Political Writer

It is difficult to say just what the 1967 voter registration figures mean because of a decided lack of any valid criteria for judging them — a reason for this being that for years the registration books were listing as voters people who had long since departed this vale of tears.

Kingston, with 12,745 registrants, is up 1,091 from last last year. The rest of the county totals 48,925 which, judging by last year's 56,825, appears as a decrease but in fact, is not, and this is the interesting part.

The 1966 county vote (excluding Kingston) was only 41,254 — a difference from the same year's registration figures of 15,571!

(There was only a span of 435 between 1966 registrants and voters in the City, where it was impossible to register a dead person.)

According to a spokesman at the Board of Elections, a letter would be sent around to County residents who had failed to vote for the previous four years, and if they did not respond their names would be taken off the books.

Names Put Back

"But often times," the spokesman said, "the names would be put back on the books by party committeemen."

Whether the committeemen were out of touch with their community and were not aware of who had moved away or died, or whether more astute motives were involved, is not known.

The voting figures show, however, that many silent partners appeared in the registration books year after year.

Permanent personal registration should solve this age-old problem.

On to the problem of prediction:

The Board of Elections spokesman said that the feeling was that the general County registration was up, and, if this is so, this could favor the out-party Democrats.

High registration figures tend to demonstrate much more than simple interest in a political campaign; rather, they show dissatisfaction.

One fairly stable factor in voter registration is that people do not turn out in droves when they are unmoved by the issues, when they feel they have not been given a real choice in the matter, and when they are vaguely satisfied with the present government.

They do turn out, however, when they are bothered, scared, excited.

Far too many people would rather vote somebody out of office than vote to retain an office-holder who has been giving a fair, if unexcitable, performance.

Equally, people will turn out in great numbers to keep a person from being elected.

A high registration figure, then will generally favor the out-party.

As for the City of Kingston: John Ray Mayone, GOP City chairman, believes that Kingston registration will favor C John Bechtold and Louis J. Smith, the Republican candidates for mayor and alderman-at-large.

Citing an increase of registration in normally Republican wards, coupled with a decrease in some traditionally Democratic wards, keeping in mind that Mayor Garraghan won Kingston by only 374 votes in 1965, Mayone is left with the impression that Bechtold and Smith have a voting the edge of "at least 800 votes."

No Certainty

Mayone probabably realizes, however, that the Bechtold-Smith ticket would have to have solid support from the GOP voters of 1965, and of this, no one can be certain.

Any incumbent Kingston Mayor seeking reelection to a second term of office must be considered to have an edge. And regardless of how many issues have been explored by Republican-Liberal Bechtold in that long line of press releases to come out of the GOP Wall Street headquarters, the grim fact is that a vast number of voters are not moved by political multi-varied themes. They recognize a phrase or a name, and an incumbent's name is very recognizable.

In New York City one year, a man called Abe Stark won a post on the City Council. Why? Because for years Abe Stark's name appeared in huge letters on a wall of the Brooklyn Dodger's Ebbets Field ball park.

Stark had held no political office prior to his election, nor had he come up with any controversial issues.

The simple fact is that the voters were familiar with that group of letters that made up his name.

With all the hammering at Garraghan's alleged "ineptness" in office, one is struck with the obvious use of the Mayor's name — over and again Mayor Garraghan's name is mentioned.

One other Republican problem is the creating of a strong image for Bechtold. Voters must not only hear and see his name often but they must be able to identify it with strength, action, leadership, qualification, and all those virtues which make for a winner.

It just may be, however, that November 7 will tell a very close story, regardless of the 17-5 edge certain city gamblers have given to Garraghan.

1st Emmanuel Church Marks Annniversary

The 54th anniversary of the founding of First Emmanuel Church, 50 Abeel Street, will be marked with special programs Sunday.

At 11:30 a.m. the members of the Bryton Rock Rod and Gun Club of which Harry C. Gaynes is president and Harvey V. Herron is secretary, will have their fifth annual sermon delivered.

The guest speaker will be the Rev. Christopher N. Blades, Corona. Special music will be presented by the church choir with Mrs. Milvie Lee Wilson of Flushing as soloist.

At 2 p.m. the Business Women's Guild will serve a luncheon. Hostesses will be Mrs. Jennie Ulett, guild president; Mrs. Gloria Y. Herron, secretary and Mrs. Bessie B. Perry, chaplain.

Among the many activities conducted by the church is its vacation program through Camp Bryton Rock at Allaben. Mrs. Lilybelle E. McHugh, wife of the Rev. Reginald L. McHugh, co-pastor of the church, is camp director. Their son, the Rev. Marco R. McHugh, is administrative co-pastor.

Mark Reformation At Union Services

Four hundred fifty years of Reformation history will be observed in Kingston at a festival service held jointly by the Kingston Area Council of Churches and the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer which is celebrating its 70th anniversary this year also.

To be held in Redeemer's sanctuary at Wurts and Rogers Streets Sunday 7:30 p. m. the service will feature Reformation music by the choir of the church under the direction of J. Anthony Hummel Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Lester Decker at the organ assisted by a brass ensemble.

The service will begin with a procession of choir and clergy. The clergymen in the traditional vestments of their denominations will form in the parish house with Russell Anderson acting as marshal.

Music Program

Choral music will include the anthem, Christ is Our Cornerstone based on an ancient Latin text written by Aufdemberge and a chorale cantata Built on a Rock for choir, congregation, organ and brass quintet based on Kirken by Lindeman and arranged by Cassler. The words of the cantata are by Nikolai Grundtvig one of the greatest of Danish hymn writers and an evangelical leader against the rationalism current in Scandinavia in the nineteenth century. The brass quintet, assembled by G. Thomas Keehn, who will be playing trombone along with Wessel Cross, includes Gary Spengler and Walter Highland on trumpets and Barry Leavy, tuba.

Organ music selected for the occasion includes the following preludes: Erhalt uns, Herr, bei deinem Wort by Walther; Ein 'fest Burg by Faulkes and prelude on Old Hundredth by Willan; and as an offertory, We All Believe in One God by Dupre.

The sermon will be given by the Rev. Paul W. Dieckman, PhD, vice president of Wagner College whose topic will be Vision for a New Day.

The host pastor, the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, will conduct the service which also commemorates the first confirmation service at Redeemer on Reformation Day, 1897 when 50 young people were confirmed or baptized, becoming adult members of the congregation which had been organized in January of the same year.

Assisting in the service will be the Rev. Edwin C. Coon, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church and the Rev. Paul R. Mertzlufft, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church of New Paltz.

An informal get-acquainted period will be provided by the 70th anniversary committee of the church in the assembly room after the service.

Clinton Avenue Methodists to Start Canvass

The Commission on Stewardship and Finance of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church has completed plans for its annual every-member canvass.

Sunday has been designated as Personal Commitment Sunday. A brief dedication service will take place during the regular morning worship hour to provide the membership with an opportunity to make a personal presentation and dedication of pledges and tithes in support of the proposed program for 1968. The proposed budget has been set at $38,937.

Loyalty Sunday will be observed on Sunday, Nov. 5, and during the following week when Visitation Teams will call at the homes of members unable to be present at the dedication service.

The church is currently in its 112th year of service and has an enrolled membership of over 700. The Rev. William A. Studwell is the minister.

Rally Day Events Set At Alliance

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Church of Kingston, 90 Miller's Lane, will have special services Sunday according to the pastor, the Rev. George B. Osborne.

The Sunday school will observe its annual Rally Day at 9:45 a. m. with Robert Carleson of Bainbridge, guest speaker and presenting Gospel Magic. All of the classes will be combined for this occasion.

The Rev. Frederick W. Spence of Johnson City will be guest speaker for the morning worship service at 11 o'clock and in the evening gospel hour at 7 o'clock.

Plan Film

A 16 mm sound motion picture in color entitled Martyred Men will be presented in the youth auditorium at 6 p.m. A stirring story of triumph over tragedy in the Auca Jungles, featuring the testimonies of the wife and father of one of the five missionaries slain in Equador. This is a true story of the martyrdom of five missionaries, slain by the Auca Indians in Equador, S. A.

The public may attend.

Film Showing

Going Steady, dramatic sound motion picture on life in a modern American high school, will be shown Sunday, 7 p. m., in the Olive-Shokan Baptist Church, West Shokan. The public may attend.

Dedication Service For Mt. Marion Site

The new Christian education building of the Plattekill Reformed Church, Mt. Marion will be dedicated in special services 3 p.m. Sunday.

Dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Dr. Winfield Burggraaff, director of editorial services for the Board of Education of the Reformed Church in America. The Church and Its Teaching Ministry will be his topic.

The Rev. Donald E. Hicks, pastor of the Woodstock Reformed Church and stated clerk of the Mid-Hudson Classis will deliver the scripture lesson. The Rev. William Babinsky, president of the Classis will lead the congregation in the Litany of Dedication. The Rev. Milton Ortquist of Beacon, representing the Particular Synod of New York will lead the Prayer of Dedication.

Also participating will be the Rev. Alfred Liberatore of the Saugerties Council of Churches; the Rev. Robert Miller of the Grace Community Church, Lake Katrine, and Frederic Snyder, well known lecturer and world traveler.

Keys of the new structure will be presented to the consistory by Walter Wolfeil, contractor. Receiving the keys will be Robert Martin, an elder.

The building which is electrically heated, contains a study, 11 classrooms, a large fellowship hall, kitchen and a large multiple use meeting room.

A coffee hour and open house in the new building will be held after the service which will be conducted by the Rev. John A. Needham Jr., pastor.

Church Council Plans Annual Meeting, Events

The Kingston Area Council of Churches at the monthly meeting Thursday night at the Port Ewen Reformed Church mapped out a number of activities for the remainder of the year.

The Church World Service used clothing drive will culminate Saturday Nov. 4. Good, used clothing will be collected at the member churches prior to that date.

The annual meeting will be held at the First Baptist Church, Albany Avenue at Broadway, Friday, Nov. 17. Speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Vladimir Hartman, executive director of the Albany Capital Area council of Churches. Reservations may be made by contacting Harold Van Allen, council president or the First Baptist Church office.

Recent youth activities of the council included an Up with the People musical presentation at the Fair Street Reformed Church earlier this month. The Rev. Edwin C. Coon, chairman of the Christian Education committee, reports the response was very good.

A youth meeting will be held at St. Joseph's School Sunday, Nov. 5, at 2 p.m. in an effort to develop a singing group comparable to the Poughkeepsie group which performed at the presentation.

Catholic Priest to Be Reformation Day Guest

The Rev. Joseph W. Hickey, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz, will be guest speaker at Reformation Sunday services in Redeemer Lutheran Church, New Paltz.

The Rev Paul R. Mertzlufft, pastor of the Paltz Lutheran church, in making the announcement said "We are pleased to have Father Hickey with us on this particular day which marks the celebration of the 450th anniversary of the Reformation. One of the aims of our observance throughout the whole church has been to intensify dialogues to help heal the breach of the 16th century and seek better understanding with Roman Catholics and other Protestants."

Special services will be at 11 a.m. with regular service of communion at 8:30 a.m.

Father Hickey, who has served St. Joseph's Church since 1959, has been active in college work through the Neuman Club. He was instrumental in setting up the New Paltz Student Christian Center, an ecumenical approach to the student ministry at New Paltz State University College.

Policies on Dead Children In Florida Poisonings Aired

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — The father of seven children killed by insecticide poisoning said in a sworn statement Friday he took out $1,000 double indemnity life insurance policies on each child the night before the tragedy.

But the insurance agent said the policies did not take effect because the father couldn't afford the first week's premium, slightly under $4, according to Asst. State Atty. John Treadwell.

Treadwell said James Richardson, 32, made his sworn statement during an investigation into the deaths of Richardson's seven children.

Insurance agent Gerald P. Purvis said Richardson tried Tuesday night to borrow the premium from him but was refused.

Treadwell said a determination on whether the poisoning of the children—ages 2 to 8—was accidental must wait until pathology reports are finished sometime next week.

At issue, Treadwell said, is whether the children took parathion by eating it or by absorbing it through the skin. The insecticide kills either way.

"This is going to be a long investigation before we get at the truth," Treadwell said. "At the moment we're hurting for hard evidence."

The children were stricken Wednesday after eating from tin plates a lunch of grits, beans, rice and pork prepared by their parents Tuesday night.

Also under investigation was the discovery Thursday by sheriff's deputies of an open two-pound sack of parathion in a shed near the converted hotel called "the Quarters" where the Richardsons lived in a small apartment.

WILLIAM WHALEN

Two city men, Evan J. Davis, chairman of the city Human Relations Commission and William P. Whalen, juvenile aid officer, attended a conference, Oct. 22-27, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, on police and community relations, in Point Pleasant Beach, N. J.

Howard J. Devaney, a former police officer, and director of the National Institute on Police and Community Relations, presided at the meeting in the Beacon Manor Hotel and Motel.

Law enforcement officials and community relations personnel from all over the nation participated in the six-day conference.

Speakers included Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, who spoke on "The Police and Community Conflict."

The opening dinner, Oct. 22, was presided over by New Jersey Supreme Court Judge Walter H. Conklin. Dr. Sterling W. Brown, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, also addressed the participants.

Rhinebeck's Aim: Better School Link

Two groups in Rhinebeck are working toward a better means of communication between the school and the community—the Board of Education and a citizen's group headed by Richard May.

Lack of communication was one of the reasons put forth as being responsible for this year's taxpayer's dilemma over the proposed school budgets which they voted down three times. A fourth referendum is upcoming, Nov. 14.

Meanwhile, the board "wishes to pursue every available means toward improving communications with the community on school issues, a spokesman said and has called a public meeting for Monday night. Citizens are acked to submit questions to the board either by mail, telephone or in person.

The citizen's group has placed question boxes at various places, the library and bank. All questions must pertain to school issues.

"Each of us will be better able to cast our ballot Nov. 14 if we have a complete understanding of this problem," May advocates. "We all need the answers. The question now is getting all the questions."

The petition to come before the voters calls for $67,000 to be added to the present austerity budget of $1,300,677.61 for instructional services, transportation, operation and maintenance of plant and $1,000 for inter-fund transfer for cafeteria.

Poughkeepsie UAW Pickets In Jersey

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — The headquarters of the United Auto Workers local at the Ford plant here was picketed Friday by six officers of the UAW local at Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

The representatives of Local 297 in Poughkeepsie sought support for a 10-month-old strike against the Federal Schatz Bearing Co.

Information about the strike was being distributed to all auto plant locals, said Harry Ackert, spokesman for Local 297, which represents about 800 Schatz employes.

The company, he said, makes ball bearings for the Big Three auto companies.

Ackert said his men earned about $2.66 an hour, below the national average for auto plants, and did not receive UAW pension benefits or cost-of-living increments.

Aaron Resnick, president of Mahwah Local 906, which has 4,200 members, said his local's recourse would be to put pressure on UAW's international office to tell the auto companies not to buy Schatz products.

Uses Hula Hoop

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The hula hoop is doing its part for the national defense.

Amado Chavez had to establish a high magnetic field by use of a transmitting antenna as part of his duties at Sandia Corp., a weapons contractor of the Atomic Energy Commission. He said he needed something rigid, nonconductive and, probably, expensive to cover a loop of wires.

One night at home he watched his daughter, Francine, 13, twirling her pink hula hoop, and he took the hoop to work with him the next day.

Javits Hawk, Stratton Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jcaob K. Javits, R-N.Y., has switched from dove to hawk on the Vietnam War, says Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.

Stratton added that he approved.

"We've been hearing a lot lately about former hawks turning dove," Stratton said. "It is especially reassuring now to hear a dove turning hawk. For Sen. Javits, this is a prodigal homecoming.

"He supported the administration's Vietnam policy in 1966 but deserted to the doves in 1967. We welcome him home again."

Stratton said his comments were prompted by Javits' Senate speech Thursday in which Javits praised formation of a committee by former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Risenhower to mobilize support for President Johnson's conduct of the Vietnam War.

Find Stolen Car In Hurley Town

A stolen auto, reported missing this morning from Kingston, was recovered by sheriff's deputies several hours later abandoned along DeWitt Mills Road, Town of Hurley, officials disclosed.

Joseph DeAngelis of 433 Abeel Street listed his green and white station wagon missing early Saturday, city police said. DeAngelis told headquarters the car was taken from in front of his home during the night.

Deputies James Malesky and Henry Newman, acting on information filed with law enforcement agencies, located the auto in a ditch around 5:30 a. m., the sheriff's office said.

An investigation is being pressed to locate the unknown thief, deputies said.

Ticket Paltz Driver After Speed Chase

David Oliver, Plains Road, New Paltz, was ticketed by sheriff's deputies, state police and New Paltz police on on six counts following a high speed chase early this morning, it was learned.

Oliver, released on $250 cash bail, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Parks Glenn. He is slated to appear in justice court Monday afternoon.

Police said Oliver was charged with reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, failure to obey orders, speeding, running a red light and unlicensed operator. He was apprehended after a three-mile chase, deputies declared.

New Paltz police said Oliver was first observed along Main Street traveling at a high rate of speed. They said he ran a red light, struck a pole and headed out Route 208. Police gave chase.

According to officials, Oliver was finally caught after he turned into Wood Road. Police said he is 26 years old.

Today In History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Oct. 28, the 301st day of 1967. There are 64 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history.

On this date in 1962, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev backed down in the Cuban confrontation and said he had ordered the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba.

On this date:

In 1636, Harvard College was founded in Massachusetts.

In 1776, the Battle of White Plains, N.Y., was fought during the Revolutionary War.

In 1886, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor.

In 1922, Benito Mussolini staged a Fascist march on Rome.

In 1929, losses in quoted values on the New York Stock Exchange exceeded $10 billion.

In 1958, the Roman Catholic patriarch of Venice was elected pope and took the name of John XXIII.

Ten years ago: The United States and Britain agreed in principle to share secrets in the future development of nuclear warheads.

Five years ago—The French voted on a referendum to amend the constitution to provide for direct election of France's president by the people.

One year ago — Communist China announced it had successfully tested a guided missile with a nuclear warhead.

City Hall Plan

The Bechtold-Smith Plan for city hall, published in yesterday's Freeman, referred only to the cost of parking and office relocation at the hall on Broadway.

Bechtold (C. John, Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor) and Smith (Louis J., Republican - Conservative candidate for alderman-at-large) came up with a figure of $15,500 for the purchase of land and the renovation of the third floor of City Hall.

In their release the candidates did specify what over costs would be in renovating City Hall or what they would be.

Likens County Needs to Those Of 1776 Year

JOHN J. LIGGAN

"It was taxation, without representation that pointed out the need for change and led up to this document," stated John J. Liggan, candidate for Councilman in Rosendale, as he displayed the Declaration of Independence before a recent meeting in Rosendale.

"Now, the the people are becoming more aware, it is taxation without proper representation that indicates the crying need for change here in Ulster County," and he added "all over the nation, there seems to be a deterioration of American principles. Patriotism is becoming a dirty word. It is time we take a stand, and start at the town level and elect officials with principles and integrity," Liggan concluded.

Liggan was educated at Pace College, where he majored in accounting and business administration. He had further studies in accounting procedures and economics at the University of North Dakota and special studies through the American College of Life Underwriters. He is presently in business as an insurance consultant with Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Liggan resides in the Binnewater-Cottekill area of Rosendale Township with his wife and family. He is the father of eight children, the oldest three are college educated, and married, the next oldest, Matthew, is in his last year at the State University at Cobleskill. There are four children at home, one in high school and three attend St. Peter's School in Rosendale.

Liggan is a former chairman of the community fund drive for the Town of Rosendale. He has been a member of the Ulster County Democratic Committee for four years, and is a member of St. Peter's Holy Name Society.

Man Jailed, Threatened Family Charged

A Harwich Street man is confined to the county jail in lieu of $500 bail after allegedly threatening his wife and children with a gun, sheriff's deputies report.

Charged with a protection violation is Donald Steward of 218 Harwich Street. He was arraigned before Eddyville Justice of the Peace Arthur Reilly.

Deputies said Steward threatened his family with pistols. They noted the matter was a Family Court affair.

The sheriff's office handles all Family Court arrests, a spokesman explained. He said the complaint was filed by Mrs. Steward in the court. Deputies stated a warrant for Steward's arrest was issued through that court.

According to officials, Steward cannot be charged with unlawful use of a firearm because he holds a pistol permit. However, a spokesman said the permit will undoubtedly be revoked.

Pumpkin Stolen

A super 118-pound pumpkin was reported stolen from the front porch of Paul Mills, 6 Washington Avenue, police declared. Police said that a second pumpkin, weighing 80 pounds, was left behind by the thief but that it will remain outside despite Mills' loss.

Local Death Record

Mrs. Anna Crose

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Crose, 80, of Alligerville, who died Tuesday at her home, were held today at 11 a. m. from the George J. Moylan Funeral Home in Stone Ridge. The Rev. Bruce Carlson, pastor of Rondout Valley Methodist Church, officiated. During the bereavement at the funeral home many friends called and many floral tributes were received. Burial was in the Pine Bush Cemetery in Kerhonkson.

Henry Meyer

Henry Meyer, 67, of Cottekill, died Friday night following a long illness. Born in Germany, he was the son of the late John and Katrina Rieken Meyer. Mr. Meyer was a retired liveryman for the Century Cement Manufacturing Co., and resided in Cottekill for 22 years. Surviving are his wife, the former Gesine Secker and three sons, John of Hauppauge, L. I.; Henry of Copiaque, L. I. and Herman of Kingston. Friends may call at the funeral home today 7 to 9 p. m., and Sunday and Monday 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Foot Chase Ends in Death In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A 23-year-old man was wounded fatally today by a policeman's bullet when, police in suburban Cheektowaga said, an attempt was being made to arrest him for a traffic violation.

Charles Pfohl of Buffalo died in Meyer Memorial Hospital several hours after he was shot.

Police Chief Benedict Kostrzewski of Cheektowaga said Patrolman Richard Wipperman's service revolver discharged when he "made contact" with Pfohl after a foot chase.

The chief gave no details and declined to say whether the shooting was accidental.

He told this story:

Wipperman, a professional heavyweight boxer, and Patrolman William Kuczkowski of the nearby Sloan Police Department were on routine patrol when they spotted an automobile that failed to halt at a stop sign.

They gave chase, caught up with the car, were nearly forced off the road and then resumed the pursuit. The car ran into an embankment and the two occupants fled.

Kuczkowski caught one man and Wipperman chased after the other.

Wipperman, with his revolver in hand, overtook him.

It was then, the chief said, the weapon discharged.

Pfohl lived at 419 Fargo Ave.

Linda's Shower

NEW YORK (AP) — Lynda Bird Johnson was given some rare books, assorted recipes and a collection of kitchen utensils Friday night at a bridal shower that lasted nearly eight hours.

The affair for Lynda, who will marry Marine Corps Capt. Charles Robb in a White House ceremony Dec. 9, started out with the traditional hen party.

The males, among them her fiance, began arriving two hours later and the party continued until 1:30 a.m.

Over the course of the evening, said host John F. Fleming, a book collector there were 70 or 80 guests who dropped by his 14-room, 10th floor apartment on East 57th Street. It was all "gay, happy and magnificent," he said.

Wortley Named

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — George C. Wortley III of the Fayetteville, N.Y., Eagle-Bulletin, was elected president Friday of the American Newspaper Representatives Inc., an advertising group for weekly papers.

The group met in conjunction with the convention of the National Newspaper Association.

Seek Teeners In Reported Stolen Auto

Two unknown teenagers, sought as suspects in the theft of a car, reportedly entered a Malden gas station early today, ordered the tank filled and drove off without paying, a police bulletin disclosed.

The boys, last seen headed north on Route 9W, are wanted for questioning in the theft of a Town of Ulster auto. Ronald Riggins, Codwise Street, Town of Ulster, listed his car stolen last night.

According to police information, the suspects were allegedly operating the Riggins' vehicle when they failed to pay for their gas.

Set Clocks Back

Daylight saving time ends at 2 a. m. Sunday. When you retire this evening, turn your clock back one hour. The hour of sleep you gain is in compensation for the 60 minutes you lost in April when you turned your timepieces ahead.

In order to get back on standard time and get in tune with the rest of the folks, set your watches and clock back one hour when retiring tonight.

GOP Plan to End Draft

The 5.6 per cent military pay boost recently proposed by the House Armed Services Committee will raise the pay of a newly enlisted men in the armed services, including basic scale plus benefits, from $2,122 a year to $2,384, far short of the civilian minimum wage of $1.40 an hour for a 40-hour week at $2,912. It would take a 33 1/3 per cent raise to match the civilian minimum.

A group of 19 House Republicans plan to publish a book, "How to End the Draft," the main theme of which is that a military pay scale beginning at the civilian minimum wage is the first step to help reduce draft calls "right down to zero." They insist that as long as beginning servicemen get paid less than the civilian minimum wage required by law, there is no hope of ever getting rid of the draft.

The civilian minimum wage was recently upgraded, starting with $1 an hour for many who had not been covered before. Beginning military pay now exceeds this new civilian minimum of $2,080 a year for a 40-hour week at $1 an hour. But the group was thinking of the much wider minimum in general industry, and the fact that in a nearly full employment economy, the educated and skillful have a good chance of getting such better paid jobs.

We are not so sure that the enlistments would increase so rapidly as to eliminate the need for the draft, even if the beginning service pay compared with a minimum civilian wage. But it is worth a try. If it produces a professional Army as well as the professional Navy and Air Force we now have, largely through enlistments, it will eliminate much of the opposition to the war. It would be a morale builder worth the price.

2,000 Deaths a Week

Accidental deaths of all kinds decreased one per cent to 52,500 in the first half of this year, although motor vehicle fatalities remained unchanged at 23,600 for the same six months. That means accidental deaths of all kinds averaged more than 2,000 a week. Traffic deaths rise in the more hazardous second half of the year, when they bring up the average to 1,000 a week.

These figures were released by the National Safety Council to the 12,000 specialists in the prevention of accidents meeting this week in Chicago for the world's largest safety congress.

Headed by former Gov. Howard Pyle of Arizona, the council is best known for its exhortations to safe driving and holiday death forecasts. However, with the big increase in population and mounting leisure time have come a host of new hazards to life and limb, and these are more than doubling the accidental fatalities.

While the council continues to campaign for defensive driving—"improper driving of some kind is found in about 90 per cent of all traffic accidents and alcohol is a factor in perhaps 50 per cent of fatal accidents"—the council is shifting its emphasis.

Air embolism in scuba diving deaths, the perils of flammable fabrics including paper dresses, the 25 million power mowers in use, boating, skiing, sky diving, farm and industrial hazards, all now threaten the unwary. Caution is the watchword in just about every endeavor of man today.

Consumer Spending

A new quarterly survey, Consumer Buying Prospects, launched its first issue with some very optimistic forecasts for the next six months, as follows:

Consumers will increase their spending for new automobiles by 10 per cent and for major household durables by four per cent. And they will increase single-family housing starts by 14 per cent.

Consumer Buying Prospects is published by the Commercial Credit Company, one of the nation's three sales finance concerns. Data is obtained every three months from a random sample of some 15,000 households representing all 50 states and expertly screened.

Paul W. McCracken, one-time member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is the economic adviser to the company. With the forecast putting automobile buying for the next six months at $31.5 billion, or a rate of 9 million, household durables buying at $32.8 billion and housing starts at 900,000, consumer buying would confirm that the boom will continue well into 1968.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Underdogs Also Can Be Criminals

DETROIT — Sargent Shriver and the poverty war officials had called this a model city before the riots. Detroit received about $181 million in urban renewal and poverty funds in recent years. Last spring Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh boasted of this. But in only six days of burning, looting and ghastly mayhem in which 43 people were killed the rioters caused more property damage ($500 million) than all this Federal money combined.

Were money at the root of it, how do you explain that thousands rioting in this terrible fiesta of fire and violence were getting among the highest hourly wages in the world?

Like the Berlin Wall, the gutted area is something you have to see for yourself to get the full impact. Photographs are one thing; moving in the rubble in 100 square blocks is another.

The horrible scars do not quickly disappear. Stretching through the better part of a year, nearby Cleveland's Hough section's riot-torn buildings remained boarded up. Charred houses stood deserted, unused. Neighborhood merchants felt safe only by keeping guns in their pockets. Residents remained afraid to leave their homes at night.

There, too, as in Newark, Milwaukee, Cambridge, etc., or in Los Angeles' Watts where 34 people were killed and about $40 million of property destroyed, the destruction exceeded in a few days all the Federal aid and poverty grants through the previous years.

Meanwhile, is the war on poverty really a war or is it a racket? All good intentions notwithstanding, the political tang is unmistakable—even in the politicians' statistics.

Presidential candidate John F. Kennedy said at Charleston, S. C., on October 10, 1960: "Five million Americans go to bed hungry every night on a substandard diet. Subsequently, the New Frontier began a multibillion-dollar poverty war.

Sen. John O. Pastore (D., R.I.) told the Senate the other day: "We have 29 million Americans living in poverty."

Whoops! Poverty has increased 600 per cent.

In simple truth, many politicians have a vested interest in talking about poverty and pushing the idea that poverty dominates our country. As one result, they constantly have trouble staying any place near the facts, and their figures mean precisely nothing. They spend — we pay. The war on poverty has now bureaucratized itself to include 150 Washington bureaus and 170 separate programs in its confusions. Among Shriver's poverty warriors, there are 25 executives on the Office of Economic Opportunity payroll whose salary exceeds that of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commanding our troops in Vietnam.

Shriver's first anti-poverty bill passed the House three years ago under the leadership of Rep. Phil Landrum (D., Ga.). Today even Congressman Landrum accuses Shriver of "monstrous mismanagement" and "stupid judgment." "You might say my baby has been suborned," Landrum said in a House debate. Others suggest that Shriver go off to India, like Mia Farrow, for mystic meditation with Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

We should also clearly understand that self-serving politicians are themselves responsible, and should be held accountable, for contributing to such counterproductive horrors as the disaster here. Because the ethnic vote is decisive in Northern power centers, typified by Detroit, they had unconscionably pandered to the ethnic vote regardless of the consequences.

President Johnson, no less, stated to a group of lawbreaking demonstrators in August, 1965: "I am proud to salute you as a fellow revolutionary," saying this hard on the heels of a similar ethnic pitch by rival Robert F. Kennedy. And, quite typically, until the roof fell in on his own city, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley was blaming the riots in the South on "bigoted politicians down there," likewise echoing irrepressible Bobby, who was on a self-serving junket to South Africa, advising South Africa how to handle its race problems to the tune of ethnic headlines he garnered here at home.

Such politicians have helped to change our great country from a melting pot into a pressure cooker. Their political venality helped mightily to sow the tragic whirlwind being reaped today while they now contrive to duck all blame.

They're on the side of the underdog — and who isn't? But what they have so long refused to admit, until our alarmed country forced them to admit it, is that some underdogs also can be criminals.

200,000 GIs in Europe

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK (NEA)—More than 200,000 American troops are stationed in Europe at a time when United States resources are increasingly taxed by the war in Vietnam.

Despite repeated requests by the Johnson administration, the NATO allies have given little or no practical help to contain the Communist in Southeast Asia. They expect the United States to defend Europe but consider the Vietnamese conflict as an "American affair."

When will Johnson tell NATO clearly and firmly that America is no longer in a position to police Europe and at the same time fight aggressian in Southeast Asia?

Even the West Germans have adopted a posture of neutrality in the Vietnamese conflict. They stand most to gain from the American presence in Europe. They are eager to keep every single GI on their soil while they search for ways and means to reach an understanding with Russia. But to impress Moscow with their neutrality and independence and to appease French President DeGaulle, they are increasingly critical of the war in Vietnam.

According to Helmut Schmidt, an influential West German politician, the United States has "no convincing political formula" for a solution of the Vietnam problem. He recently visited Washington and returned to Bonn with a full bag of critical statements.

Schmidt is no ordinary politician. He is the leader of the Social Democratic deputies in Bonn's Bundestag. He is a close associate of Willy Brandt, West German vice chancellor and foreign minister.

Like Brandt, Schmidt is eager for a rapprochment with Russia. He is obviously convinced that he could soften Moscow's policy on Bonn and German unity by attacking American policy on Vietnam.

Taking their cue from De Gaulle, an increasing number of West German leaders no longer draw the parallel between Vietnam and Berlin they did in 1965. Then they welcomed the escalation of the war as a demonstration of the reliability of American guarantees. Now, Bonn's politicians see U. S. commitment in Southeast Asia as a "tragic involvement."

Even more disturbing are reports that the West German government has been conferring secretly with representatives of Red China about improving trade relations.

Not long ago a West German trade commission was in Peking to discuss arrangements for building a steel rolling mill at a cost of $196 million. The project was to have been financed by German, Belgian (another NATO member) and French concerns. West Germany has become Red China's biggest single European trading partner.

Why then, should the Johnson administration continue to maintain a costly force in Europe?

The North Atlantic alliance was originally created to defend Europe against Russia. Today the Russians are too busy with their Red Chinese enemy and their economic difficulties to dream of military adventures in Europe. Moscow's military strategists never relished the idea of a possible conflict on two fronts —in the Far East and West.

Europe will not be in danger in the foreseeable future. The crucial issue for the United States in Vietnam and Southeast Asia.

Near East Crisis Revives Danger of U.S.-Soviet Clash

WASHINGTON—Events in the Near East are rapidly getting so out of hand that the United States and Soviet Russia could find themselves in a disastrous confrontation leading to World War III.

The most dangerous development is the inflamation of Arab and Israeli public opinion to the point where it has become almost impossible for moderates on either side to exert influence.

Premier Eshkol on the Israeli side, a moderate, has found is impossible to hold back his defense minister, Gen Moshe Dayan, a brilliant field commander but a rabblerouser and something of a grandstander. On the Arab side, President Nasser, much more moderate than his Western critics realize, finds it impossible to hold back his own military leaders. He is now as unpopular with the Egyptian Army as was King Farouk whom Nasser kicked off the throne after Egypt's defeat by Israel in 1948.

Since then Egypt has suffered two more defeats at the hands of Israle, plus a defeat by Yemen. Today Egyptian officers are back from Yeman after having their ears cut off and vital organs maimed by Yemenite guerrillas. They are smarting with rage against Nasser and ready to assassinate him the minute he wavers in standing up to Israel.

The suicide of Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer was induced because he was caught in a plot to assassinate his onetime friend, now considered the enemy of the army, Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Last summer King Hassan of Morocco, a moderate Arab and a friend of the United States, offered to mediate the Israeli-Arab dispute—if there was any chance of success. He warned, however, that he did not want to get bogged down in a futile negotiations which would get nowhere. The State Department in all frankness had to advise that the situation was hopeless.

It has become worse. In Israel, the onetime altruism of the people has given way to a hard cynicism and a belief that Israel's only hope is naked force. The Israelis have seen their onetime friend Gen. de Gaulle line up with the Arabs for the sake of Algerian oil. They were startled by the fact that the United States hesitated during the June showdown over the Gulf of Aqaba where John Foster Dulles had given them a written pledge that this would remain an international waterway.

The Israeli cynicism is best represented by Moshe Dayan, the one-eyed general who led the Israeli forces over an old geologists' trail through the Sinai Desert to a quick victory over Egypt in 1956 and whose surprise air attacks on Egypt and Jordan airfields paralyzed those two countries last June.

En Eye for an Eye

Gen. Dayan was taken into the Eshkol cabinet during the crisis last spring in order to win the support of the aggressive followers of ex-Premier Ben-Gurion. They believe in the Old Testament creed of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth as the only doctrine the Arabs understand.

And today large segments of the Israeli people agree with him.

Premier Eshkol, a moderate, has had to go along whether he agreed or not. It has been Eshkol's policy in the past to try to win the friendship of moderate Arabs such as President Bourguiba of Tunisia, already a courageous force for peace; King Hassan of Morocco, King Idris of Libya; and King Hussein of Jordan. Hussein is known as one who believed Jordan and Israel must work together if there is to be progress in the Near East. But Hussein for all practical purposes is now a prisoner of fanatic Arab-haters of Israel and would be assassinated as his grandfather King Abdullah was if he agreed to peace talks.

A little over a year ago in Tel Aviv I asked ex-Premier Ben-Gurion when and how peace could come to the Near East. His reply was brief and to the point. "When the United States and Russia decide there shall be peace."

Ben-Gurion was right then and he is right today.

The tragedy is that Russia and the United States, instead of exercising a restraining influence, may be sucked into war. The anti-American clique in the Kremlin has been determined to rearm the Arabs in retaliation for their defeat last June and indirect retaliation for our war in Vietnam. If the United States is going to send its armed forces as far away as Southeast Asia, the Kremlin clique argues, Russian can retaliate by sending arms to Neartheast Asia.

They know that we are so bogged down in Vietnam that we are powerless to do much regarding such potential trouble spots as Berlin or Suez. Meanwhile, as the U.S. Sixth Fleet ploughs in the Mediterranean with a Russian fleet three times its size lurking in the Black Sea, plus Russian missiles on Egyptian warships and Russian destroyers in Port Said, the chances of an accident leading to a confrontation between the world's two great nuclear powers are very good indeed.

In the opinion of this observer, we are approaching as precarious an impasse as the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

North Vietnamese Incompetence

Intelligence reports warn that American success in evading Soviet anti-aircraft fire and ground-to-air missiles should not be blamed upon the equipment but upon North Vietnamese incompetence. The North Vietnamese have such a shortage of trained technicials that the Russians have been extremely reluctant to entrust their best equipment to them.

Intelligence reports also caution that American superiority over Soviet-built jets doesn't mean the Russian planes are inferior. The North Vietnamese pilots simply aren't strong enough physically to withstand the strains of supersonic flight under combat conditions.

Myth About Unity Among GOP Governors Is Buried at Sea

NEA Washington Correspondent

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands (NEA)—The myth that the 25 Republican governors can serve as a united force in their party is being buried at sea in this 59th National Governors Conference.

A governor's aide who emerged from the last of many GOP caucuses held aboard the cruise ship SS Independence muttered:

They are more united than ever. I predict they will still be this way when they meet again at Palm Beach in December and then next year at Cincinnati."

The myth probably never had more than a thin thread of plausibility. Most of the governors are continuously diverted by their own nagging problems, which have increased mightly since the Republican group formally organized four years ago in Miami Beach.

More than a year later in Denver, stunned as they were by their party's huge defeat in 1964, they persuaded themselves they could become at once a driving and leavening force in a massive reconstruction effort.

Some of this rebuilding has occurred, as the party's impressive 1966 election victories attest. The governors themselves have been among the beneficiaries, since they now number 25 against a mere 16 when they first got together in Florida.

But their contribution to the improvement has been largely individual. As a group they have failed to develop and use power.

The consequences of this failure, most strikingly displayed in this floating conference in the Caribbean, are serious for their effect upon the course of the Republican party—and also upon the party's choice of a 1968 presidential nominee.

As the issue and policy level, the governors' voices are seldom heard in chorus. Their undertaking aboard the Independence was mostly negative, seeing to it that they were not victimized again by another Johnson - sponsored Vietnam resolution such as the governors of both parties have supported again and again and again since 1965.

The only GOP policy utterances that make any dent at all are those of the so-called Republican Co - ordinating Committee, on which not even a third of the party's governors are represented. They are swamped by congressional leaders and former officeholders like Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Most of the Republican governors being moderates, the myth had it that they would get together in a grand show of unity and endorse for president Michigan's Gov. George Romney or some other.

The real chances of this happening were never more than minimal. And Romney's difficulties as a candidate, which clearly have put many of the governors off, are only a part of the story.

The underlying fact is that the Republican governors lack really forceful leadership. They did not have it in Denver in December, 1964, and they did not gain it by adding eight to their number in 1966.

Tables of organization have not done the job for them. The myth of unified governor power is rooted in the spectacular effort GOP governors made for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in the 1952 nomination fight. That effort was the consequence of an unprecedented virtuoso performance by the then Gov. Dewey, whose leadership, personal organization and intra-party use of power could not possibly be matched in 1967-68.

Many GOP governors now expect Romney to fail. If he does, it is plain from observing them in this setting that they have not conceived step one in a plan to promote the candidacy of New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller or any other moderate.

And, floundering here in disarray, they face the final final irony that one of their number, California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, might get the nomination, not as their choice but as the darling of the party elements they originally got together to oppose.

Editor, The Freeman

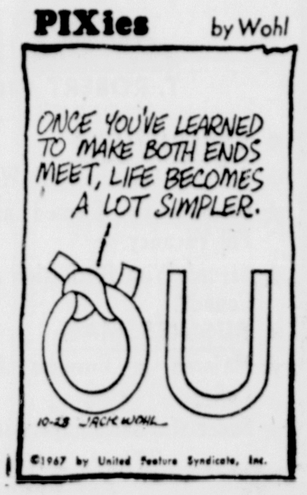

In the past, many people have expressed their displeasure with the amount of money that was paid to the Constitutional Delegates for a part-time job. I think it is time to clear the air and thank these individuals for a job well done. I would especially like to thank Mr. S. James Mathews for the time and effort he has devoted in the explanation of the entire Constitution.

Mr. Mathews above all others, in my opinion, is definitely outstanding, by the method in which he has presented all segments of the Constitution to the people of this area, not taking a stand for or against the new document. He has presented to the people all the facts clearly and distinctly and has requested that the people examine these facts for themselves and, in turn, render their own decision on the new Constitution. He has not attempted to influence the people to accept this document, nor has he sought to degrade the new Constitution like some of the other delegates have aspired to do.

Mr. Mathews in this particular task has revealed himself as representative of the people rather than a partisan politician.

Very truly yours,
FRANK T. ROEDELL

Saugerties Teacher Assoc. Not Bargainers

Milton Summers of Saugerties School faculty told the Freeman Thursday that the Saugerties Teachers Association has not been recognized as a bargaining agent.

In a press release published Oct. 20, issued by Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of schools, it was stated: The Saugerties Teachers Association has requested that it be recognized as the negotiating agent for teachers within the system.

"By-laws which provide for such recognition were adopted by the Saugerties Board of Education."

Summers stated further that the Teachers Association had twice requested recognition as bargaining agent.

Greimel Scores GOP 'Boycott'

Frank Greimel, Saugerties Conservative town chairman, stated that "the empty chairs reserved for the Republican County Legislature candidates, were evidence of blatant disregard for the voters, at the debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters on Oct. 11 at the Flamingo Restaurant."

"The large turnout that night," he continued, "showed that the voters of Saugerties are, indeed, very much interested in hearing what the candidates have to say at such a gathering."

"We believe," Greimel said, "that the apparent strategy of the Republican town chairman to have his party's candidates boycott this type of meeting is receiving much unfavorable voter comment."

Greimel further remarked, "We are glad to see that a more vigorous campaign is being waged this year by all parties than has ever occurred in the history of our town, from the number of billboards, signs, posters, newspaper articles and door-to-door calls by the various candidates."

"However," he continued, "signs and billboards cannot speak, and door-to-door canvassing is not the same as presenting one's views before a public audience of divergent opinions.

"Every candidate for public office should be willing to stand up before the public at a forum conducted by a non-partisan organization, and state his views and answer questions from the audience," Greimel stated.

"A candidate should not decline to say in public what he is supposedly saying to the voters individually," he declared.

"The League of Women Voters is to be commended," Greimel said, "for making it possible for the county legislature candidates to present their views."

"However," he continued, "the candidates for our town offices have not been given the same opportunity by any non-partisan organization, thus far, and we very much deplore this situation.

"There is still time for this, and we think it could be arranged," Greimel said, adding, "The Saugerties Conservative Party town office candidates are all willing to be heard and questioned at any public forum."

Candidate

RICHARD J. LUTHER

Richard J. Luther, candidate for the Ulster County legislature on the Conservative Party line, has taken to task those who are calling the position of legislator a "Cinderella job" or "plum," according to a spokesman for the Conservative Party.

"I prefer to think of the position as that of an early-tage Cinderella," stated Luther, "where the childhood favorite is a hard-working person, striving mightily to do the many chores assigned to her."

"That is what a good county legislator should do," Luther continued, "strive mightily to do the many chores associated with the task, and that is what I promise to do if elected to this public office."

Luther is a member of the Mid-Hudson Patterns for Progress, a private enterprise organization to promote regional planning for growth in an environment of quality.

"We must pursue a balanced program of development," Luther stated. "We need to reconcile the creative strength of private enterprise with foresighted regional planning," he explained.

A native of Cortland, Luther attended high school and college there. He has taken advanced study at SUCC, Boston University, Russell Sage and West Chester State College, West Chester, Pa., in addition to in-service courses at the local school system.

An elementary school teacher by profession, Luther has been employed by the Saugerties Central Schools since Oct., 1960. He has taught fifth grade at the Main Street School for the past six years. Last year he was a candidate for the Jaycees "Young Teacher of the Year" award.

An avid sports fan, he was for five years the sports columnist for the Catskill Mountain Star. He has served as movie photographer for the SHS athletic teams at various times. He has been associated with Radio and has done publicity work for several organizations.

Luther resides with his wife, the former Carole Finger, at 9 Prospect Street, Saugerties.

Frank Greimel, Saugerties Conservative Town Chairman, commented this week "Jim Luther is highly regarded as a candidate by those who know him well, and he is also known to be the type of person who 'looks for work' after landing a job."

Bennett School Book Fair Termed Success

According to a spokesman at the Reginald R. Bennett School in Boiceville, the annual "open house and book fair" held recently, was "an overwhelming success."

Reportedly, a record number of people attended the first school event of the 1967-68 season.

Meeting in the All-Purpose Room, Mrs. J. Moses, P-TA president, announced that the State P-TA Convention, held at Saratoga, voted to oppose the proposed New York State Constitution and informed the audience that the Bennett P-TA would endeavor to secure pamphlets concerning the new Constitution which would be sent to parents via the school children.

The proposed Bennett P-TA budget for the new school year, prepared by the committee on budget and finance, was voted on and approved.

Room mothers were introduced. Room mothers relieve the teachers of many other duties in their schedules and they provide assistance for field trips and room parties. The room mothers also assist with plays and assemblies, open house, opening days of kindergarten in the fall, and registration for kindergarten in the spring.

Bennett Principal Ronald Vanni was introduced and, after presenting the teachers to the parents, went on to emphasize that "teaching (was) not an easy nine to four job but one that required many hours of outside class preparation, paper correcting, and meeting attendance.

The Taconic district fall workshop, held at the Holiday Inn in New Paltz recently, was attended by three Bennett P-TA members: Mrs. J. Moses, president; Mrs. M. Malek, historian; and Mrs. L. Dodge, publicity chairman. Informative workshops, smoking and health and legislation, and constitutional information were presented.

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) — The student council at Marshfield High School has voted against allowing smoking on the campus.

Po'keepsie: No Parade On Halloween

Poughkeepsie will have no public Halloween parade this year because of supervisory problems.

Making that fact known, William G. Beal, recreation superintendent said, "We just can't cope with the many situations that arise during the festivities. The fire and police departments had worked with the Recreation Commission for several years arranging for the annual parade that topped off with the awarding of prizes to lucky costume wearers and cider and doughnuts.

Beal said he had made the decision after conferring with other city departments involved and it was agreed to cancel plans for the parade next week.

Beal cited instances in the last two years where uniforms were torn, band instruments damaged and city employes injured.

"Two years ago a man was hit in the head with a bottle and suffered serious injuries," Beal said. "Last year judges on the reviewing stand narrowly missed getting pelted with eggs."

* Town Board Meetings should be open for public discussion. Citizens should be allowed to ask questions, make suggestions and comments without having to submit a request a week before the meeting.
* Our community should make use of all qualified citizens without regard to political party affiliation. The present adiministration runs a closed club. If elected, the Democratic Town Board members will put the welfare of the Town ahead of party. Appointive offices will be filled on the basis of qualification alone.
* As the Town grows the need for an effective Town Planning Board and Zoning Ordinance has become an absolute must. The long grey line of Republican Administrations has watched the choking traffic, the mixture of shopping areas with heavy industry, the spread of junkyards and smelled the dirty air for ten long years and have done nothing. The Democratic candidates for the Town Board pledge themselves to getting a reasonable zoning ordinance adopted now!

Reading Really Is A Lot Like Hunting

By The Reading Laboratory
(Excerpted from the World Publishing Company Book, "Study Faster and Retain More." Illustrations by Roy Doty).

After you've summarized the textbook, you're ready to start on the first chapter. Begin with a rapid survey of the main ideas in the chapter: look at the maps and graphs; read the picture captions and read the largest size bold type. Even if your chapter is 50 pages, it won't take you more than 5 or 10 minutes to survey for the main idea.

Stop for a minute after the first survey and try to place the chapter into the context of the book as a whole. Ask yourself how important the chapter is, what effects the material will have on the development of subsequent chapters.

Then survey again. Cover all of the bold print this time. You'll begin to get a stronger grasp of the main ideas; it'll only take another couple of minutes. And then survey again, just reading the first sentences of each paragraph. You'll start to pick up the secondary ideas.

After your third survey, skim through the entire text very rapidly. Don't pay much attention to details; just get a stronger picture of the subordinate thought flows. Be sure you place them in the context of the main ideas.

One more skimming is all that's necessary. This time make a light pencil mark next to important details that may require memorization before an exam.

And that's all there is to it.

Notice, you should never read through every word of the chapter from beginning to end. Chances are, that kind of reading will take a long time and get you confused; you'll end up with a maze of facts and no idea what the entire chapter is about.

But by surveying the chapter several times, digging a little deeper each time, you'll always get a clear picture of everything in the chapter.

The best way to be sure you're reading actively is to develop yourself into a questioning reader. Before you start, quiz yourself: What do you think you know about the topic? What do you expect this chapter to add to your knowledge?

During your first survey, try to answer the questions, Who? What? Where? When? Why? How? On the second survey, ask the same questions, but answer the ones you didn't get the first time around.

By your third chapter survey you should have particular questions on the chapter to be answered. During the rapid reading of the entire text, turn the first sentence of each paragraph into a question — just invert it — and answer it from the body of the paragraph. And then you're ready for the details — ask yourself which details can you figure out for yourself. Which ones need to be memorized?

It's not really important which questions you ask. (Some students find role-playing very effective. If you were the Duke of Wellington, how would you attack Napoleon?) But it is important that you ask questions, that you're active, involved and thinking.

Wedding Bells Are Ringing

Miss Sherry Hope Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Kerr, 49 Appletree Drive, Saugerties, was married Saturday, Oct. 21, to Joseph Cameron Abrami, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Candrilli, 52 Thompson Street, Catskill.

The Rev. Joseph Rainear of Saugerties Methodist Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Robert Gilbert sang traditional wedding selections, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Jane Tonneson. White gladioli decorated the altar and satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a peau de soie fitted gown fashioned with long tapered sleeves. An A-line pleat formed a controlled skirt and a full chapel train. The gown and train were accented with Chantilly lace. A two-tier crown of Chantilly lace and crystals was attached to a four-tier French imported silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.

Mrs. Frances Swope, Billsburgh, Pa., was matron of honor. She wore a white Saki gown in the sheath styling fashioned with a coachman's floor length coat. Her headpiece was a moss green bow with veil.

Attendants were Miss Linda Howard, Saugerties; Miss Patricia Brooks, Saugerties, cousin of the bride; Miss Audrea Inman, Concordville, Pa., cousin of the bride, Miss Jeanne Kerr, Lake Katrine, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Their gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant. They wore gold bows with veils and carried fall bouquets.

Miss Joanne Miller, cousin of the bride, wore a white gown similar to the other attendants and white ribbon woven into her hair with a back bow and streamers. She carried a basket bouquet of white pompons and chrysanthemums.

John Abrami, brother of the bridegroom, Catskill, was best man. Ushers were Gary Kelvy, Michael Buckley, both of Catskill; Richard Motsinger, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Long Island. Junior usher was Mark Kerr, Saugerties, brother of the bride. Peter Reganato, Long Island, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

After the wedding a reception for 125 guests was held at Cementon Sportsmen's Club.

For her wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride selected a three-piece brown and beige linen suit with matching accessories.

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is now employed at W. T. Grant Company as bookkeeper.

Her husband, an alumnus of Catskill High School, served four years active duty and two years reserve with US Air Force. He is now credit manager at American Finance Company, Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Abrami will reside at 9-W, Garden Circle, Saugerties.

New Art Class Meets at Woodstock Studio

To satisfy the many requests, Young People's Studio, the art program for children, announces the formation of a new Saturday morning class for 10-12 year olds. The group will meet from 9:40 a.m.-noon.

The new Saturday morning class will follow the same program of art instruction and projects as the already announced Friday afternoon group. The 6-9 year old class, originally scheduled for this session, has been discontinued. This class will be offered again for the spring session starting in February.

Young People's Studio is located in the historic Byrdcliffe section of Woodstock. The instructor is nationally-known artist, instructor and author Bruce Dorfman. The children meet in Mr. Dorfman's own spacious and specially equipped studio, and work on a wide range of art projects such as painting, drawing, sculpture, prints and crafts. Classes begin October 27 and 28. To register your child, or for additional information, call Mr. Dorfman at Woodstock.

Holland Society Dinner-Meeting Tonight

Members of the Ulster County Branch, Holland Society, will hold an annual autumn dinner meeting this evening at The Wildmere, Lake Minnewaska, starting with a reception at 6 p.m. The dinner to which members, their wives and guests are invited, has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be William M. Cashman, MD, a graduate of Villa Nova College, Class of 1924, and of Jefferson Medical College in 1928. He was a classmate of Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt. Dr. Cashman is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and was formerly Chief of Surgeons at Warren General Hospital, Warren, Pa. He is very interested in history and was president of the Warren County Historical Society. His topic will be The Holland Company and Its Effects on Colonists in New York and Pennsylvania.

It is the custom to invite the ladies to the autumn dinner and the president of the Branch, Earle H. Houghtaling, has planned a special gift for each of the women.

Prospective members are invited. All those men of Dutch ancestry on the direct male line are eligible. For reservations contact Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt or Kenneth E. Hasbrouck.

Officers of the Branch are: Earle H. Houghtaling, president; Kenneth E. Hasbrouck and Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt, vice presidents; Richard Lent, secretary-treasurer.

OCCC Has Singer for Presidents

A public concert tonight, featuring the McCoys, the Exciters and calypso singer Steve DePass, will highlight a 1967 Fall Weekend celebration by Orange County Community College students at Middletown.

The 8 p.m. to 12 midnight concert in the college's Orange Hall gymnasium is open to the public. Admission will be charged with tickets on sale in the Orange Hall lobby.

Singer DePass, a favorite with the OCCC student body, will be making his third appearance at the college. A folk-singer with a talent for improvising lyrics on the spot, he has appeared on several network television shows and performed for Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

The McCoys, a young male trio, recorded the popular hit "Hang On Sloopy." Recent records of the Exciters, three women and a man, included "Tell 'Em" and "Little Bit of Soul."

A Friday night Mod Masquerade for OCCC students only and a morning soccer game today between Orange County and Catonsvillke Community College of Catonsville, Maryland, paved the way for the concert. The Fall Weekend is sponsored by the Collegere's Student Senate. General chairman of the event is David DuPell of Ballston Lake, N. Y.

Woodstock News

Distaff View Of Politics

An unusual note has been injected into the Woodstock elections this year with the appearance on the ticket of three Democratic women. Dr. Audrey Bell Hamilton is running for the office of councilman; Mrs. Winifred Fallon for justice (formery justice of the peace); and Mrs. Freya Denitto, for office of clerk.

Dr. Hamilton is a long-time Woodstock resident, delegate to the International Chiropractic convention and vice president and committee chairman of Business and Professional Women of Ulster County.

"I am greatly concerned" she says "about the huge expenditures made by the present administration without a public hearing or without providing the taxpayer with any recourse. Spending money for necessary services must be done wisely. The state has a purchase plan whereby towns and townships can pool their purchases, thus reducing costs considerably through volume purchasing.

"Also Woodstock can have adequate recreational facilities at low costs to the local taxpayer if the town board would take advantage of Federal and State programs for these purposes.

"Woodstock's stream pollution problem is evident to anyone who walks past Tannery Brook on a hot summer day and smells or sees the sewage. Certainly an active town board can enforce already existing ordinances and hasten the implementation of the sewage study recommendations."

As town justice, Mrs. Fallon says she would favor setting up an honorary town justice board consisting of teenagers age 16 or over. These honorary justices would attend sessions involving teenagers and would advise and consult with the presiding Town Justice.

"I would seek cooperation in curbing all juvenile delinquency and, if the situation warranted, would favor a curfew for youngsters under the age of 16, making parents responsible for them if it were not observed.

"I would work for positive action regarding Woodstock streams, including the enforcement of already existing ordinances that prohibit the pollution of streams with raw sewage. I am also concerned about the misuse of Big Deep by people who are not Woodstock residents.

Mrs. Fallon recently attended a workshop for Democratic town justice candidates which was conducted by the Ulster County Democratic Law Committee.

DEMOCRAT CANDIDATES — Three Democrat women are seking office in the Town of Woodstock. (l) Mrs. Floyd DeNitto, running for clerk; Dr. Audrey Bell Hamilton who seeks the post of councilman and Mrs. Winifred Fallon, candidate for Town Justice.

She has lived in Woodstock since the late 1930's, graduated from Kingston High School, and has worked for Western Union and as a telephone operator and traveling manager. She lives in Zena with her husband, and three children.

Freya DeNitto was born in Chicago and spent three and one-half years at the College Art Institute of Chicago and University of Chicago. She has lived in New York State since 1960, and has owned property in Woodstock for three years. She has been a Democratic committee woman in the town of Palisades, and is presently residing on Rock City Road in Woodstock with her husband, Ronald J., and two children.

Candidates Talk About Assessments

Bill Kronenberg and Michael Kutcher, Democratic candidates for tax assessor in Woodstock, today issued the following joint statement:

"The continued rise in taxes proves once again how important the office of tax assessor is. The taxes you pay are based on three things: How much tax money must be raised, the assessment policy of the assessor, and the value the tax assessor places on your property.

"As candidates for the office of tax assessor in Woodstock we recognize that we cannot affect the amount of taxes to be raised. We do feel, however, that we can and will lower the amount of taxes you as an individual must pay.

"Specifically, we pledge ourselves to work for lower taxes for the average taxpayer in the following ways:

By reducing assessments of the average taxpayer to be more in line with those enjoyed by others. Equality of assessment is a basic right which the people of Woodstock are entitled to and will result in lower taxes for the average taxpayer, especially people who have purchased homes in the last 20 years.

By supporting a county-wide tax map and reassessment. This would result in a more advantageous equalization rate for Woodstock and bring taxes down to be more in line with our neighbors.

By maintaining an open ear, an open mind, and an open heart attitude to all taxpayers, not only natives, but also to newcomers who bear so much of today's tax burden.

Kutcher has lived in Ulster County and the Woodstock area for 12 years and has been employed by IBM since 1954. His present position is as an advisory engineer in the manufacturing engineering division, where he is responsible for technical and cost analysis of new manufacturing programs.

He served in the U. S. Army for two years and was with the Combat Engineers in Korea. He is a member of the Institute of Electrical Electronic Engineers and the American Society of Tool Manufacturing Engineers. Mr. and Mrs. Kutcher and their three children live on Chestnut Hill Road.

Kronenberg has been a social studies teacher at Onteora Central School for 11 years and also a real estate salesman for three years. He holds a BS degree from Syracuse University and a MS degree from New York State University at Albany, and served in the U. S. Army Signal Corps for two years. He is a member of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club, American Forestry Association, and New York State Council of Social Studies Teachers.

Kronenberg has been a resident of Woodstock for 11 years and presently lives at 14 Oriole Drive with his wife and three children.

Boice Cops Race With 13:16 Time

BY ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Gary Boice, the latest in a long line of outstanding runners at Kingston High School, retained his unbeaten status and led his teammates to their sixth DUSO League cross country championship in seven years Friday at the rugged 2.5 Bear Mountain course.

With Boice leading from start to finish, the Maroon harriers scored 42 points to easily outdistance second place Newburgh, which compiled 67. Then, in order, came Middletown, 72; Port Jervis, 73 and Monticello, 85.

Though his time of 13 minutes, 16 seconds was not a record, Boice won with something to spare. He received some stiff competition from Steve Keyes of Port Jervis over the first half of the race.

However, the KHS ace pulled well in front as they moved up the hill near the ski slope. Coming into the homestretch, Keyes had faded to fifth. He rallied to capture third honors, behind Boice and second place finisher Rich Donovan of Monticello.

Boice was five seconds in front of Donovan but the margin could have been greater if the winner had been pushed. He just coasted home.

The other KHS runners did well, also. Bill Brinnier was sixth, Jim Gilpatric finished 10th and Wayne Sickler and Gary Flowers were 12th and 13th. Gene Ballou finished 16th.

A happy John Gilligan, who has coached the locals for the past five years, said that depth again was the big difference in winning the meet and being an also-ran.

With the DUSO title under lock and key, Kingston will seek a seventh consecutive Section title Friday at the Bear Mountain course.

Alston Denies Quitting Rumors

DARRTOWN, Ohio (AP) — "I don't know anything about it," Walter Alston said at his home here.

The veteran manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers was commenting on the story in the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Star that he would step down as manager within a week and be replaced by Preston Gomez, third base coach of the Dodgers.

Gomez, in Puerto Rico, also said he knew nothing about it. "It's news to me," he declared. "It's the first time I heard about it."

Arthur "Red" Patterson, vice president of the Dodgers, said he knew nothing about any changes and that Alston will be going to Mexico City for the major-minor league meetings there Nov. 25.

Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, and Buzzie Bavasi, general manager, were not available for comment. O'Malley is on a hunting trip in Africa, and Bavasi is on vacation.

Nicklaus' Record 62 Gives Him Edge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shot a spectacular record round of 32-29—62 for a 54-hole score of 199, and a 12-foot putt that refused to drop in by an inch on the final hole cost him an even more fantastic score.

A lesser-known golfer, young Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, missed by an inch on a 40-foot putt on the 18th green that would have given him a tie with Nicklaus.

All this happened Friday, and today Nicklaus went into the final round of the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tour Tournament leading the likable 26-year old Spray by one stroke for the $20,000 top money.

The 18-hole finale was scheduled for national television exposure via Sports Network, Inc. starting at 2 p.m. PDT.

Nicklaus was 14 strokes under par for the Paradise Valley Country Club's, 7,069-yard, par 36-35—71 challenge.

Spray was an even 200.

Four shots back of the leader was a solid threat, Bob Goalby, and young Terry Dill was in 4th at 205.

The show Friday belonged to Nicklaus. But Spray, a pro only since March 1965, met an acid test. His 64 Thursday put him into the lead and he added an excellent 67 Friday. He was playing just behind Nicklaus and commented, "I heard Nicklaus was just having a good round, not a great one."

Goalby, who played with Big Jack and shot a fine 68, said, "He made you feel you were not doing so well, even with a 68."

Nicklaus' round was the best in his career. The 29 equalled the lowest nine holes on the 1967 PGA tour. The 62 equalled the course record set in 1964 by R.H. Sikes.

Nicklaus bagged two eagles on the back nine. He holed out an 85-yard wedge shot — "I think it was the best wedge I ever hit — on the par-four 10th. On the par-five 17th he got his second eagle three in two days. A No. 4 iron dropped 12 feet from the pin and he holed out.

Arnold Palmer, who virtually blew himself out of the thing with an opening 76, had his second straight 68 and stood at 212.

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The more things change in El Paso, Tex., the more they remain the same for the madcap Miners of Bobby Dobbs.

Texas Western, the home of close-to-the-vest basketball, wide-open football and way-out publicity blurbs, became the University of Texas at El Paso last winter.

But brilliant Billy Stevens made certain the footballs kept flying this fall for the pass-happy Miners. He set an all-time collegiate record for career passing yardage and, after firing six touchdown passes a week ago, was zeroing in on another NCAA mark when a virus rounded him for Friday night's game against New Mexico.

So, back-up quarterback Brooks Dawson stepped in—and threw another half-dozen TD strikes as the Miners obliterated the Lobos 75-12.

The Texas-El Paso aerial circus at Albuquerque, N.M., overshadowed the Miami, Fla., Hurricanes' 7-0 triumph over Auburn in a defensive struggle under the lights at the Orange Bowl.

Defensive end Phil Smith picked off an Auburn pitchout in the third quarter and raced 35 yards for the game's only touchdown as the Hurricanes won their fourth straight after two losses at the start of the season.

Auburn, also 4-2, drove to the Miami six-yard line in the second quarter before the Hurricanes held. It was the Tigers' only deep penetration in the hard-hitting duel.

Celts, Philly Clash Tonigh

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics, who have vowed to regain the National Basketball Association championship, get their first crack of the season tonight against the Philadelphia 76ers, the team that ended their nine year reign as NBA kings in the championship playoff last April.

Both the Celtics and 76ers won Friday night and go into tonight's battle at Boston unbeaten. The Celtics routed the Detroit Pistons on the road 128-109 for their fourth in a row. The 76ers, playing at home, made it five straight with an easy 132-115 victory over Seattle.

Los Angeles scored a 125-117 home-court victory over Chicago. Cincinnati won on the road over San Diego 116-113 and San Francisco downed Baltimore 124-111 at Oakland, Calif., in other NBA games.

Pleasant Rips Middies, 52-14

Unbeaten Mont Pleasant exploded with its best offensive showing of the season Friday night, routing previously undefeated Middletown, 52-14, in in a non-league at the Schenectady gridiron.

The victory was the seventh in a row for the Raiders, who were involved in a 14-14 deadlock before going ahead for good only seconds before the end of the first half.

Pacing the one-sided victory were Ron Page and Ken Jackson with two touchdowns apiece.

Pleasant will duel Linton on Election Day with a Class A champinship on the line.

It was Middletown's first loss after four straight victories.

Chargers, Oakland In Top AFL Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charged-up San Diego and ambitious Oakland collide in Sunday's top American Football League attraction while a couple of tattered titans—Kansas City and Buffalo—face survival tests.

At Oakland, the rugged Raiders take on unbeaten San Diego in a Western Division summit struggle. The Chargers, 5-0-1, lead the West by one-half game over 5-1 Oakland.

Elsewhere, Kansas City's defending AFL champions, barely alive in the West with a 3-3 mark, entertain Denver; Buffalo's 1966 Eastern Division kings, beaten four times in six starts, visit Houston and New York, the current leader in the East, puts a five-game unbeaten string on the line against visiting Boston. Miami has a bye.

Oakland, back home after a 3-1 Eastern trip, hopes to wrest the Western lead from the Chargers behind the passing of Daryle Lamonica and the power running of Clem Daniels.

Routed Boston

Lamonica fired four touchdown passes as the Raiders swamped Boston 38-14 last week. Daniels picked up 42 yards on the ground against the Patriots, bringing his career rushing yardage to 4,918—just four yards short of San Dieo's Paul Lowe, the all-time leader.

Lowe, reactivated Friday by the Chargers after missing five games because of a pulled leg muscle, may see spot duty against the Raiders. His replacement, rookie Dick Post, is the league's fifth leading groundgainer.

Hewritt Dixon, Lamonica's favorite target and the top AFL receiver with 31 catches, returns to the Oakland lineup after sitting out last Sunday's game with a bruised shoulder.

The Chargers will match the Lamonica-Dixon combination with quarterback John Hadl and ace receiver Lance Alworth, who clicked on five passes for 142 yards and a touchdown in last week's 38-21 victory over Denver.

Kansas City, which has lost three of its last four starts, must get past the Broncos, 1-6, to remain in contention in the West. The Chiefs have beaten Denver 13 times in 14 meetings, including 37-10 and 56-10 romps a year ago.

The Chiefs' Len Dawson failed to throw a TD pass for the first time this season and was intercepted three times in last week's 24-19 loss to Houston.

The Oilers, whose upset victory over Kansas City left them one game off the Eastern pace with a 3-2-1 record, can virtually eliminate Buffalo from the race. The Bills, beaten by the Oilers 20-3 in an early-season meeting at Buffalo, were idle last week.

Rugged Defense

Houston defenders have intercepted nine passes in the Oilers' last two games. The Oilers' attack, ineffective thus far, received a lift Friday when veteran receivers Lionel Taylor and Glenn Bass were added to the active roster.

The Jets, 4-1-1 after drubbing Miami 33-14 last Sunday, will unleash a versatile offense led by hot passer Joe Namath against the Patriots, 2-4-1, whose vaunted defense collapsed in the one-sided loss to Oakland.

Namath is working on a string of 12 straight completions—three short of the record set by KC's Dawson earlier this season. Hard-running Emerson Boozer, the league's top scorer with 12 touchdowns, complements Namath's passing game.

Colts, 'Skins Ready For Big NFL Contest

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts and Washington Redskins, both fit to be tied, try again to shake off the shackles when they meet Sunday in one of the National Football League's featured attractions.

The Colts, deadlocked the last two weekends by Los Angeles and Minnesota, are relying on Johnny Unitas to untie the knot. Washington, tied by the Rams and Atlanta the last two Sundays, will counter with Sonny Jurgensen in what should be an aerial scoring circus in Washington.

Baltimore, the only undefeated NFL team at 4-0-2, needs a victory to maintain its slim lead over San Francisco, 5-1, and Los Angeles, 3-1-2, in the Coastal Division. The Rams are at Chicago, the 49ers host Detroit, and both are solid favorites.

Washington, 2-2-2, on the other hand, is trying to close in on Dallas, 5-1, in the Capitol Division. The Cowboys are at Philadelphia, 3-3, in an intra-divisional game.

The only other intra-division contest pits Cleveland against the New York Giants in Yankee Stadium.

Elsewhere on Sunday, Minnesota plays at Atlanta and Pittsburgh at New Orleans.

Green Bay travels to St. Louis in a big Monday night contest that matches veteran quarterback Bart Starr of the Packers against Cards youngster Jim Hart.

Unitas leads the league in passing this year and broke Y. A. Tittle's all-time record for completions last week, but he and the Colts could have their hands full against the embattled Redskins.

Washington in the last three games has lost one and tied two in a total of the last 76 seconds. Jurgensen will be throwing to Charley Taylor, the NFL's top receiver, Bobby Mitchell and Jerry Smith as Washington tries to end a streak of 15 straight losses to the Colts, seven in regular season.

Mel Farr will be back running for Detroit and Karl Sweetan is likely to start at quarterback, but the 49ers still have John Brodie throwing and John David Crow and Ken Willard running.

Gale Sayers will return for the punchless Bears, and that could present trouble for the tight Los Angeles defense. But the Bears, with a pretty good defense of their own, must stop Roman Gabriel, Bernie Casey and Dick Bass.

Meredith Still Out

Dallas, which has squeaked by in its last three games, will start Craig Morton at quarterback again in place of injured and ill Don Meredith. The Eagle defense has been less than spectacular, but the stingy Cowboy defense must stop the high-powered Philadelphia offense led by Norm Snead, Ben Hawkins and Timmy Brown.

Crippled Frank Ryan passing to Gary Collins, with Leroy Kelly and Ernie Green running, will lead the Browns against the weak New York defense. But the Giants can score with the Fran Tarkenton-to-Homer Jones passing combo.

Joe Kapp has shown improvement for Minnesota in recent weeks, as has rookie Kent Nix for Pittsburgh, making them favorites at Atlanta and New Orleans.

Historic Visit

Cities Await Leaders

EL PASO, Tex. (AP' — El Paso, Tex., and Juarez, Mexico, were gaily dressed sister cities today for the historic visit of their national presidents.

Amidst the miles of colorful bunting, flags, banners and posters, stern security measures prevailed.

Threats Ease

Threats eased late Friday that Presidents Johnson and Gustavo Diaz Ordaz would be exposed to some form of demonstration resulting from hurt feelings in the Cabinet-level Mexican-American conferences. "We did not come here to spoil anyone's party," said Dr. Ernesto Galarza of San Jose, Calif., who was elected temporary chairman of a group that held what they called "a rump conference" to express views they said they were prevented from airing in the conference.

After numerous negotiations, the dissident groups discarded plans for demonstrations and set up their own meeting for today to vent their protests.

Large forces of El Paso police, military police, Secret Service agents, and state lawmen, many in plain clothes, mixed with the crowds that greeted Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and several Cabinet members Friday.

Humphrey's limousine whizzed past pickets whose signs claimed the federal govwas a sham—featuring bureaucrat speakers unacquainted with, and sometimes uninterested in, real Mexican-American problems.

Even more officers were called to duty today on the U.S. side of the Rio Grande for the Presidents' arrival. Secret Service agents distributed pamphlets asking residents along the parade route in El Paso and Juarez to report any persons seen carrying weapons or acting suspiciously.

Will Unveil Marker

At the Santa Fe Bridge over the Rio Grande, the chief executives will unveil a marker showing the new boundary between the two countries as a result of the Chamizal Treaty, which returns to Mexico 437 acres which the meandering Rio Grande took away in 1852.

Then there will be a 4.5-mile motorcade through Juarez to a marble monument erected by Mexico to mark the negotiation of the Chamizal Treaty. Then the two Presidents, sitting at identical desks, will sign the final papers of the treaty and each will make a brief speech.

After the treaty-signing, the Presidents will motor a brief distance to the Bridge of Americas, a new border crossing that could not be opened until the boundary change was completed. The Presidents' wives will cut a ribbon opening the bridge. The Presidents, their wives and their official parties, will say their goodbyes on the bridge.

Escapes Injury

A New Paltz man escaped injury early today when his car overturned along Route 32, sheriff's deputies desclosed. Richard Tenedini told investigators that he was temporarily blinded by the lights of an oncoming auto. Deputies stated that he lost control and rolled over an embankment. Deputy Marshall Canosa, who investigated, said the accident occurred approximately two miles north of New Paltz.

Many Renewals For Drivers In Area Due

One half million New York State vehicle registrations that expire in October have not been renewed, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Vincent L. Tofany announced.

Deputy County Clerk Patrick Mataraza, in charge of the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau, says many local residents have not renewed their registrations.

"Only a few business days are left before these registrations expire at midnight on Tuesday, Oct. 31," Commissioner Tofany reminds. "At this point it is too late for mail applications. Registrants must go to the nearest motor vehicle issuing office to complete renewals," he concludes.

More than a million punch cards for October renewals were mailed out in the last weeks of September. About half of these punch cards have been taken or mailed to issuing offices for renewal. The remainder must be processed within the next few days.

Motorists whose punch cards were returned to the Motor Vehicle Department as undeliverable, and motorists whose punch cards are no longer valid because of change of vehicle, must use paper applications.

Operation of an unregistered motor vehicle is a misdemeanor.

M., a 1967 Dodge Coronet, Serial #WP23F71117135, repossessed from Dennis Landerway, 10 Tompkins Street, Kingston, New York.

PUBLIC HEARING

There will be a Public Hearing of the Zoning Board of Appeals, City of Kingston, on Thursday, November 2, 1967, at 7:00 P. M., City Courtroom, City Hall, Kingston, New York, to establish as the calendar that evening the following requests.

1. Application of Charles Schaller to erect a wire fence on the side and rear of lot located on Lucas Avenue, higher than the present Zoning Ordinance now permits. Sec. 3-1.1.5 b.
2. Application of St. Joseph's School, Well Street, Kingston, New York to erect a fence around play yard higher than the present Zoning Ordinance now permits. Sec. 3-1.1.5 b.
3. Application of Joseph R. Papillo, 90 Lucas Avenue to erect a covered patio closer to line than the present Zoning Ordinance now permits in an R-I Zone. Sec. 3-3.4.2.
4. Application of The Church of God and Christ, Pastor, Rev. James L. Best, to erect a Church on a lot at 47-49 Van Buren Street, Kingston, New York, closer to the property line than the present Zoning Ordinance now permits in an R-2 Zone. Sec. 3-4.1.1.

GEORGE E. RADCLIFFE, Clerk
Zoning Board of Appeals

NOTICE OF HEARING
UPON PRELIMINARY BUDGET

Notice is hereby given that the preliminary budget of the Town of Saugerties for the fiscal year beginning January 1, 1968 has been completed and filed in the Office of the Town Clerk at Saugerties, N. Y., where it is available for inspection by any interested person at all reasonable hours.

Further notice is hereby given that the Town Board of the Town of Saugerties will meet and review said preliminary budget and hold a public hearing thereon at the Town Hall at 2 o'clock P. M. on the 9th day of November, 1967, and that at such hearing any person may be heard in favor of or against the preliminary budget as compiled or for or against any item or items therein contained.

Pursuant to Section 113 of the Town Law, the proposed salaries of the following Town Officers are hereby specified as follows:

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, a man who was employed in our retail business left us to open up his own shop in competition with us. No particular ill will was involved here, but naturally we were not overjoyed, as we felt we had taught him the business. Our business continues to do well, and this man has done very well, also.

A friend of ours is constantly pointing out our competitor's ads in the newspapers, and he seems to delight in discussing how "well" this man is doing. We are bewildered and somewhat hurt. Are we too touchy? Or is such talk in poor taste?

We surely wouldn't run down a competitor, but we find it hard to applaud his success considering the background. How should this be handled? BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: A real "friend" avoids subjects that could be irritating. To deliberately bring up a subject that stings is mischievous. The Chinese put it this way, "Never speak of a rope in the home of one whose relative has been hanged." If I were you, I'd demote that "friend" to a nodding acquaintance.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently were invited to a wedding. The invitation was called in by telephone. Would you call this a legitimate invitation? It seems to be a hurry-up sort of affair. WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: In my book, ANY invitation that is sincere is legitimate. Maybe it is a "hurry-up" sort of wedding.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, earn my own living, and live at home. I'm practically engaged to a very fine young man named Bruce. He is 26, has a steady job and he also lives at home, not far from me.

Abby, I don't know whether Bruce's mother is going thru "the change" or what, but she is impossible. She will call up here at midnight and say, "SEND BRUCE HOME!" And bang goes the receiver.

Bruce is not a child, and he knows when to go home. There are other people in this house: my parents and younger brothers and sisters, and they don't appreciate being disturbed at that hour.

We took the telephone off the hook one night, and she got the busy signal so she WALKED OVER HERE and made Bruce take her home. How can this problem be solved?

BRUCE'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Marry Bruce.

DEAR ABBY: Am I being silly and childish, or is my husband at fault?

There is this young woman in our crowd who is peppy and cute and is always playing up to the men. At a party, she's the first to say, "Let's sit by somebody else's husband." Or when we get into a car, she'll plunk herself down next to somebody else's husband, and his wife has to pair up with hers.

Now, Abby, I want to sit by my own husband, and I don't like all this switching around.

Once when my husband and I were dancing together, this woman danced by with her husband and tried to change partners. I said, "No, this is OUR song. We requested it." My husband got angry with me and said I was rude. We have three children and a good marriage, Abby, and I don't want to take any chances with it.

If I am wrong, please tell me. If I am right, I need some support. LIKES MY OWN

DEAR LIKES: The switcheroo game your cute and peppy friend is playing can lead to "splitsville." Hang on to your own husband. I'm with you all the way.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

South Does Not Like Red Suits

My Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Our old friend Charley Solomon of Priladelphia, president of the World Bridge Federation, has managed in his long career at the table to win just about every trophy there is. Charley is noted for his excellent bidding.

In a recent tournament, Charley was playing with a new partner when he picked up the South hand shown today. It would have puzzled him in any event, but he finally reached the spade slam by bidding in the box.

	NORTH 28
	♠ J 6 ♥ A 10 9 ♦ K J 9 8 7 6 5 ♣ J
WEST		EAST
♠ K 5 ♥ K Q 8 6 3 2 ♦ Q 10 4 2 ♣ 9		♠ 4 ♥ J 7 5 4 ♦ A 3 ♣ Q 10 8 7 4 2
	SOUTH (D) ♠ A Q 10 9 8 7 3 2 ♥ Void ♦ Void ♣ A K 6 5 3 Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead—♥ K

He opened with one spade only. They were playing weak two bids but that did not matter. An expert does not bother to open with a forcing bid when he knows that someone will surely be in the bidding with or against him.

Charley's three club rebid was a force. Like all modern experts, he plays that after a two-over-one response a new suit bid is a one round force.

His five spade bid that followed is the one we really like. He clearly said, "I am very interested in a slam and I don't care about what you have in the red suits. I can play five spades anyway. Can you go to six?"

This put some pressure on North. He got the message that South did not care about the red suits, but how good were Charley's black suits? North finally decided that the combination of jack of clubs plus the ace of hearts for a discard would be enough.

They just were. Charley discarded a club on the ace of hearts at trick one, led a club to his ace, ruffed a club with dummy's six of trumps, ruffed a heart, ruffed another club with dummy's jack of trumps, ruffed a diamond, played his ace of spades and claimed his slam.

Like most slams you see in print — you wonder why it would not be a cinch to bid. It wasn't at the table, as mey be judged from the fact that only three of 26 pairs did bid it. Some stopped at four or five, a couple got to seven, and one unfortunate pair worked its way to six no-trump.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY October 29, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Accolade received because of your arrangement of special collection, flowers, luxury items. Fine for presenting gift to one who performed services. Strive for harmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Excellent for dealing with opposite sex. Day could be a romantic one. Engage in creative activity. Break away from restrictive forces. Express yourself. Give and you also receive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid jumping to conclusions. Be fair and specific. One who wants to impart information may appear pompous. But this is not intentional. Lean over for other viewpoints.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Surprise of pleasant variety due. Could involve visit from loved one. Be outgoing. Let others know you do care about their welfare. Social activity indicated for tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Gift could come your way. You appear likely to add to possessions. You may have to make choice. Discard nonessentials. Make room for a fuller life. Today could be the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't back down from basic beliefs. Realize some obstacles may represent healthy challenge. Be ready for changes. Analyze motives. Cycle is high. You will emerge victorious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Attend special group function. Gain shown by sharing of interests. There is about to emerge a situation which greatly benefits you. Key is charm, patience and maturity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be realistic in appraisal of persons, situations. Romantic notions subject to revision. Don't hang on to the past. Be willing to build for the future. Accept aid of friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Compliment from one in authority makes this a meaningful day. Display ability to handle responsibility. Be sincere, serious. Give thanks for opportunity to succeed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you have been tardy in sending note of thanks, make up for it today. Communicate sense of appreciation. Take nothing for granted. Put thoughts on paper. Plan campaign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are informed of purchase. Question of how much was expended dominates. View situation in progressive manner. Post-mortems serve no constructive purpose.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Expand sphere of interests. Investigate. Find out where you stand—how far you can go. Discussion involving legal ramifications is overdue.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have deep feelings, can sense what others are planning, thinking. Would make wonderful detective, reporter. You are able to get to the bottom of mystery and are a natural investigator.

Forecast for Monday, October 30, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Work methods may need revision. Upsets due. Ride with the tide. Some associates bolt, rebel, resign. Strive for neutrality. Do not get caught up in whirlpool of confusion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): You may find out where you stand in affairs of the heart. Maintain sense of balance. Don't be bowled over by extravagant claims. Opposite sex appears eccentric today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may find that question of home, security is paramount. Some conditions are upsetting. People appear to react in abrupt manner. Hang on. Don't lose sense of humor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hold back on short journeys. There is element of uncertainty. Details may have been overlooked. Messages tend to be garbled. Be thorough. Willingness to wait is an asset.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Financial transactions dominate. Emphasis on what's going out, coming in. Be receptive to suggestions, ideas. Don't overspend. Condition due to pass in short time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight of controversy could shine. Backing received from family. Permit logic to rule impulse. Utilize principles of Golden Rule. Many observe your actions, reaction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You gain if panic is avoided. Be perceptive. See people, situations as they actually exist. Don't bury head in sand. Key is to be realistic. Overcome fear of the unknown.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some of your desires come forward with a rush. Be selective. Choose quality. Disregard persons who make wild promises. Stick with voice of experience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Career matters are in spotlight. Your ability to respond to challenge is tested. Nothing occurs halfway — all the way or nothing. Know this and prepare accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study special publications. You could obtain hint which makes goal easier to achieve. Be curious. Get answers by asking questions. May not be necessary to travel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your view of financial status could be distorted. Get all the facts. Base decisions on knowledge rather than speculation. Give benefit of doubt to mate, partner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Tension exists. Don't borrow trouble. Means steer clear of needless dispute. One who engages you in conversation may "egg you on." Maintain dignity.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTH- of reacting well during crisis. You can apply light touch which causes laughter amidst gloom. You are about to embark upon a new adventure.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for LIBRA, SCORPIO. Special word to GEMINI: check values. Analyze long-range motives.

Time Slot Prisoner Worry

Chicago Daily News Service

Alas, Patrick McGoohan, the greatest secret agent of them all, may not be back on American television at mid-season after all.

His old secret agent series is dead, but McGoohan since then has created and starred in The Prison, which debuted on English and Canadian television this fall. Unfortunately, he made only 17 episodes and went off to do films and stage work.

A reviewer for the show biz journal, Variety, said the new series "deserves full marks for its boldness and daring in trying to break out of the formulas of packaged thick-ear stuff.

"McGoohan's hero, deliberately mysterious, has resigned from a top government job, and has been abducted into a community with all the surface coziness of a rural village, its inhabitants dressed in Edwarian costume, lulled by band concerts, fed and housed in comfort—but constantly watched by electronic eyes controlled by suave bosses, known by numbers.

"When he tries to escape, he is pursued by grotesque floppy balloons, the lethal ploy of which is to force themselves on the fugitive and suffocate him to death."

During it all, said Variety, "McGoohan retains his steely authority, and may extend into an area of pathos for his plight."

I have not seen The Prisoner, but I'll take Variety's word that it is a novel idea and, besides, I'd like McGoohan even as one of the seven dwarfs.

CBS states firmly that it has purchased The Prisoner, but getting it on the air is something else. The network has canceled Dundee and the Culhane, but has replaced it with a Jonathan Winters variety show, beginning Dec. 27.

At this moment, the network does not plan to cancel another series at mid-season, though Good Morning, World is very shaky.

Dump Pile Possibilities

It is incredible that CBS does not think it has other series worthy of cancellation to make room for The Prisoner.

I recommend that it dump any or all of the following: Andy Griffith, Good Morning, World, Lost in Space, Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres, Cimarron Strip, Wild, Wild West, Gomer Pyle, My Three Sons, Hogan's Heroes, Petticoat Junction, Mannix, Family Affair, and Ed Sullivan (just to see the expression on his face).

OFFICE CAT

A prisoner, charged with robbery was brought into court without a lawyer. The judge, noticing a young lawyer of his acquaintance in the courtroom, asked him to take the prisoner to an anteroom, listen to his account of the incident, and advise him to his best interest. Sometime later the lawyer returned, but without the prisoner.

On being asked his whereabouts, the lawyer replied:

Young Lawyer Brown — Your Honor, after hearing the prisoner's story, I felt that the best thing he could do was make a run for it — and he did!

Freedom is being able to do what you please without considering anyone except your wife, the police, the boss, the life insurance company, the state, federal and city authorties and your neighbors.

Two partners in business were doing all right but not setting the world on fire. One morning one showed up wearing a dazzling diamond as a stickpin. It looked as big as a lemon to the other partner, who envisioned a raided bank account.

Fred — What in the world! Where and how did you get that sparkler?

Frank — My uncle died last week, you remember. Well, he left $4,000 to be used in purchasing a stone commemorating him This is the stone.

A tramp was sleeping behind the bunker of a golf course when the club secretary, prowling around, kicked him none too gently and ordered him to clear out.

Sam (the tramp) — And who are you?

Mr. Black — I'm secretary of the club.

Blood Splashers

Priest, Artist Fast in Jail

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest and a Baltimore artist were fasting in jail today after they were arrested on federal charges of splashing blood on draft board records.

Two other men who participated in the demonstration against the war in Vietnam were free after signing a pledge to appear for any further proceedings in the case.

Lost Newburgh Job

"You get the kind of freedom you fight for," said the Rev. Philip Berrigan, the 44-year-old priest whose past protests have brought him a rebuke from a bishop in New Orleans and cost him a teaching job at Newburg , N.Y.

Father Berrigan and an artist and a schoolteacher splashed blood that they said was their own into open file drawers at a Selective Service office Friday to protest "the pitiful waste of American and Vietnamese blood" in Vietnam. Another clergyman stood watch at the door.

"We shed our blood willingly and gratefully in what we hope is a sacrificial and constructive act," the four members of the Baltimore Interfaith Peace Mission said in a statement.

In an official statement, the Baltimore Catholic archdiocese termed Father Berrigan's action "the kind of flamboyant gesture that is self-defeating.

"Its real contribution to peace is questionable. We believe that such actions may be interpreted as disorderly, aggressive and extreme, and that they are likely to alienate a great number of sincere men in the cuase of a just peace."

FBI agents arrested all four protesters and charged them with destruction of government records and obstructing Selective Service laws. They are to have a preliminary hearing Monday before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart.

Released on Bonds

Released on personal bonds of $1,000 were the Rev. James Mengel, 38, a minister in the United Church of Christ, and David Eberhardt, 26, a teacher who is secretary of the peace mission, a conscientious objector and an activist with the Congress of Racial Equality.

Father Berrigan and Thomas Lewis, 27, the artist, were jailed for the weekend when they refused to sign the document promising to appear at the hearing.

Father Berrigan, a Josephite priest, was transferred to Baltimore after urging in lectures in Newburgh, that the United States halt the bombing of North Vietnam and recognize the National Liberation Front in negotiations.

Director Visits in Area

By LYNN MULVANEY

Peter Dehmel is a peace corps director . . . for his native Germany . . . in Bolivia!

Just now he is visiting his brother Till Dehmel's Saugerties home, nestled comfortably on a wooded Lamb Avenue hillside.

The peaceful setting is remote from that of his recent home for eight years — the Communist guerilla-riddled area of Bolivia where Che Guevarra died just two weeks ago. It is also far removed from his native Germany to which he is about to return to become director of that country's "peace corps," which boasts 1,200 volunteers.

In Washington, D.C., this week, young Dehmel compared "notes" with U.S. Peace Corps officials.

Patterned after this country's corps and organized in 1963 after the late President Kennedy's visit to Germany, the foreign project reaches 25 countries, mainly in Africa and Latin America. It concerns itself with public health, community development, technical assistance and professional education.

PETER DEHMEL

Its volunteers get around on donkeys, horseback and in planes, small boats and jeeps. They work with their hands as much as their heads and teach house-building for instance, with hammer in hand.

Dehmel, a teacher by profession, was director of the "German School" in Sucre, Bolivia, which is now a model for other schools in the country.

He and his Indian-speaking wife, who accompanies him, also speak German, Spanish and English, as do their three children, two of whom were born in Bolivia.

Is it difficult living in an underprivileged country with three small youngsters, sans appliances, fresh milk and modern conveniences?

Yes and no, say the Dehmels, who are more appreciative of having the "feeling of being close" to what is around them and to what is happening because "then there are more possibilities to help."

Our volunteers, Dehmel maintains, after spending several years in Bolivia, seem to feel that "the problems of their own Germany seem to have lost something of their former importance — compared to such things as hunger, poverty and lack of knowledge."

Economy Drive Order of Day

WASHINGTON (AP) Congressional inaction on some money bills has caused several federal agencies to begin economy drives which informed sources say could hurt various programs.

The spending holddown has been ordered verbally in most agencies involved but a written memo went out to employes of the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipoverty agency.

Robert C. Cassidy, OEO's assistant director for management, wrote: "Pending passage of an appropriations resolution by Congress beyond Oct. 23, which marked the end of the last continuing resolution under which OEO had been operating, these restrictions apply:

"1. No grant, contract purchase order or interagency agreement shall be executed.

"2. Issuance of new travel authorization shall be curtailed to the maximum extent possible.

"3. No new employes will be placed on the role except where firm commitments have been made prior to Oct. 23."

Although there wasn't any formal memo, similar verbal instructions have been passed down through the ranks at the Agency for International Development (AID), the Peace Corps and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Employes at four agencies have been working in effect without pay since Tuesday because spending authority by those agencies expired last Monday when Congress failed to pass another continuing resolution.

The resolution would permit the government agencies to keep functioning on a temporary basis until Congress votes them some money.

The House tied to the stopgap resolution a rider insisting that President Johnson slash his budget by $6 billion to $8 billion. But the Senate knocked it off, calling it buck-passing on a job that is the duty of Congress.

The conferees deadlocked on the question at a meeting Thursday and an hour-long session Friday reportedly made little progress. Another meeting is scheduled for Tuesday.

"Our employees are working on faith," said the AID spokesman. "The paycheck they receive next Tuesday covers the period ending last Sunday. On Nov. 14—unless something happens in Congress—they'll receive a check for one day, Monday, the day the continuing resolution expired."

Antipoverty Most Serious

The antipoverty program appears to be the most seriously hurt by lack of authority to spend money.

"We have local community action agencies that will have to close down because we can't give them any money," said one source. "We would like to tell them to go and borrow the money from the bank but we can't do that because we theoretically can't obligate any money. We don't know what Congress is going to do."

At AID, work is continuing but no money is being spent. For instance, employes are evaluating loan agreements which are moving along the normal administration route. But when a contract reaches a point where it is ready for signature, it is being put aside until the agency receives money.

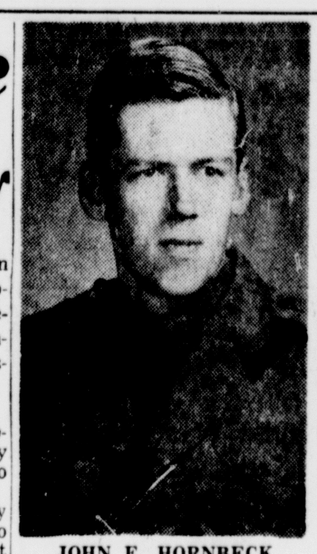

Bid openings for construction projects are being held up at the Atomic Energy Commission. And the agency isn't inviting any new bids on projects other than those under the weapons program or involving the installation of radioactive waste storage tanks.

The foreign aid money bill, under which AID and the Peace Corps operate, and the controversial one to finance continuation of the antipoverty program are the main ones hanging.

A $4.6 billion public works bill, including funds for the AEC, needs only final Senate clearance before going to the President for signing. The only other bills pending are those covering the D.C. government and military construction.

The logjam of money bills cracked a bit more Friday when the Senate sent to the White House by voice vote—with only five members present—a $13.3 billion money bill to finance the Labor and the Health, Education and Welfare departments.

A $1 billion cut in funds below the administration's $3.2 billion foreign aid request was recommended by a House Appropriations subcommittee and will go to the full committee Nov. 6.

County Residents Trooper Grads

A class of 174 new troopers, including two Ulster County residents and several others from the Mid-Hudson Valley area, was graduated from the Basic Training School of the New York State Police Academy at exercises today at Chancellors Hall in Albany. The school was conducted for the past 16 weeks at the State University in Oneonta and at Freehold.

Wawarsing, Accord Men

John E. Hornbeck, 22, of Wawarsing, and Henry N. Sira, 24, of RFD 1, Accord, were among the graduates.

Hornbeck is married to the former Kathy Nolan of Wawarsing. He is the son of Mrs. Julia Hornbeck of that community and the late Clyde Hornbeck. He graduated from Ellenville High School and attended Ulster County Community College. He will be assigned to Troop C in Sidney.

Sira, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Sira of the Accord address, was graduated from Amityville Memorial High School in 1961. Prior to joining the State Police he was employed by the Kingston Police Department. He will be assigned to Troop K, Hawthorne.

Other Mid-Hudson Valley graduates included: Douglas H. Lane, RD 2, Box 83-4 Catskill; Thomas L. Larkin, Nellie Hill Acres, Dover Plains; John E. Mason, 121 Ulster Avenue, Walden; Stephen P. Pasquale, Knox Village, Apt. 13, Newburgh Thomas F. Salmon, 30 Apple tree Drive, Rhinebeck; Albert J Simard Jr., Lake Ellis Road Wingdale; Ronald D. Wildey 419 Kents Road, Hopewell Junc tion; Richard E. Woods, 1(Gardner Avenue Extension, Mid dletown.

The graduation address wa delivered by Richard J. Bartlett chairman of the new State Crime Control Council and chairman of the Temporary State Commission on Revision of the Penal Law and the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Trooper Vincent T. Burke Jr. of Kew Gardens, Queens, spoke as the student representative.

Diplomas and awards were presented by Superintendent William E. Kirwan. The Superintendent's Award for Academic Excellence, a .38 calibre Magnum revolver, was presented to Trooper Norman L. Duell of Lake George. A similar prize for excellence in combat shooting was awarded to Trooper Blair E. Hoover of Corning.

Start Monday

The new troopers will begin their field assignments on Monday.

Mrs. Oberkirch On Esopus Run: Have the Time

Declaring, "I have the time to give and I'm eager to serve my community," Helen Oberkirch, Democratic candidate for councilman in the Town of Esopus, was hosted at three coffee-hours this week.

Mrs. Oberkirch was given the chance to meet the voters through "Coffee Hours for Helen Oberkirch" at the homes of Mrs. William Granitto of St. Remy and Mrs. Harold Coffey of Ulster Park.

Next week the "coffee hours" will be hosted by Mrs. Robert Courtney, Mrs. Winifred, Martin Nilan and William Oskay, all of Port Ewen.

Mrs. Oberkirch, mother of two children and a resident of the Town of Esopus for the past 15 years, has a long record of civic service to her credit. She has served as president of the Port Ewen P-TA for two years and led that organization's successful fight for school transportation through the "9W rock cut," and as president of the P-TA Council of Kingston City Schools Consolidated (consisting of 14 P-TA groups) for six years.

She was the first woman appointed to the Ross Park Commission by a town (Esopus) board and served (over five years) until she moved out of the Port Ewen district.

Mrs. Oberkirch has been an active member of the board of directors of United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, Inc., for 11 years and now holds the office of vice-president of this agency. She has organized CP Telethons and county wide fund-raising campaigns and put time and study into committee work. She is corresponding secretary of UCP Associations of N.Y. State, has held this position for seven years, and was recently appointed secretary of the newly formed Ulster County Health Council.

Mrs. Oberkirch believes that her experience working with various boards of directors and her active service in the Town of Esopus are excellent qualifications for councilman.

RV Students Win Awards in Land Judging

Ninety-three agriculture students from five schools participated in a land judging contest Tuesday at Wallkill State Prison farm.

The contest was conducted with the cooperation of the Soil Conservation Districts of Orange, Ulster, and Sullivan Counties and the Cooperative Extention Service.

Capturing top honors were students from Rondout Valley, who grabbed the first, second and fifth awards. Taking the honors were Thomas Coddington, Robert Bennett and Jeffrey Reed.

Schools represented in the contest were Rondout Valley, Wallkill, Orange County BOCES, Tri-Valley and Minisink Valley.

Firemen Offer Halloween Tips

In order to insure a safe and mutually enjoyable Halloween Eve the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Kingston Fire Dept. urges the residents of the City of Kingston to observe the following precautions:

All leaves should be removed from area's around buildings and all leaves which are at the curb should be thoroughly wet down with a garden hose.

Use artificial light in pumpkins used as jack-o-lanterns. (Use a flashlight, not candles.)

Make sure that your child's costume is not made from a highly flammable material. If you are in doubt take a small piece of the material to your nearest paid fire station where it will be checked.

Keep porch lights on to discourage any misguided youngsters from commimtting acts of vandalism.

Last but not least, we ask our young people to enjoy themselves but not by senseless acts of mischief. Make your community proud of you.

Brrr! Burr's Ghost

Haunted houses in all their tarnished grandeur and eerie color will get the Halloween season treatment on television tomorrow, Sunday, Oct. 29, at 8 p. m.

WNEW's Channel 5 will bring on the dear departeds with its program, Ghost in the House, totally appropriate to All Saints Eve and featuring Hans Holzer, author, parapsychologist and ghost hunter, and Sybil Leek, British medium. In a seance trance, medium Leek promises to contact the disturbed ghost of Aaron Burr. She'll conjure up history's disgraced duelist at the site of his former home in Greenwhich Village, a building now housing the hippie hangout, Cafe Bizarre.

Other haunted houses in Manhattan to be seen include a mansion on Riverside Drive, a rooming house on the Lower East Side, and a house at Clinton Court in Midtown.

Narrator Holzer is a member of the New York Historical Society and the Archaelogical Institute of America, and the author of four books on ghosts. A well-traveled lecturer, he wrote and produced "Ghost in the House."

Tune in for the chills and thrills in the holiday spirit of Halloween.

Horsey Movies

Two movies, "Seabiscuit" and "Flying Mallets," will be presented by the Bennett College Riding Club next Tuesday evening (Oct. 31). The performance will take place beginning at 7:15 in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium on the Millbrook campus. No tickets will be required of the public, which is cordially invited to attend.

Halloween — How It Used To Be

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Remember how it used to be — way back then — before Mayor Garraghan got so miffed about the whole thing he threatened to outlaw it How in the beginning nobody set a curfew and it was all ours? How commercialism hadn't intruded on its very special traditions yet . . . and kids allowed their imaginations to run rampant?

Those were the days when all it took to become a mysterious gypsy were some of mom's beads (left over from the Roaring Twenties), a long skirt with a ruffle or two, golden earrings from the five-and-dime, and the old red scarf off the mantle . . . When you could talk the head of the family into letting you rip up a fraying sheet and, in seconds, transform yourself into a ghost . . . When a night out as a pirate required nothing more elaborate than tattered trousers, a cardboard dagger, and a black eyepatch made of muslin . . . When Chinese princesses were everywhere and, why not, with a pair of silk pajamas, rosettes for the ears, and a paper parasol to be found in almost every household.

Halloween and All Hallow's Eve . . . how they've changed. Who wants to be a homemade, hand-me-down witch with the kitchen broom for a steed, a goblin or skeleton, when — for $2.98 — you can be Tarzan, Atom Ant, The Hulk, Bat Girl, Spiderman, Vampira the Green Hornet or any one of the four singing Monkees mini-skirted or mod-trousered? Who wants to be a dirty-faced hobo in dad's old hat, shoes and vest, some skillfully applied charcoal and cigarette butts when $20 at an "in" costume shop will buy the dress Carol Channing wore in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," or $10 may turn up something campy from the Ice Follies tour of 1927.

Why Bother Mom?

Why bother popping your own corn when ersatz flavored and pastel dyed replicas of those old-fashioned balls can be bought for a pittance in cellophane bags at the supermarket? Who needs Grandma's donuts and mom's fudge when Trick or Treat candies come in the large economy size package? Bob for apples in an old tin tub? Don't be ridiculous! We're off to spray Tammy and Billie Joe WHAP in their baby blues with a can of vacuum packed shaving cream. Carve a jack-o-lantern for the front window? Forget it . . . pick up a ready-made decorating kit instead . . . they come free with a box of bubble gum.

Trick or Treat, indeed . . . There was a time when it meant exactly that and more so. No treat from the skinflint on the corner of Elm Street? Didn't take much moxie to lift his gate off its hinges . . . Still intact but the old miser would have to spend the next morning rehanging it. A gang of costumed kids turned away from somebody's front porch with wormy apples instead of a nickel each? Well, it wouldn't be the first outhouse tipped over in its side tonight. Somebody's lights out and man of the house hiding behind the curtains because Halloween and kids are both a pain in the neck? A bar of Ivory soap or a bag of ashes used in the proper place will show who's boss tonight.

If it all sounds like a very small town scene, it was. But it was somehow superior to today when Halloween has about as much charm and romance as an electronic dating computer. Where have all the sweet, little old ladies gone, who greeted a costumed child with "Now, let me think who COULD be under that clown mask?" And the best costume prize at the school party this year will probably go to the kid whose mother is a professional dress designer; had one of her seamstresses whip up a knight in shining armor out of Day-Glo silver paint over fishnet stockings.

That Personal Touch

Small wonder the whole thing's been taken over by the vandals. It's long since lost the old-fashioned personal touch that made it an interpersonal holiday for kids and parents.

Still Mr. Mayor, we wouldn't advise outlawing it. Some freckle-faced kid with a little old-time flair might come up with a sure-fire plan for tipping City Hall over on its side.

. . . Which just might not be such a bad idea at that. It's always had a marked resemblance to a witch's castle . . . and it'd be one way of giving Halloween AND the seat of government back to the people.

Behind the Stagelights

Guy Turns Into Doll - Hilarity Results

The turning of a guy into a doll as retribution for his love-'em-and-leave-'em tactics, is the hilarious theme of "Goodbye Charlie," the George Axelrod comedy to be presented by Coach House Players in November.

Axelrod will be remembered for another comedy, "The Seven Year Itch," which launched Jane Mansfield's career on stage and starred Marilyn Monroe in the movie version.

In the New York production of "Goodbye Charlie" Lauren Bacall delighted audiences in the role of Charlie, the $3,000-a-week Hollywood screen-writer who made successful passes at every dame he met — but once too often! Sadly for Charlie, his last amorous adventure was finished off rather abruptly by a jealous husband.

And therein lies the tale; for Charlie is reincarnated as a beautiful woman and, so, begins to see life from the other side of the battle of the sexes.

Naturally the ex-roue hero runs into a lot of trouble trying to adjust to his new gender which, among other things, means he'd better keep his stocking seams straight and his powder dry. However, his old pal, George, is on tap to help him in the rapid fire transformation, and gives the newly-made and totally alluring young girl one of the fastest finishing school courses on record. In the course of the two hours "traffic on the stage" Charlie changes from a disreputable wolf into the loveliest of ladies; learns how to handle high heels and balance a teacup on his pretty knees.

COACH HOUSE HEADQUARTERS

No Solemnity

The play opens with a memorial service for poor departed Charlie in which good friend George is hard put to find any suitable epitaph for his deceaed pal. This is the last sloemn moment in the racily-paced action. From then on one rollicking situation follows another in rapid succession, making this show one that's guaranteed to drive away the blue and frustrations.

The play is being directed by Bill Skilling, who has chalked up one hit after another with the local Players.

Africa Festival Goes Dramatic

Two plays which will bow shortly off-Broadway will be given a special free pre-opening presentation at State University College, New Paltz, next Monday, Oct. 30, at 8 p. m. Written by Wole Soyinka, Africa's most celebrated playwright, the dramatic fare will be offered in the Main Auditorium on campus as part of the college's continuing 10-day "Africa Festival."

The plays are Soyinka's "The Trials of Brother Jero" and "The Strong Breed," both of which will open at the Greenwich Mews Theatre in New York on Nov. 9, shortly after their pre-metropolitan preview here. The latter vehicle was televised on a New York station in 1964, and is being produced by the husband-and-wife team of Kenneth Farris and Cynthia Belgrave. Miss Belgrave will also direct the plays and take the leading female role in "The Strong Breed," which has been lauded by The New York Times as "a fascinating fusion of ancient superstition and ennobling morality." The talented Miss Belgrave has a list of Broadway productions to her credit. She recently appeared in the Great White Way staging of James Baldwin's "Amen Corner," and in earlier plays such as The Blacks, Lovey and The Grass Harp.

The other short work, "The Trials of Brother Jero" concerns the "pleasantly seedy adventures of a religious prophet named Brother Jeroboam . . . The language is tonic and on occasion very funny," according to a Holiday magazine article on "Africa's Black Writers."

Won Top Honors

Soyinka, a Nigerian, also wrote the full-length play, "The Lion and the Jewel," planned for Broadway production. In 1966, the playwright won top honors at the first World Festival of Negro Art in Dakar with "The Road." Educated at the University of Leeds, he has had several of his works presented at Brandeis University, the University of Colorado, and on television.

American and British members of P.E.N. last year appealed to the Nigerian government to release Soyinka when he was jailed and reported beaten for a statement advocating a cease-fire in the Nigerian civil war. At the age of 32, he has written four full-length plays and three long one-act plays.

One of the male leads, Afolabi Ajavi, has been active in Nigerian theater, worked with Soyinka, and appeared in his "A Dance of the Forest," first performed in 1960 at Nigeria's Independence celebration.

Jeroboam is played by the rising young Negro actor Hal Scott, who won the Variety Critics Poll as the "Most Promising New Actor on Broadway" for his performance in "The Cool World." A graduate of Harvard with a B.A. in English, he has also acted with the Repertory Theatre of Lincoln Center.

There will be no reserved seats for the New Paltz performances.

Prior to going dramatic, the Paltz festival will come up with some intriguing audience viewing when it presents "African Safari," a live show of male and female native costumes from 12 African countries. The show will also feature American clothing showing the influence of African design, and will go onstage this Sunday, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p. m. in the College Theater. "Safari" will be the fifth major event of the lengthy festival.

Twenty African and American students from New Paltz and New York City will model traditional and contemporary clothing under the guidance of Marva Chrity of the Council of the African-American Institute, New York.

Presentations from West Africa — Senegal, Guinea, Ghana, Nigeria, and Chad — will introduce the African tour. East and Southcentral Africa will be represented by models showing the fashions of Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyka, Somalia, Swaziland, and Leshato.

During the intermission, Ghana student Seth Ladzekpo will present a dance interlude.

A drummed "welcome to the African festival" in the language of African tom-toms played by Ladzepko has opened many of the events at the college. The Ghana student is a "caster" drummer in his homeland and has taught other New Paltz students how to "talk" on his instrument.

Folk Music Highlighted

Following the costume and dramatic presentations, the festival will move toward the final curtain with an illustrated lecture on African folk music by Dr. Hugh Tracey, Director of the International Library of African Music and founder of the African Music Society. He is slated to appear next Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Main Auditorium on campus.

The lecture, the concluding event in the festival, will be supplemented by films and recordings made by Dr. Tracey over the past three decades in Africa. A visiting professor at New Paltz, he has a rich and varied background in the mu-

Journey Toward Freedom

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It was by no means Ulster's finest hour. Up and down the rutted roads of the county, feeble and elderly men and women wandered rootlessly, dying of hunger and exposure. Those who did have roofs over their heads slept in damp, unlighted cellars on wet, muddy straw. Children of five and three, boys and girls alike, were taken from their parents and sold; leaving by foot in summer and carried away over the winter snow in sleigh boxes.

The Great Depression of the 1930's? Very definitely not. Actually, it was that period shortly after the end of the American Revolution and the several decades following the turn of the next century. It was that time when people were still talking about Washington and Lafayette, the coming of Jesus and the end of the world, and when Dutch farmers of Ulster, who lavished more money on their great stone barns than on their houses, held the distinction of owning more slaves than the combined citizenry of New York City. This in spite of the fact that John Jay had fought for a clause abolishing slavery in the first State Constitution, fashioned here in Kingston in 1777, only to see his move blocked.

Into this world in 1797 came Isabelle (Belle) Hardenbergh, taking the last name of her master and moving with him as an infant to a limestone house in Hurley. Almost unbelievably, while so much else of local historical interest has disappeared, this house still stands, but tourists who admire its architecturally esthetic values today have no knowledge whatsoever of the human misery that once reigned in its cellar.

At the age of 11, when Charles Hardenbergh died, Belle — although not by name — was identified in a notice poster in Kingston. The wiry, blue-black skinned little girl was advertised as one of "the slaves, horses, and cattle of Charles Hardenbergh, deceased" — to be sold at auction to the highest bidder. Sold she was, never to see her mother, who subsequently died on the damp cellar floor in Hurley, again. Her father, too, died of old age, hunger and neglect because of his treatment at the hands of the Hurley-Hardengerghs.

Belle's second master was one John Neely, owner of a brand new store and landing at Twaalfkskill, some one and one-half miles from Kingston Village. He bought the slave child to give his wife a bit more standing in the eyes of local ladies as a slaveowner and to show his neighbors and customers he aproved of local customs although he was only recently arrived from Massachusetts where slavery had been abolished. Neely, evidently as mean as a rattlesnake, often tied the child's hands and beat her bare back with wooden rods tied together with cord . . . until the welts across her shoulders remained as life-long scars.

Eventually, he sold Belle to a fisherman and tavernkeeper, Martin Schryver, for $105. This became the year of her childhood content for Schryver lived near the Rondout Creek ferry and Belle loved the trips to the teeming Strand on errands and sitting on the pier there watching the Hudson River sloops turn up the creek.

$300 Price Tag

But Schryver could not afford to refuse the $300 soon offered for her (she was only 13 but already six feet tall) by John Dumont of New Paltz. She walked the long miles between towns behind Dumont's horse; stayed with him longer than with any master. At his home she became something of loner, working far too industriously to please the other slaves, and earning the name of "white man's pet," a label that in this day and age would probably emerge as "honky lover."

Still, Belle could not always remain a little girl and she grew to maturity and near middle age in the Paltz household of Dumont. She saw much, learned much and suffered much. If there was any weakened resistance to abolition in the area, it was mostly due to the harsh winter weather which made it economically profitable to free slaves when there was no work to do on the farms, or when they grew too old or sick to be useful. This saved the expense of feeding the elderly slaves a landowner wished to put out of his house.

To Belle's trained eye, Ulster and its neighboring counties formed the backbone of the resistance to abolition in the state. In their quarters, the slaves — or those who could — read the county paper (at that time the Kingston Argus) — and talked about the fact that abolitionists were not popular with the Dutch. Only the Quakers of Ulster County worked in behalf of the slaves, a task made difficult at times because of the communications problem. The only language the slaves knew or spoke was Low Dutch, the idiom spoken by most farmers in Ulster in those days.

There was a vivid urgency in Belle Hardengergh-Neely-Schryver-Dumont to break out of this very special and personal Hades and, eventually, she did. In her strife-torn young adulthood, she had found little acceptance by either race and had seen the youth she loved nearly beaten to death before her eyes; later learned that he had indeed died. After knowing many masters, being forced into marriage to a far older man, bearing children to increase "the stock" of Dumont, and having been promised her freedom and denied it, she ran away only one short year before she would have been free by law. Now she was Belle Van Wagenen, living for wages with Quakers near Paltz . . . and, at 29, she made the decision to become someone else entirely.

Although it took more than a decade longer — a period spent mostly in New York City seeing much human suffering and suffering herself when her only son never returned from sea — she became an evangelistic speaker at camp meetings and anti-slavery meetings . . . with a marked talent for electrifying her audiences. She was a prepossessing figure at a lectern with a speaking voice that enveloped a crowd with its timbre and wit and with a wild, deep-toned, magnificent singing voice that mesmerized ruffians and gentlemen alike.

She entered the pages of history, as well, as a champion of women's rights (those of both dispossessed Negroes and well educated whites), a crusader for prison reform and for better conditions for working people. And she took a new name more in keeping with the work of the Lord and the fight against slavery.

SOJOURNER IN QUAKER GARB

She became Sojourner Truth, a woman who was a legend in her own time, both before and after the Civil War, when she turned to helping freedmen find employment, urging settlement of land in the west, and became one of the first to take up the cause of civil rights.

The Days in Court

At varying distances along the way, she was accused of helping to plot murder but was found innocent and won a lawsuit against a newspaper which had ignored her rights before the law. This was only five years after she had ascended the steps of the present day Ulster County Courthouse in her bare feet to fight for her son's freedom before the Grand Jury. The building then had weathered only one decade, was awesomely new and formidable when this 1828 slave woman pleaded for the return of her young son from Alabama, where he had been taken in defiance of New York law which prohibited selling or even transporting slaves to another state at the risk of forcing their freedom. Miraculously, she had won that case, too, in an unprecedented fight almost 10 years prior to a somewhat similar battle in the same building by Michael and Mary Liuni — a fight that involved a blonde, white girl instead of a black-haired, dark skinned boy.

Along the way, too, she had spent three years in the high intellectual circles of an abolitionist Utopian association, and had had a book written about her life — a book that sold as well in 1850 (the year of the controversial passage of the Fugitive Slave Bill) as James Balswin's essay sell today. As the book sold, so did Sojourner's original songs and copies of her photograph . . . for she was extraordinary looking and possessed of an air of authority.

Her accomplishments were many. She was the only Negro delegate from Massachusetts to the first Women's Rights Convention in that state and to another in Ohio. A constant stream of speaking engagements took her through the East and Mideast; she integrated the streetcars of Washington by wining a lawsuit for assault and battery against one of the railway's motormen; and she was granted a private audience with Presi- Abraham Lincoln. She was arrested time and time again dur- the War Between the States while speaking in unsympathetic Indiana and, believed to be on her death bed at 65, lived on into her late '80s or longer when the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation helped to breathe new sustenance into her tall, pain-wracked body.

Journey Toward Freedom

All this and so much more is detailed and explored in a magnificently researched and written book by Jacqueline Bernard, a New Yorker who has worked as a reporter, translator and advertising copywriter. Just published by W. W. Norton & Company Inc., the book is entitled "Journey Toward Freedom" with the sub-title, The Story of Sojourner Truth. Within its 265 pages is a wealth of beautiful illustrations, many of them picturing Ulster County in the long, long ago.

Jacqueline Bernard has done a thoroughly comprehensive job on this biography, which will be enjoyed by young people and adults alike. And the book comes at a time when it is particularly relevant to many Negro struggles today which are not unlike Sojourner's and with which many are trying to identify.

In giving much credit to the Senate House Museum here in Kingston and to New Paltz and city residents for assisting in the book's research, author Bernard says nothing about her own diligence in the more than 10 years spent gathering infotmation and writing this interest-holding volume.

It is made perhaps even more interesting for local readers who like Sojourner, had never heard the name of Lincoln until he was elected president, never knew of her existence here when our area was young. Author Bernard proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that Sojourner Truth was one of Ulster's most illustrious natives and, possibly, its single, most distinguished celebrity.

A Long-Time Plan

In an author's note, the writer says she has wanted to write about Sojourner's contribution to American history since her college days in Chicago. She has done so and accomplished the task with masterful selectivity, although the book's publication comes many years later when her own son is attending Oxford. The book, incidentally, is dedicated to him. He's Joel Bernard, who spent much of his youth in Woodstock, attended Onteora High School, and worked during 1964's Freedom Summer for the cause of civil rights in Mississippi.

The book is a fitting monument to Sojourner Truth and at least a partial answer to many Negroes who complain bitterly that they are not taught the accomplishments and history of their race in the schools of this country.

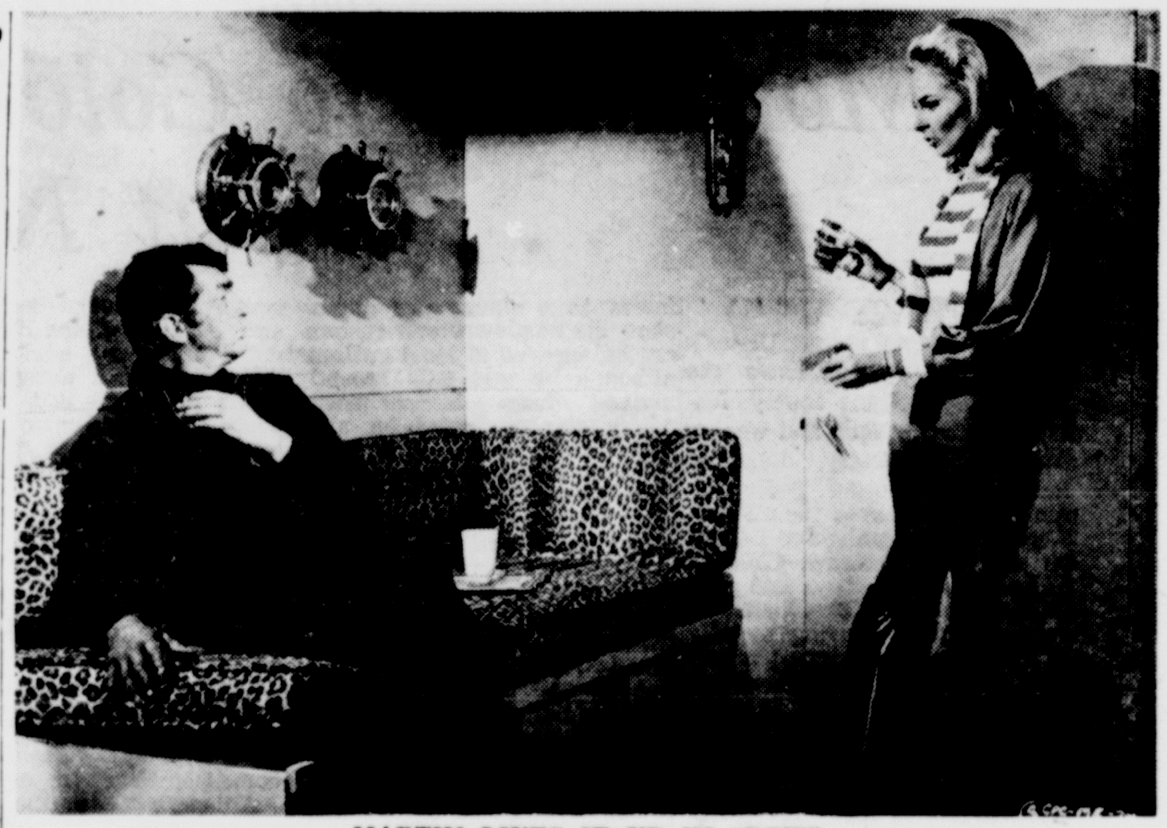

As we finished the book, we began to wonder, however, if it was monument enough to this remarkable personality, at least as far as Ulster County is concerned. Why is there no physic-

MARTIN LIVES IT UP IN "ROW"

THE FLIM-FLAM MAN. Out of Kentucky's bluegrass country comes the legend of "The Flim-Flam Man," the warm-hearted comedy that opened at Kingston's Mayfair Wednesday for a full week's run. Into the idyllic splendor that is this gently rolling land of pastures and horse farms escapes Old Mordecai (George C. Scott), fleeing from the law which takes a dim view of his masterful manner of "cheating the cheaters."

Mordecai is running happily for he is the most artful dodger of them all; takes pride in his elusiveness and his cunning at conning in cards or any other of our small-time buncos. Here in this easy-going Divieland, he meets Young Curley (Michael Sarrazin) a fugitive of another type, AWOL from the Army. Curley becomes the able but reluctant accomplice of the flim-flam man of the title.

Out of the alliance of this somewhat mismatched pair, youthful director Irving Kershner has captured ineffable charm and humor on the screen. As filmed in Panavision and Deluxe color by 20th Century Fox, the movie makes ex-

Well Sustained

Leisurely, but never dragging, the legend on screen moves along — well written, broadly humorous, its characters reflecting the gamut of humanity from simple trust to bitter suspicion, the joy of the con artist and the meek gullibility of his victim, the puritan moralities and the individual falls from grace.

Scott is marvelous as the man who breaks the Establishment's code and manages to get away with it time and time again. Sarrazin, making his debut in this film, is an impressive newcomer who gets our vote as the most talented discovery of the year. The shimmering, pastoral, sunwashed backgrounds will make you forget temporarily that just outside the movie house, pollution, traffic, detergents and vandals are at work. The Flim-Flam Man is a mood movie, sentimental and nostalgic, but glazed over with the light touch as Mordecai and Curley take the happy highroad to steal cars, peddle moonshine, take advantage of the rustics and dodge the sheriff.

As Mordecai shares his wile and guile with Curley, he dares to dream that the younger man will become his heir and, perhaps, even a better grifter. But is Curley cynical enough toward the flaws of humanity . . . or devoted enough to the profession? Has he the concentration for the job to become as professional in its disciplines as Mordecai? Apparently not. The poor, moonstruck youth finds himself worrying about a victim's beautiful daughter, Sue (Lolita) Lyon, and the heisting of her auto leads to the biggest flim-flam of team all, love, love, love and imprisonment.

The ending offers a scheming surprise that proves, once again, that necessity is the mother of invention and Yankee ingenuity is a thoroughly American folk sport. This is a film of pungency and poignancy, superbly acted with a rare simplicity. Anyone who doesn't like it deserves to be dealt out in three-card monte.

—BONNIE AND CLYDE. As just about everyone who can read knows by now, no movie since perhaps "Stromboli" has attracted as much controversy or more attention in print than Bonnie and Clyde . . . And the motivations behind the denunciations or arty praise of "Stromboli" were for far different reasons. In Bonnie and Clyde, however, we have a film over which movie critics and their readers have split in intellectual bitterness with reviewers taking the worst of the beating.

It all started when Hollywood decided to probe the rise and fall of Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow, the bank robbing sweethearts who went around murdering people in the dust bowl territory during the Great Depression. Enter Bosley Crowther, reputable and erudite reviewer for the New York Times, who was forced to write two reviews and three separate attacks after his initial one, denouncing the film's violence, was set upon by hundreds of readers as off-base. Most apparently felt this was cinema of high artistic value and that Crowther was too prejudiced to see it. Time magazine's failure to recognize the savage satire as just that also drew letters from the lowly and the mighty alike, including Jerry Lewis, who felt it was a movie milestone of vast merit. And, after all, he's had so many bad one's himself, he really ought to know.

Reviewers who stepped in late in the controversy were wary enough to take the easy way out; reviewed it right down the middle as did the man from Life and others.

We liked it for a variety of very personal reasons. First off, going to the movies anytime is our favorite form of entertainment and a film has to be gosh awful bad for us to stage a walkout. Bonnie and Clyde is not only not bad, it's very nearly great. It's stylish, satirical and the particular brand of violence it peddles has never bothered us. It's a violence that does not repel for its out-and-out sadism.

It Happened Here

For another thing, no period in American history fascinates us more than the Roaring Twenties and the deepening depression of the '30s and, if B and C is historically inaccurate about B and C on occasion, it does present some of the bleakness of that era. That era when businesses threw off employes to make ends meet, factories cut wages or laid off hands, food money ran low or dwindled to nothing, shoes and galoshes turned to tatters, relief rolls burgeoned and staggered inadequately under the flood, well dressed people fought physically for jobs, and apple sellers took over the sidewalks. And, let's face it, this was, after all, the heyday of gangsters.

All of the argument roiling around the film, whether in too high praise or too harsh damnation, leaves us cold. We enjoyed it for what it was. A true picture of the arid, empty dust bowl country, a lot of exciting car chases (in some perfectly gassy old vintage autos) and, if B and C put away their victims with an eye to their publicity and a casual, mindless, almost childlish unconcern —at least they did not do so with the sadosexual overkill of a James Bond or Al Capone.

All the rootlessness that would have descended on the young during the Depression, with its breadlines, grim collection of shacks and makeshift huts everywhere, its Bonus Army of unemployed veterans, and its capability of instilling in decent people total fear and lack of pride, helps to make Bonnie and Clyde a film of no little merit. Our only gripe would be that some of its misplaced comedy detracts froms its overall impact.

Minors Win Ballgame

Also, making it a near miss, is the fact that the supporting actors outperform the leads. Faye Dunaway as Bonnie and Warren Beatty as Clyde are just too darn good-looking, glamorous and seemingly bright under it all to be believable as small-time tin-types with moron I.Q.'s. But Michael J. Pollard as a chauffeur-mechanic is almost too good to be believed, in spite of the fact that he is not portraying an authentic historical character, but a compilation of several men in the lives of the loving twosome of gangland. Gene Hackman as Clyde's brother and Estelle Parsons as his bride also help to carry the film, as does the freshness of the dialogue.

There is plenty of fiction in Bonnie and Clyde and the romanticizing of the pair in this film has certainly done little to paint them as they really were in real life. Actually, they left a lot more corpses (many of them senselessly shot) in their wake; they were more adroit at lucky escapes than shown; and Bonnie, among other things, wrote what is probably the worst folk song on

A Ghost Who Gave Up Old Haunts

Next week's Halloween festivities in Ulster County can be counted on to bring out ghosts aplenty, but one well known ghost — who visited the county recently — has gone out of business. She's Marni Nixon, ghost singing voice of Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady," Natalie Wood in "West Side Story" and Deborah Kerr in "The King and I."

Miss Nixon, in Woodstock one day recently for a visit with her husband, who's been there on-and-off over the summer and fall months collaborating on a Broadway musical, says she'll be doing her own materializing from now on, thank you. Pert and pretty, with red hair and a bright smile, she's tired of the anonymity that came her way as the classical or modern voice behind the stars. A master at movie dubbing behind the scenes she wants to be seen out front and as she is from this day forward.

Offers are coming fast and furiously for the petite singer to display her talents in a variety of musical fields. And because she has so long been heard but not seen, she's snapping up as many offers as her schedule will allow.

From Opera to Pop

Her vocal range and capabilities allow her to sing opera and pop equally well. Prior to the Hollywood soundtracks and in between them, she has sung with citified opera companies, in musical comedy revivals and concerts of all kinds. Now she's taking to the night club circuit and its unearthly racket like no other ghost in history. She's also promised to sing Juliet in Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" with the Seattle Opera this season.

For the attractive and charming Miss Nixon, there are no difficulties involved in making the switch with fluid finesse from classical to pop. She knows both styles well and, more important, when to use them. Apparently, booking agents are beginning to get the message.

Those who have heard her in person or remember her voice as it poured forth in song from the mouths of the screen's Liza Doolittle and Maria of the Puerto Rican West side, might well hope that recording companies would read the lettering on the wall, too. At the moment, the talented singer has no recording contract, although she has recorded an avant-garde classical concert in England, some Stravinsly songs for Columbia, some Latin numbers for capitol, "Mary Poppins" for the Disneyland label (although Julie Andrews was one star who needed no ghost for the movie), and — of all things — an album of Western numbers.

A native Californian, her real name is Margaret Nixon McEathron. Musically inclined from the very beginning, she played violin in a Los Angeles junior symphony at the age of 15; sometimes put aside her strings to sing an aria. Later, she was a mail girl-messenger for MGM, conducting guided tours on the big movie lots of the sprawlin studio. Something of a tease, she sometimes found large tips dropped into her hand by movie-struck tourists, who enjoyed her running commentary. A lot of the commentary, she says, was aimed at disillusioning the rubes and rustics.

Bypassed Lunches

This was the period during which she gave up lunch for voice lessons, since these came along free with the weekly salary. L. B. Mayer's secretary took a liking to her; helped her get the job as little Margaret O'Brien's voice in a movie called "The Secret Garden." Ironically, she had to sing a Hindu lullaby and needed coaching from an Indian. From then on in, she was the acknowledged queen of the dubbers and her ability to ghost-imitate by sounding like the person she was singing for brought her a lucrative, if not celebrated, career.

Altogether, she eventually ghosted in more than 20 movies, including one in which she was supposed to be the voice of opera singer Maria Callas being broadcast over a radio. Some of

Leger Exhibit at Vassar Now

A selection of paintings, drawings, prints, and sculpture by French painter Fernand Leger, one of the leading artists of the 20th century, is on view at Vassar College Art Gallery until No. 8. Works were selected from private collections, galleries, and museums, and organized for circulation in the U. S. and Canada by the Museum of Modern Art, New York. The exhibition shows 34 smaller works ranging from a cubist gouache drawing of 1912 to a ceramic sculpture of 1954, the year before Leger's death.

Leger was born in Argentan, Normandy, in 1881, and after giving up the study of architecture, began to study painting in 1903 in Paris. He was well known among the avant-garde in Paris, and was an influential teacher after 1922. He began making sculpture in 1949 in Biot, France. He worked in clay and attempted to keep the same directness and forthrightness as in his paintings, often borrowing his images directly from paintings.

Among paintings displayed at Vassar are The Clock, of 1918, and Two Women and Interior, both of 1922, in which Leger conveys the quality of modern life with extraordinary richness and beauty. Some of the works in the exhibition were painted in the U. S. where Leger lived from 1940 until 1945 and worked with great enthusiasm. Several works illustrate Leger's fascination with the telling properties of the movie close-up and show his eventual liberation of color from line. He is known for his movie, Ballet Mechanique, consisting of objects in motion (1924), murals, and book illustrations, as well as his paintings.

Blanch as Winter Instructor

A painting and drawing workshop will be conducted during the coming winter months by Woodstock artist Arnold Blanch, long-time dean of the art colony, prize-winning painter and widely acclaimed teacher.

The workshop will be held at the Creative Arts Camp, 7 Wiley Lane, Woodstock, Wednesday and Thursdays from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

The aim is to include experimental work, work from the model, drawing, and still life and landscape painting. Fees will be charged on the basis of each three week session. Classes begin Nov. 1 and enrollment will be limited. Those interested in registering may call 679-2902 for further information.

ARNOLD BLANCH

Arnold Blanch, long recognized as one of the finest art teachers in the country, is known for his special ability to recognize and understand each student's work personally, a trait many feel is perhaps the most important function of the teacher in a creative field.

His rich background as an instructor includes some 25 years with the Art Students League, teaching stints at many art centers and universities such as Michigan State, University of Hawaii and California Institute of Art, and lecturing sessions at such universities as Louisiana, Florida, Wisconsin and Syracuse.

In addition, his paintings are owned by most of the major museums in the U. S. and by many private collectors.

Art Goes Electric

The day may come when Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy will offer an engineering degree in fine arts. That is, if a recent trend in art continues.

The best creative efforts of the artist and the engineer have come together in the form of "Kinetic" art, a new idiom in which modern technology becomes the artist's tool, replacing the traditional brush and pallet. The result—mechanical works of art that actually move, sing, and talk to convey the artist's message.

"The day is gone when we judge the works of man by traditional aesthetics," says Herbert Gesner, head of the Department of New Media, of New York University's Graduate School of Arts. "An oil painting in an elegant frame cannot compete with the Apollo moon shot on any level, spiritual or otherwise."

Some of Gesner's works may be seen at "Experience," an exhibit of Kinetic-light art now being held at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute's Student Union, through Nov. 3.

Unveiling Envotron

A highlight of the exhibit will come today with the unveiling of Gesner's newest creation, the Envotron.

"It's basically a big black box outfitted with an organ keyboard and a bank of multicolored lights which can be 'played' in conjunction with the other electronic instruments," said Peter Schwartz, art chairman for the Union dedication. "The artist can either pre-program it, or play it himself, creating a sort of audio-visual symphony."

The electronic device was two years in the making and cost $10,000 for materials alone.

Other artists whose works are being shown are: Frank Lincoln Viner, Sheldon Machlin, John Willenbecher, Robert Rauschenberg, Enrique Castro-Cid, Gerald Oster, Serge Boutourline and Kim Boressoff.

The exhibit is part of Rensselaer's "Identity '67" forum and student union dedication. Dedication ceremonies for the new union took place last weekend with Senator Mark O. Hatfield giving the dedication address.

ally visable monument to Sojourner Truth in our area? Henry Hudson, who did little more than sail past us, has such a monument — as does DeWitt Clinton, whose contributions to history are not even that far-reaching in the opinion of some. Colonel George Chandler, who was not even born locally and spent only some small portion of his life here, not only has a stone monument — but a superhighway named in his honor.

The Time and the Place

Why no monument to Sojourner? No woman has deserved one more, it seems to us. Nor could any time be more appropriate for its placement than today.

Sojourner Truth was a living example of the "We Shall Overcome" attitude a great many years before the phrase became popular . . . and she pretty much fought the battle alone from her own fleet chariot.

In an era when many of the headlines revolve around Sojourner's people, that section of Downtown Kingston where she once lived is still called home by many small girls not unlike her. They may watch speedboats and yachts from the shore where Sojourner once shaded her eyes to see the stately masts and statelier sails. And they may skate on Rondout Creek in leather boots with sharp blades where Sojourner once flashed by with smooth beef bones tied to her feet. But some of them still coast down the snowy hills on the curved wooden staves of a broken barrel as she did . . . or on a square of linoleum or plastic.

Any monument to Sojourner would be a monument to both them and the other residents of Ulster County.

Bennett Shows British Prints

"Contemporary British Printmakers" is the current show presented by the Art Department of Bennett College, Millbrook, N. Y. The exhibit is on view in the Halcyon Hall Art Gallery and will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily through November 22.

The exhibit is the first collective showing in the United States of prints by members of the Printmakers' Council of Britain. While the collection does not represent the entire membership, it is a selection of the kind of prints currently being produced in Britain and represents an art form that has become a powerful vehicle for the communication of creative ideas.

Guested With Hayes

Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy chatted at length with a Circleville resident on their radio program over WOR-AM one recent Thursday morning. Their Columbus Day guest was Wallace D. Turner, who's heard each Sunday morning over local station WBAZ and who is the author of a new book, "What Does the Bible Say?"

A Ghost Who

her singing parts have been major, some minor, and some simply singing the title song over the title and through the picture. After doing the latter for "The Four Poster," she began to glean attention in the press and on radio and television.

But, ghostly elements had been at work and, on the night of the movie's premiere, Miss Nixon, elegantly attired, waited in vain to here her song. It had ended on the cutting room floor and all that had been gained from the interviews and publicity was that a few people just might possibly remember her name in the future.

Due for Fame

Now that's she's branching out, a lot more people will be hearing about her, and not as an unknown voice behind the teacher of the children of the King of Siam or a grubby Cockney flowergirl headed for the high society life at the Ascot races.

Life appeared more than buly for Miss Nixon, as she whirled into Woodstock between showtime stints at Manhattan's Maisonette. She sandwiched in the day for a visit with her husband, Ernest Gold, who has written his share of movie scores and is now trying his hand at a stage musical in the relative quiet of an art colony retreat. The couple have three children, two teenagers and a five-year-old . . . and they're all red-haired like their mama. The oldest a boy, is following mom careerwise to some extent. He's half of a duo and has a recording contract. But he doesn't hesitate to tell his mother that she should sing her kind of things and let him do the Beatle type songs. Shrewd mother and good singer that she is, she heeds his advice and as a result, a whole, brand new career looms in her future.

$95,835 for Festival of the Arts

A Federal grant in the whopping amount of $95,835 is expected to pave the way for an all-encompassing Festival of the Arts in this area. As envisioned, the arts festival would be a regional activity combining all that Ulster, Orange, Sullivan, Dutchess, Upper Westchester and Putnam counties have to offer in the way of culture.

Word of the grant was passed along to the Mid-Hudson Regional Center, New Paltz, by the State Education Department Center on Innovation The proposed festival of the arts idea had been submitted on behalf of Dr. Fritz Hess, supervising phincipal of the Library School District at Liberty. As of now, the grant would seem to hold the promise of becoming a reality in the not-too-distant future, but its final approval still rests on passage of the appropriations by Congress. That aguust body of legislators is expected to be sympathetic to the proposal.

Dr. Raymond G. Kenyon, director of the Paltz located Regional Center, said the purpose of the festival is to design a regional systems model "Festival on Arts" as "a prologue to a statewide program involving rural non-farm students, teachers and parents in the performing arts." Emphasis, he said, would be on an in-residence program on the part of performing artists involved.

Credit for plans for the festival go to Dr. Kenyon; Dr. Hess; Dr. Vivienne Anderson, director of the State Division of Arts and Humanities; and Mrs. Irma E. Gray, assistant director of the Mid-Hudson Regional Center.

Festival of the Arts is one more in an ever lengthening list of projects approved in this area under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title III. Five other such programs are currently underway here, all contributing to the educational excellence of the community.

Classic Guitarist Due Sunday for Campus Concert

Venezuelan classic guitarist Rodrigo Riera will be the guest artist at Middletown Sunday night, Oct. 29, for a chamber music concert by the Hudson Valley Chamber Players at Orange County Community College.

The 8:30 p. m. public concert, a program of the college's 1967-68 Lyceum Series, is the second event of a Hudson Valley Philharmonic Festival being held at OCCC this year and will take place in Orange Hall auditorium.

Riera, who is preparing for a recital in New York City's Town Hall, will play works of Turina, Haydn, DeVisee, Scarlatti, Villa-Lobos, Albeniz and Boccherini during the OCCC performance Sunday.

Members of the Philharmonic's Chamber Players are Alice Smiley and Christine Fredenburgh on violin, Mildred Johnson on viola, Karl VanAusdal playing cello and Kenneth Fricker, double bass.

Prior to intermission, the program will include, among other offerings, a song of the bullfight ring. Later, the Quintet in E minor for Guitar and Strings will be performed.

Riera studied at Escuela Superior de Musica in Caracas under the supervision of Maestro Raul Borges. Because of his exceptional talent, he was later awarded a scholarship by the Venezuelan government for study at Real Conservatorio in Madrid. There he earned a first prize and subsequently attended guitar courses given by Andres Segovia at Academia Chigiana in Siena, Italy.

He enjoys widespread popularity with the public and press. Musical audiences recognize his impeccable technique and reward this accomplished guitarist with the success he deserves.

Tickets for the concert are available at the box office.

record, The Ballad of Bonnie and Clyde.

And there is indeed plenty of violence, too. But, depending on whether you believe that violence has to be taught or is a simple fact of life, you'll respond to it in different ways. Like we said, we liked it. If you have an itch to settle in on the controversy, Bonnie and Clyde is playing through Monday night at the Woodstock Theatre.

MURDERER'S ROW and THE SILENCERS. Here's a couple of re-issues, playing tonight and tomorrow at Kingston's Community Theatre, that simply attempt to spoof where Bonnie and Clyde strives to excel. The name of the game in both flicks is girl-watching and the ogler is Dean Martin as special agent Matt Helm. Larded throughout the plot (on ocelot couches and in super sportscars) are a bevy of long-haired, undressed lovelies known as the "Slaygirls" without whom super-spy Matt Helm could not undertake his adventures.

And does Dino ever have adventures! He does a lot of fighting but never once uses his fists. He tries double helpings of all those gorgeous dolls and he wallows in unbelievable Eastman color luxury. He uncovers guns in such unlikely places as the special built-in pockets of brunette Dalian Lavi's bra, and knives in blonde Nancy Kovack's innocent looking fists—although, in all truth, the rest of Miss Kovack looks anything but innocent.

It is our personal opinion that this twin bill is too blatantly racy for the kiddies. But if you're an adult who doesn't care who knows it, you'll probably get a day's supply of laughs from the tongue-in-cheekiness of Dino, the discotheque wriggling of Ann-Margret and whatever comedy, romance, adventure and excitment they manage to dream up.

sic heritage of central and southern Africa. Born in England in 1903, he has lived in southern Africa since 1921. In 1932, he received a Carnegie research grant to investigate African music and has continued his interest in that field since. He was Director of Broadcasting in Natal, South Africa, from 1934 to 1946.

Two of his sons, Andrew and Paul, created and star in the Broadway musical hit, "Wait a Minim," now playing in Chicago and the African music which opens the show was originally recorded by Dr. Tracey. Others which he first studied and recorded are also used in the performance.

Among the other dramatic, artistic and musical events of the week have been lectures to students of the Campus School by Mphiwa B. Mbatha, assistant professor of anthropology at New Paltz, on the subject "Coming of Age Among the Southern Bantu in Africa." Selected films are also being shown for the school children during the festival. The entire festival is free to the public.

If any company or individual tries to sell you heating equipment saying that they can give you automatic heat that is cheaper . . . or nearly as cheap as OIL . . . MAKE THEM PUT IT IN WRITING!

Such a letter, if signed by an officer of the company will give you the opportunity to take legal action and get the equipment removed when you prove by experience that their statements were false.

OIL HEAT'S BEST

Here's why:

1. Oil is Economical . . . your fuel oil dealer can show you positive proof of fuel savings.
2. Oil is Safe . . . no danger of devastating explosion or asphyxiation.
3. There's no monopoly of service or product . . . you can choose from any of many area suppliers who have a competitive interest in serving you best.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

Fence It In Maybe?

The man who said that is not untypical of householders who reap greater rewards than they expected by a changeover to electric heating. This pair had moved — in the summer time — when the ugliness of the basement, the mere looks of it, seemed the greatest challenge. He adds, "the house already had pretty good insulation so it was comfortable and you just can't imagine how it might feel on a winter day. But as it turned out, the neighbors were able to add another selling point; after all they'd heard the squawks of the former owners. Seems the two north bedrooms upstairs never did get enough heat when the temperature outside dropped.

"With electric heat of course, they're no problem to us. The temperature is whatever we set it for."

And even better, whatever temperature you set is what you get be it day or night. For unlike other systems electric heat starts to warm the instant it's switched on. And wat's more, the heat is even. There is no need to overheat nearby rooms to get a little warmth into problem areas. Each room can be set for the precise temperature wanted at a specific time.

And of course electric heating solves some big decorating and space problems too. With no boulky furnace to hide, the area transforms into a fresh chunk of living area.

QUESTION BOX

Question: Why are storm windows on the list of things we'd need with electric heating?

Answer: Storm windows — or double sash — are included as a necessary component of effective insulation. The electric heating industry, admirably we think, has spelled out everything that will help you get full fuel power and even heat from an electric home heating system.

The fuel you know is as well nigh perfect in itself as it can get. It's 100 per cent efficient. But large cold areas (like a single layer of picture window) could increase fuel use unnecessarily. To say nothing of the unnecessary cold drafts you'd have to dodge.

Question: I had thought the Gold Medallion was the name of a local community here, but I saw something about it just recently in a magazine ad. What's it all about?

Answer: The Gold Medallion is an actual award given to houses which fulfill a printed set of standards for complete electric living. Electric heating is a must for qualifying, so are a certain number of major appliances plus a selection of optionals.

The house must also measure up to prescribed standards of insulation (spelled out according to climatic zone as well as type of structure) and of course be wired in accordance with Gold Medallion standards. These, by the way, take care not only of your present needs, but have provisions for enough extra circuits to cover inventions that haven't even come off the drawing boards yet, much less come to market. So you won't have to invest in additional wiring as new electrical products come along.

The award itself is in two parts: A real little medallion that you can put up on the side of the house, incorporate into the door knocker, or maybe the bell shield. Then you also get a certificate which we suggest you keep with the deed to the house. It could mean more money if you want to sell.
